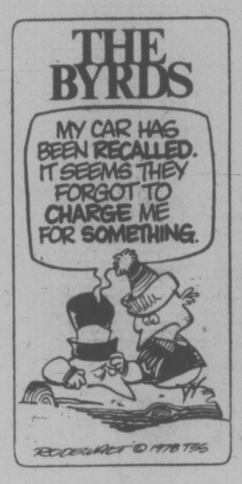
Prison Wardens Get Death Threats

TORONTO (CP) — A telephone caller who said he spoke for a group called the Prisoners Revolutionary Army has threatened a campaign of killing of prison wardens and guards to bring about prison reform.



The man called The Globe and Mail newsroom late Wednesday and read a statement saying that Ottawa has 10 days from the murder Tuesday of Michel Roy, warden of Archambault institute in Montreal, to make public 65 recommendations of a Commons subcommittee on prisons.

The caller appeared unaware that the recommendations were made public last June and many have been implemented already.

He said there will be further retaliation if his demand was not met.

"There will be no prison director or correctional officer safe."

Roy was shot dead while he was clearing snow outside his Montreal home "on the decision" of the group, the caller said but did not say whether the group was responsible for the actual killing.

The man, who insisted that his statement be tape-recorded, refused to identify himself or give any information that might authenticate his message.

"The only way I can authenticate this is to wait 10 days."

"There'll be other ways of authenticating it, you can rest assured about that."

The statement said that members of the Prisoners Revolutionary Army "have experienced, along with their brothers, the brutal force and utter futility which now exists in the Canadian Penitentiary Service."

Michel Le Corre, Quebec regional director of the Canadian Penitentiary Service, said "80 or 90 per cent of those recommendations are already in effect anyway," and they had either already been made public or soon would be.

Meanwhile, in the Commons, Opposition MPs called for a revival of capital punishment and emergency measures to protect police and prison staff.

Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais rejected a return to hanging, abolished by Parliament in 1976. He added his department is doing all possible to help authorities pursue "the people responsible for this inexcusable act, this brutal act."

2 Cars, 2 Plates . . .One Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — Insurance Corp. of British Columbia (ICBC) officials said Wednesday they are being defrauded by some two-car families that split licence plates and insurance between both cars.

Officials said they cannot estimate the extent of the fraud.

R. J. Whitlock, superintendent of motor vehicles for the province, said the extent of the problem varies by municipality and is related to the consistency with which police stop cars with only one plate.

In B.C., auto insurance is bought from the government which also licenses vehicles. Decals affixed to each of the two licence plates on each car show licence and insurance is paid up.

Some two-car families divide a set of licence plates between their vehicles, affixing a plate to the rear of each car, ICBC officials said. Insurance is bought for only one of the cars and one of the two ICBC insurance decals is put on each plate.

The fraud comes to light only if the driver of the uninsured, unregistered vehicle is stopped by police for having only one licence plate or if the automobile is involved in an accident and an insurance claim is filed.

If the car is in an accident, the single-plate driver will usually settle any claim himself.

A $15 fine applies to drivers whose cars bear only one licence plate and an additional $15 fine is levied if the car is unregistered.

Owners of cars with one or more plates not registered to that vehicle are subject to a $250 fine while the driver of an uninsured car is liable to a minimum fine of $250 or three months imprisonment or both.

MARINA SUES SOCRED MLA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Maple Bay Marina and Shipyard Ltd. Wednesday started a British Columbia Supreme Court action against Coquitlam Social Credit MLA George Kerster for $9,172.

The Duncan marina claims this amount represents the unpaid cost of repairs made between March and September, 1976 to Kerster's 26-foot pleasure cruiser.

MAN NABBED INSIDE BANK

City police said this afternoon they probably will charge a man with attempted robbery of a downtown bank during the lunch hour.

The would-be robber was still on the premises of the Douglas-Yates branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia when police responded to an alarm.

Soviet Spies Expelled

OTTAWA (CP) — Eleven Soviet officials have been ordered to leave Canada for attempting to recruit a high RCMP officer in spy activities, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said today.

The minister said in the Commons that two more Soviet officials, now out of the country, will not be allowed to return to Canada.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander Yakovlev was told by the external affairs department earlier today that the 11 Soviet officials still in the country must leave immediately, the external affairs minister said.

The Soviet ambassador was told that these officials were being expelled for "engaging in inadmissible activities in violation of the Official Secrets Act" and their diplomatic status.

He said the Soviet spy effort was of "serious concern to the government."

The minister said the high RCMP officer was paid $30,500 for information of "no consequence," indicating the importance the Soviets placed on the spy effort.

The RCMP officer, who had previous contact with Soviet officials at an earlier time, had been offered "an unlimited amount of money" to spy for the Soviet Union, Jamieson said.

The Soviet spy activity in Canada had included microfilm and messages passed in cigarette packs contained in a hollowed-out stick, the minister said.

The Soviet officials involved are: Igor Vartanian, first-secretary responsible for sports and cultural affairs at the Soviet embassy; Nikolai Talanov, counsellor; Anatoly Mikhalin, Soviet Foreign Trade Office official; Vadin Borishpolets, attache; Vladimir Souvorov, second secretary.

Vladimir Oshkaderov, translator at the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) in Montreal; Yevgeniy Koblov, Soviet embassy clerk; Gennad Ivashavitch, third secretary; Oleg Reztsov, attache; Vera Reztsov, library employee in the embassy; Petr Lillenurm, second secretary; Voldemar Veber, embassy official who returned to the Soviet Union in July, 1977; and Andrei Krysin, a Soviet Foreign Trade Offfice official, returned to the Soviet Union in December, 1977.

The biggest previous spy roundup was during the 1940s when Russian cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko gave evidence of a Soviet spy network to the RCMP. Nine people were later convicted and nine acquitted on spy charges.

600 B.C. TEL WORKERS demonstrate outside the company's downtown offices in Vancouver Wednesday. They were objecting to the company's stand over return-to-work negotiations.

Tel Workers Asked To Come Back Now

The B.C. Telephone Co. today invited its 10,000 employees, who have been off the job since Nov. 24, to begin returning to work immediately on a gradual basis.

Company chairman Gordon MacFarlane said it will take about five days to get all of the workers back to work.

The offer appears to be one the Telecommunications Workers Union can't meet as it is not likely the employees will go back on the job prior to completion of ratification votes on a tentative three-year agreement.

Voting on the contract began Wednesday night and is expected to take three days, meaning the earliest the employees could report for work would be Monday.

Union spokesmen were not available for comment on the latest development.

Prior to MacFarlane's statement, the company's position had been that there would have to be a phased-in return to work over a nine-day period.

The union said it wanted all its members to return as soon as the ratification voting is completed and said the employees will definitely report for work Monday morning.

MacFarlane said it is impossible for B.C. Tel to bring the employees back in a single day.

"Our supervisors have to be able to return to their normal jobs and employees assigned in an orderly way that assures no interruption in service to the public," he said.

But he said there is no reason why the employees have to wait until Monday to return and some, like traffic operators, could come back immediately "thus freeing supervisors for the earliest possible return of others.

"In fact, if the return to work starts immediately, most employees could be on the job by Monday."

A company spokesman had said earlier that about 250 supervisors whose home base is the company office in the Vancouver area are scattered around the province filling in for the striking or locked-out employees.

He said it would take time to get them back in order to assign work to the returning employees.

Both sides reached tentative agreement on a three-year contract, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1977.

However, negotiators reached an impasse on the return-to-work issue after meeting with federal mediator Mike Collins for five days.

The union sees the company's return-to-work proposal as a repeat of the situation following a strike in 1969 when there was a 14-day

POSTAL HIJINKS SHOW ON FILM

FOREST, Ont. (CP) — Photographs of playful persons at a postal sorting station appeared on a film sent through the mail from Vancouver to this community, about 20 kilometres northeast of Sarnia.

The owner of the camera said he had loaned it to his sister in Vancouver. She wrapped the camera, which had a half-exposed roll of film inside, and mailed it back to her brother.

After the film was processed, the man said, he was puzzled by seven of the pictures, including one of a woman sticking out her tongue.

The man, who asked not to be identified, said he eventually discovered that the seven pictures were not taken by his sister.

"I certainly recognized the inside of the post office," he said.

The man said that workers in a postal-sorting station must have unwrapped the camera, taken pictures, then sent it on.

The man's sister said in a telephone interview she is annoyed that there appears to be so little regard by postal workers about the confidentiality of what is entrusted to them in the mail.

Her brother said he did not send the photos to the postmaster in Vancouver because he thought it was an isolated incident until he began reading newspaper stories about abuse of parcels by postal workers.

He said he did not want his name used because he has no complaints about postal workers in Forest and does not want his comments regarded as an attack on them.

Blizzard conditions closed schools and secondary roads throughout eastern Alberta Wednesday while in the province's south a county hospital sought emergency help to cope with the storm.

Officials at Bow Island Hospital in Forty-Mile County near Lethbridge asked Alberta disaster services to supply snowmobiles with sleds to carry doctors to emergencies and patients to hospitals.

RCMP officials advised motorists to stay off major highways between Calgary and Edmonton because of drifting snow and near-zero visibility.

In areas southeast of Red Deer, full blizzard conditions — driving winds, six centimetres of snow, heavy drifting and zero visibility — prevailed.

Rail transportation in and out of Edmonton was curbed by the storm. The Canadian National rail liner to Calgary was cancelled Wednesday. The Edmonton train from Drumheller was also cancelled.

Calgary buses to Saskatoon were not running and bus service was halted in the Medicine Hat area.

In St. John's Nfld., bare pavement was showing on most downtown streets today after a 24-hour snowfall of 36 centimetres but schools remained closed and most businesses planned not to open until noon.

A storm with winds gusting to 80 kilometres an hour that brought the snow was moving out into the North Atlantic.

In the U.S., Texas, Oklahoma and the Pacific Coast, still recovering from previous storms, were hit with new waves of foul weather today.

The U.S. Northeast, however, expected a full day of sunshine as it dug out from Monday's blizzard.

Oklahoma residents were plowing through 10 to 15 centimetres of snow Wednesday when the first flurries of another storm began to fall. Up to 25 centimetres could accumulate today.

RUGBY CHALLENGE BOLSTERS UNITY?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Surrey Beavers Rugby Club stole the show at a public forum of the Task Force on Canadian Unity Wednesday with a challenge to any Quebec rugby football team to a contest on the Plains of Abraham to be followed by a beer-drinking championship.

Club spokesman Gordon Stewart admitted to a laughing forum audience of about 450 that "whether we win, lose or draw, we really haven't been able to figure out how we will translate victory, loss or equality into constitutional changes, so, we'll forget about them."

The Beavers' presentation was one of the more emotional submissions made to the task force. Details on Page 40.

16 in Saanich Salvage Scrounging

Saanich police investigations into salvage materials being taken from municipal projects have indicated 16 employees of the public works department have been engaged in the practice for four years.

The investigations have also shown that some of the materials taken have been sold to local firms, Ald. David Paterson said today.

But Paterson, chairman of the finance committee, said unless the continuing investigations unearth grounds for action, he does not believe police will lay charges.

He said the actions of the employees involved were "incorrect" rather than illegal, because they were simply continuing what was apparently an accepted practice in the department over a period of at least 10 years.

Mayor Mel Couvelier declined to comment on the situation today, saying it would be difficult and also dangerous to do so until the investigation has been completed.

"The ramifications are not yet determined," he added.

Police investigation so far has indicated that over the four-year period the sum involved was about $7,400, Paterson said.

Most of what Couvelier has termed the "irregularities" have shown up in the waterworks division, involving pipe and other fittings that have been dug up and replaced with new materials.

Under normal circumstances these salvaged items would be collected and, when a bulk quantity was available, the municipal purchasing agent would call for bids from salvage operators.

"But over the years it has apparently been the custom in the yard for the employees to salvage as much as they could individually and dispose of it on an individual basis," Paterson said.

"It's not that they are all full of larceny, running and ripping off the municipality. When they started it was one of the things that was done and no one questioned it."

No one, until one former employee exposed the practice.

"Apparently he didn't like what was going on and didn't participate in it," Paterson continued. "Now he has brought it to the attention of the administrative staff and the investigation is under way."

He said some Victoria-area firms have been co-operating in the investigation and have supplied police with a total of 34 invoices. Of these, 16 over a four-year period have been linked with individual employees.

Religious 'Nut' L.A. Killer?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A religious part-time actor first described by police as "just another nut" has been arrested for investigation of the murders of 12 women, the victims of the Hillside Strangler.

Police said Ned Terrence York, 37, was arrested Wednesday after telephoning police and claiming responsibility for the killings in a lengthy, rambling call.

William Booth, a police commander, refused to call York's statements a confession, saying the man was "probably suffering from exhaustion." Booth said police had serious doubts about his story.

"But then he began to talk," said Lt. Dan Cooke, a public information officer for the department.

However, Cooke said that if police do not have enough evidence to charge York formally by Friday, he will probably be released.

Miss Weckler's death has been particularly puzzling to the special unit set up to investigate the Hillside Strangler case. The 20-year-old art student was not connected with the Hollywood street scene, as were most of the other victims. She lived in a quiet Glendale courtyard apartment selected for her by her parents, and neighbors said she seldom had visitors.

Her nude, strangled body was found Nov. 20 on a hillside near her home. The Hillside Strangler tag was created after strangled women, many of them nude and raped, began turning up on hillsides in the surburban Los Angeles area.

The balding, 6-foot-4, 240-pound York, whom neighbors described as "a normal man, a nice person," was taken from his home wearing only underwear. His arm was in a sling, the result of a fight with his dog, he said.

The personalized licence plate on York's yellow Volkswagen is RE 3:20, an apparent reference to the biblical passage Revelation 3:20. The license plate holder on York's car states, "Read the Bible," and a bumper sticker reads, "Peace with Christ."

B. P. Maddox, pastor of the First Southern Baptist Church, said York was a member of a religious cult called Children of God, which he said practiced "sexual divergences which do not go along with the Christian norm." However, friends said York has not been a member of Children of God for at least five years.

phase-in. The TWU says the company used this as a method of punishing the more active union members by keeping them off the job until the very end.

Company spokesman Keith Mathews said today the union's charge is ridiculous.

"It wasn't the reason for the phase-in in 1969 and it isn't the reason this time," he said.

The TWU's return-to-work proposal assumes that the union members will accept the tentative agreement, which was based on the recommendations of B.C. Supreme Court Judge Henry Hutcheon, but union officials don't foresee any problems.

"Our people will return to work," TWU president Bob Donnelly said. "Any ramifications that flow from that will be dealt with as they happen."

The union is advising its members to report to work on the shifts they left 13 weeks ago.

The tentative agreement calls for wage increases of six, four and six per cent over the three years.

The workers will get retroactive pay of $3.38 a day for the 10 months worked in 1977 and an additional wage increase of $2.40 an hour on return to work. Base rates ranged from $6.42 an hour to $9.75 under the old contract.

The major issue, contracting-out, was resolved when both parties agreed the matter should be turned over to a joint union-management committee headed by an independent chairman with the authority to arbitrate a decision.

Talks aimed at finding terms to guide the return to work came to an impasse Tuesday.

SEIZED JUDGE TIED TO TREE

LYON, France (AP) — Police found Judge Noel Daix bound to a tree in the woods early today. The 54-year-old judge told them he had been tied there for more than 12 hours.

The judge, who was kidnapped by four masked men Monday night, "was frozen, very exhausted and in shock," Police Chief Roger Chaix said.

"He was in no shape to explain what had happened and could only say he had been there since morning."

The police said there had been no demand for ransom and no negotiations with the kidnappers.

Until recently, he had been an examining magistrate, supervising investigations of persons who had been arrested and assessing the evidence to determine whether it was sufficient for conviction. But the police said he had not handled any major cases recently.

The police chief said he had been "roughly handled, treated without care and not given food since Monday night." His mouth was covered with adhesive tape, his wrists were handcuffed and he was wearing the same clothes he had on when he was abducted on his way home from grocery shopping.

Power Outage

Residents in East Sooke and Becher Bay went without power for six hours Wednesday night after strong winds blew a tree down on a B.C. Hydro line. A Hydro spokesman said power was out from 7:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. The tree knocked over a pole and five spans in the Cooper's Cove area.

Glazier-Wolfe Tax Meeting

Victoria Ald. Murray Glazier will meet Finance Minister Evan Wolfe Friday to discuss city-proposed changes to the government's Assessment Act.

City council has endorsed Glazier's request that the act be amended to remove apartments from the same category as single-family duplexes and condominiums, and assess them as commercial properties.

Glazier says that under the current system unacceptable tax pressures are placed on single-family and duplex housing while apartment blocks are enjoying an unfair tax reduction.

Glazier and Mayor Mike Young approached cabinet last week to complain about the tax inequities they say exist.

Glazier said that he was encouraged that Wolfe would call him for a meeting so soon after hearing the initial complaints.

"I think it's indicative that he's willing to make refinements," said Glazier.

McGeer, McLintock On Panel

Education Minister Pat McGeer and Victoria Times editor Barbara McLintock will be two of the featured speakers at a University of Victoria conference Friday that will focus on the education and employment of youth.

A background paper for the conference has been prepared on the subject by UVic's director of counselling service, Dr. H.D. Birch.

Participating in discussions will be 70 representatives from federal and provincial governments, universities, colleges, business, labor, industry and the news media.

The conference will be a day-long event.

Scrap Sales 'Incorrect'

Paterson for comment after receiving information that the situation involving misuse of salvage materials is more serious than has been indicated to date by Couvelier, who announced the investigation earlier this week.

Paterson admitted someone has suggested to him that the facts disclosed to date represent only the tip of the iceberg, but he said he is disinclined to believe that.

He would be "very surprised" if the total of the materials involved proved to be more than $10,000.

"It is not one of the things we as a council are going to get really excited about," he said, because the small-scale taking of items for personal use is a practice found in almost every place of employment.

Employees of Victoria Press Ltd. or the school board, for example, probably take pencils and items of stationery for their own use from time to time.

Procedures can be established to control the problem, Paterson said, but in many cases the cost of setting up such an administrative machinery far exceeds the original sum lost.

In the case of the Saanich municipal yard it is questionable whether the taking of materials was illegal because the practice was at least tacitly condoned by certain officials, he said.

"But the individuals knew that what they were doing was not entirely correct.

"The firms who have bought the materials probably knew they were buying it incorrectly as well."

'Pierre's Pub' Has MPs Frothing

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs rose in wrath Wednesday against Liberal party plans to turn the Parliament Buildings into what one called "Trudeau's tavern," a bar and dance hall for as many as 4,000 Liberals attending a Feb. 24 convention.

Commons Speaker James Jerome conceded that the bash "may have grown to a dimension" he hadn't anticipated when he approved it and said he will hold private talks with party spokesmen to see if a compromise can be worked out.

His comments came at the end of an hour of heated debate over the plan to install 26 bars and three bands in the historic buildings for convention party-goers.

Walter Baker (PC—Grenville-Carleton) called it another example of Liberals wanting to "wallow in the public trough." Leonard Jones (Ind—Moncton) said government MPs should be "bloody well ashamed of themselves." Bob Brisco (PC—Kootenay West) said the plan made him "highly indignant."

Liberal MP Peter Stollery (Spadina), defending the plan, said all parties should be able to invite Canadians to the Hill.

No social event of such a size and nature has ever been held in the buildings, and organizers told The Canadian Press last week that the Liberals may end up "straining the facilities a bit."

Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) told the Commons they shouldn't even be allowed to try.

FOOD INCREASE TAPERING SEEN

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the federal department of agriculture says the rate of food price increases will diminish toward the end of 1978.

However, price increases will probably be 12 to 15 per cent higher in the first three months of 1978, R. G. Marshall of the economics branch of the department told an economics outlook conference.

He said beef and pork prices are high and only slight increases can be expected later in 1978.

If the weather is better this year, the price of fresh fruit and vegetables also will decrease, he said.

Marshall said current food costs are high because the price of fresh fruit and vegetables increased 40 per cent between December, 1976, and December, 1977, and the price of meat rose almost 23 per cent in that period.

Commons Furore On Vote Timing

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and opposition MPs baited one another in the Commons Wednesday over the timing of the next federal election.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) asked Trudeau during questioning over economic policies to indicate "if he cannot screw up his courage to call a general election, if we can expect a new budget?"

Trudeau shot back that it is going to become fashionable for opposition MPs to "stand up and beat their chests and say: 'We want an election.'"

The prime minister said there was no such cry several months ago, referring to a commanding lead held by the Liberals over the Conservatives in popularity polls.

He challenged the Conservatives to say if they wanted an election before the proposed pipeline legislation is passed by the Commons.

"If they want to have an election before, let them say so."

The government wants the pipeline bill passed as soon as possible to speed planning of the massive $10 billion project to carry natural gas from the North to southern markets.

Amid shouts of "right now" from his colleagues, McGraw asked on behalf of the more than one million unemployed Canadians "if he does not have the guts to bring in a budget, does he have the guts to call an election?"

Recent polls have shown the Conservatives have made up much of the ground lost to the Liberals.

Conservatives hooted back "Let's get on with it now Pierre," and "why wait for spring, do it now."

The election is expected by many in the spring although the government has until July of next year before it must go to the people.

A PRIME VINTAGE

FARNBOROUGH, England (Reuter) — A 48-year old Rolls-Royce, which has never been serviced or left out in the rain, was bought by a London dealer for about $72,000 at an auction here Wednesday.

The white vintage car, which has been driven less than 32,000 kilometres, has been used almost exclusively to carry royalty and celebrities around the Mediterranean island of Malta.

Bought in 1930 by Malta's Torregiani shipping and banking family, the immaculate car had its first contact with wet weather when it was backed out of the auction hall into flurries of snow Wednesday.

The dealer, Adrian Hamilton, said he has no buyer for the car at the moment.

Payment Bid On Satellite

OTTAWA (CP) — The government took a cautious first step toward possible demands for compensation from the Soviet Union Wednesday by officially informing it that Canada believes it has found parts of the satellite Cosmos 954 that crashed in the Northwest Territories last month.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson tabled letters to the Soviet Union and United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim but refused to say whether Canada will seek the more than $1 million the search for Cosmos fragments has cost so far.

The letter to the Soviet Union said: "The Canadian government reserves all its rights in international law on the matter of liability and compensation in relation to this incident.

"The Canadian government will be raising this matter separately with the government of the Soviet Union in due course."

Jamieson said he is complying with terms of international conventions in officially informing the Soviet Union and the UN that six fragments, some radioactive, have been found in the Fort Reliance and Warden's Grove areas of the territories.

The letter to the Soviet Union, handed the ambassador here, said debris found so far is believed to be component parts of Cosmos, which plunged to earth Jan. 24.

"Some of these component parts were found to be radioactive.

"In the light of risk hazards to persons and property in Canada, the Canadian authorities have carried out a comprehensive air and ground search for these parts and the search for additional parts is continuing. . . ."

The note to the UN said much the same thing without references to compensation.

The notes were delivered in compliance with UN outer space conventions which say that if certain procedures are followed the owner of a satellite that falls on a country must pay costs of recovery and return of it.

Defecting Troupe A Poser

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Bud Cullen said Wednesday eight black members of a South African theatre company are seeking political asylum in Canada, posing a tough problem for immigration officials.

Cullen was commenting a few hours after the eight members of the 19-member Jabula Players went to a federal immigration office in Toronto, saying they want to stay in Canada because they fear reprisals from the South African government for political overtones in a show they performed in Toronto.

A Toronto immigration official said the South Africans will make a formal appeal, probably for refugee status, to immigration authorities in the next couple of weeks.

Cullen said the immigration officials have a tough decision to make as they always do in cases where individuals not regarded as refugees when they come for a visit to Canada seek asylum after "taking advantage of our freedom of speech and unloading on the government back home."

An immigration department spokesman who asked not to be identified said the government "probably will take a pretty sympathetic view of this thing."

Unsettling Allegations

The allegations made in recent days concerning the handling of liquor in the government's liquor distribution branch are so serious that they cry out for an inquiry. The sooner Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair sets one up, the better.

Moreover, it should be a public inquiry so that the citizens of B.C. either will know that the problems have been cleared up or will be satisfied there was no basis to the charges.

Suspicions first were raised when Keith Warnes, head of the liquor distribution branch for the past several years, left his job, allegedly as a result of a dispute with deputy minister Tex Enemark over security at the Vancouver warehouse. That in itself was strange, but even stranger was the fact that the next happening was the arrival on the scene of the police to take a look at things. Just what they found hasn't yet been made public.

The final straw was the allegations made by an ex-employee of the branch to a Vancouver newspaper. The ex-employee stated that staff were regularly stealing liquor from the warehouse (by the case-load and usually the finest wines, whiskies and brandies), that staff had drinking parties with the government's alcohol, and that liquor companies regularly gave the staff gifts of their products to encourage them to allow the products to be listed in B.C. liquor stores.

Warnes, naturally enough, denies all these tales of wrongdoing. Unfortunately, that means little since (a) any employees engaging in such nefarious activities are likely to take steps to ensure their boss doesn't know about them, and (b) even if Warnes did have suspicions, he would be unlikely to make them public since that would reflect badly on the branch's entire management and staff.

Another curious possible explanation is Warnes' suggestion that the allegations could have come from an employee "who misunderstood what he saw." In that there is an implication that there was something to be seen that was, at best, confusing.

For example, the so-called drinking sessions might have been really "product information seminars" at which employees were sampling products that manufacturers wanted to list. And people loading liquor into cars might really just have been transporting it to a different liquor outlet for sampling.

And if my aunt were built differently, she'd be my uncle. It would have to be a dim employee indeed who couldn't tell the difference between shipping liquor out to various outlets (the normal business of a warehouse, for goodness sake) and wholesale theft.

Warnes also suggests that the allegations could have come from a disgruntled former employee using this method of getting back at his former bosses. That is, of course, a possibility — but at the moment there's no way to prove or disprove it. The action of the ex-employee in giving his information to Enemark as well as to the media, however, speaks well for his sincerity.

It is interesting as well to note that Enemark did not deny the allegations. He said simply, "No comment" — which may well imply that he is taking them seriously.

But it now is too late for an internal investigation to be enough. The public has the right to know what is going on in that government department, to know the truth — or otherwise — of the allegations. Only a public inquiry with all witnesses under oath can now satisfy that right.

"... take two aspirins and call me in the morning..."

Boats and the Law

After the second stolen boat incident in local waters in a few months, suggestions that local police forces be equipped with their own boats have again been renewed. It is only commom sense in a region surrounded on three and a half sides by salt water, where probably several thousand small pleasure boats are in use most of the year, for municipal police to have a "marine complement."

The last time police were called upon to deal with seagoing lawbreakers, in Oak Bay, they had to borrow a small dinghy from a home on land nearest the stolen boat — not the safest thing to do in Victoria winter weather, at night.

The city of Vancouver's police department has a patrol boat, the RCMP have several small craft which police inland and coastal waters. Shouldn't the police in British Columbia's capital be so equipped as well?

That seems to be the simplest solution to a pressing need. But chasing renegade boaters and marine-based thieves should be looked at as part of a much larger picture. Such incidents as made headlines recently were almost as much search and rescue problems as items for the police blotter.

And as anyone even slightly familiar with the matter could tell Ottawa, B.C.'s search and rescue capabilities lag behind its requirements.

Clearly, the larger issues here cannot be resolved simply by buying for the local police a couple of high-powered outboards. This is a problem out at the edges of jurisdiction of municipal, provincial and federal governments. None of them is solely responsible, so where there should be a single unified authority there is a fragmentation of responsibilities which sometimes overlap but more often overlook some areas.

The B.C. government is involved: at the last election Social Credit promised to establish a "B.C. Marine Patrol to assist boaters" but that has not gotten beyond the paper it was printed on. There is undoubtedly a need for such a force — the network of provincial marine parks has been expanded greatly and is under increasing pressure, by both B.C. residents and increasing hordes of boaters fleeing the crowded waters of Puget Sound; there are more and more sports fishermen hitting the salt chuck each year; population growth in the Gulf Islands and in coastal communities fronting on Georgia Strait increases the numbers of small boats in B.C. waters.

A unified marine patrol that would take over some search and rescue functions from the military, law enforcement duties from the police and environmental protection responsibilities from provincial and federal departments would make a lot of sense.

Mockery of Lord

I would like to thank Rev. E. A. Follows for his letter of Jan. 27 entitled Boycott Godspell.

It is hard to imagine how such mockery of our Lord and Savior could be shown at any theatre. A shame this letter was printed too late for those who must wish they had not attended it. However, it shall serve as a warning for these type of plays in the future, which are so prevalent in our society today.

For those who participated in the showing of Godspell, I would suggest they read Gal. 6:7. — Mrs. Vera Paterson, 3730 Savannah Street.

Teapot Tempest

The recent tempest in a teapot over a position with ICBC offered to an American citizen does deserve a few words of comment.

What would happen if the people of the U.S. would take the same attitude of some narrow-minded Canadians? It is almost too easy to figure it out: thousands of Canadians now working south of the border would have to pack up and come home, inflating the ranks of the unemployed; other Canadians hoping for jobs in the U.S. would stumble into closed doors.

Probably the NHL would collapse unless players could be recruited in sufficient numbers from Sweden, Finland and other countries. Probably some Canadian scientists working on the space program would lose a golden opportunity to develop their talent and apply their knowledge with the advantages of technology not yet available in our country.

We should try to acquire a broader outlook and avoid parochial thinking which, in the last analysis, may hurt ourselves one way or another. Are we so ready to deceive ouselves, to ignore the number of our fellow citizens (musicians, writers, singers, etc.) who have found fame and fortune in the United States? — E. J. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

Ride Needed

We wonder if there is someone who regularly comes to town on a Monday from Admirals Road who would give a blind person a lift to the CNIB, 1609 Blanshard Street, about 1:30 p.m. It would be much appreciated.

We are also looking for occasional drivers who would take a blind person to and from a doctor's appointment. Anyone interested please ring our volunteer co-ordinator. — Secretary, Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 1609 Blanshard Street.

Strike Votes

Thanks to Labor Minister Allan Williams for his government's intent to supervise strike and lockout votes.

Strikes undermine our economy and increase inflation. Most card-carrying union members do not want strikes, strikes that leave them without a paycheck and undermine their personal economies.

Now union members can vote the way they believe without fear of union reprisal.

Naturally union leaders are going to be indignant; what union leader wants to be accused of being democratic? — C. S. Vickery, 3772 Tillicum Road.

Hythe Homecoming

Residents of the community of Hythe, Alta., about 60 kilometres east of Dawson Creek, B.C., are planning to welcome home former residents of the district in a three-day homecoming weekend, scheduled for July 14-16.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the incorporation of the village, an active farming community on Highway Two. Numerous events are still being planned.

Persons planning to visit Hythe to write to: Homecoming Committee, Hythe, Alta. Advance registration will permit organizers to estimate attendance at the various functions now being planned. Registration forms are also available through R. G. Baxter, 10227 125A Street, Surrey, B.C. or by phoning 584-0479 or 936-4052 in the Lower Mainland. — Hythe Homecoming Committee, Hythe, Alberta.

Bus Passes

In November, 1976 I inquired about the possibility of bus passes being instituted by B.C. Hydro. Chairman Robert Bonner replied: "This matter is under study, but it was felt inopportune to deal with this possibility concurrently with fare adjustments. The practicality of introducing passes will be reviewed in the New Year."

It is now 1978 and the travelling public has still not been accommodated. I can think of only two possible reasons: The matter has not been reviewed or the idea has been rejected. It seems unbelievable that the latter could be the case as passes would be an incentive for more people to use public transport — an idea which appeals to B.C. Hydro if we are to believe their advertising campaign.

Therefore, I can only conclude that the question has not been reconsidered. I urge Hydro to get this system going. It seems to be more than feasible in other cities and would be a boon to those of us who have supported B.C. Hydro buses in spite of the fact that we are still one shoulder low from packing around all the coins that are currently needed to ride the bus. — Ms. J. White, 223 - 948 Esquimalt Road.

Seal Facts

The Progressive Rights Organization (PRO) was formed last year as a result of a merger of different groups through Newfoundland who were concerned about the adverse publicity and its harmful effects on the sealers and the seal fishery of Newfoundland.

PRO feels that one of the chief ways to counter the half-truths and misinformation of the various "conservationists" spreading the adverse publicity is to present facts to readers who could then be armed and able to defend (and perhaps oppose) themselves against the "conservationists." There are many facts which can be obtained without charge by writing to PRO.

Here are some facts on conservation measures concerning the seal fishery:

The harp seal herd is one of the best-managed wildlife resources anywhere in the world. Because of the regulations governing the size of the harvest, it will continue to be a viable, renewable resource.

Scientists use a variety of methods to assess the size of the seal population. Normal techniques of population assessment for seals, as for other fish and wildlife species, depend upon sampling the catch to determine such factors as mortality rates and maturity and pregnancy rates. One recent technique is through the use of aerial ultraviolet photography. Using this method the white seal pups appear as black spots on a white background making them easy to count.

However, this technique is not foolproof. An incomplete survey in 1975 resulted in a suggestion that there were fewer seal pups than were actually harvested.

In 1977, however, a complete survey estimate at the "front" showed 204,000 pups, almost exactly the same as estimated by another much less expensive technique. Scientists, including those who conducted the aerial survey, did not recommend that it was necessary to repeat the survey in 1978.

In 1977 the quota for the Gulf of St. Lawrence (which had no hunt five years previously) and the "front" was set at 160,000. At the same time, a regulation was introduced restricting the harvest of adult female hood seals to less than 10 per cent of the total catch (7½ per cent in 1978). The prohibition against killing an adult harp seal on the breeding patches remained in force.

For 1978, there is a six per cent increase in the Total Allowable Catch (TAC). The current — but increasing — population of 1.25 million could sustain a catch of 227,000 to 245,000 without endangering the species, but to keep the herds growing at a fair rate ("fair rate" so as to not endanger the fish stocks and hence the seals) only ¾ of the sustainable yield is being taken. The TAC for 1978 is set at 180,000. Large numbers of supervisors ensure that this TAC is not exceeded. Unusual weather conditions may disallow reaching the quota. — Jeff Carter, Progressive Rights Organization, Whiteway, Nfld.

The Paint Box Punishment

By STUART UNDERHILL

Those summers of long ago all have a golden sheen: memories of cloudless days when the sky was so blue it seemed to throb, and the leaves barely stirred in the faint afternoon breeze. Even the sea was half asleep, too lazy to rattle the pebbles on the beach.

That's how it was when I was nine or 10 and my family and I spent the summer at Ten Mile Point. Everything was arranged by my Great-Aunt Margaret, who realized that my father's income (he being a country parson) did not yield much in the way of vacations.

A house at the point would be vacant while its owner took his family to England for the summer, a lengthy project in those days. Respectable tenants were required while they were absent. We supplied the respectability and Aunt Margaret paid the rent.

It was a big house, its style suggestive of the Elizabethan period, with leaded window panes and overhanging eaves and black beams against white plaster. It was surrounded by roses and hollyhocks and other fragrant flowers found in "English" gardens.

Smugglers' Cove

A broad lawn, flanked on either side by forest, ran to the edge of the sea. A point then projected for a hundred yards or so, forming a natural breakwater for a rocky beach.

We had no near neighbors that I recall and for an evening walk would stroll through silent woods to Smugglers' Cove, its quiet waters turning greeny black as the daylight faded. Gnarled oaks and mossy rock formations guided us in our comings and goings.

The days flowed by in rich tranquillity. The highlight of each was the afternoon swim. Precisely one hour after lunch we trooped across the lawn in our sagging blue cotton bathing suits, clasping towels, books and other impedimenta. (Everyone knew that one hour must elapse between eating and swimming, otherwise dreadful cramps dragged one down to a watery grave.)

While the others spread themselves on the beach Dad and I swam off the point. He had trophies to prove his youthful prowess as a swimmer and still executed a vigorous side stroke which I emulated. He was indifferent to cold water and would float for long periods on his back, his trim white beard jutting up at the sun, his 10 white toes rigidly at attention.

The point was a paradise for a scrambling boy and I spent trackless hours there, exploring pools that had been left by the ebb tide. There were sea anemones that shrank in upon themselves when a toe was advanced toward them and starfish spread-eagled on the rocks and little crabs which scuttled with their houses on their backs.

Along the shore was another delight: a cave overhung by rocks, its entrance framed by the roots of a giant arbutus. There I could be a pirate or an Indian or just a small boy soaking in the sights and smells around him.

It was natural for a boy to want to light a fire there. One morning I purloined a few matches from the big box beside the kitchen range. Dry bark and twigs from the beach provided the kindling and I soon had a merry blaze. I squatted beside it mesmerized.

Those jolly little flames paid no attention to me. They were in a hurry to be off. They whisked through the dry leaves on the floor of the cave and went streaking up the bleached grass on the rock face as if racing to get to the woods.

I knew what to do when overwhelmed by disaster. I fled toward the house, yelling: "Dad! Daddy!"

Between the garden hose which he quickly got into action and buckets of sea water my brother lugged up from the beach, the fire was soon under control. But in my imagination it still raged, devouring the Garry oaks and then the house, with my family trapped inside.

Now the questions began. How did it start? Or more precisely, who started it?

Saw a Man . . .

I took a deep breath. "Well, I saw this man coming along the beach, and he stopped just there to light his pipe. Well, he seemed to have trouble. He used a lot of matches and I guess he just tossed one into the grass and . . ."

Mother and Dad exchanged one of their "there he goes again" looks. My brother was sent out on the point to see if he could spot a trudging stranger but no one really expected he would be found.

"You'd better go to your room, son," Dad told me. "We'll talk about it after lunch."

That meant no lunch for me, it being considered that missed meals encouraged contrition. It wasn't as bad as it sounded since my big sister usually smuggled me some snack. Even so I was chagrined while leaning from my bedroom window (no doubt plotting an escape route) to see Aunt Margaret's Packard creeping up the driveway.

When she and Uncle Billy came to lunch they always brought some treat not normally on our menu. I listened anxiously to the voices downstairs, wondering if they would reprieve me, the way visiting dignitaries ask for schoolboys to be given a half-holiday.

But no, the rotten pigs went in to lunch and I was left to brood on my unhappy fate. How would I be punished? Was this offence more heinous than when Mother caught me filching pennies from the tin box in the kitchen where she hoarded them? That drew two weeks' gating, confined to the rectory grounds in the after-school hours sacred to play. Or would I escape with a whacking like Dad once gave me when he overheard me being rude to Mother?

These gloomy thoughts at last were interrupted by the brisk voice of Aunt Margaret calling me from the foot of the stairs. A subdued grandnephew stole down to ask her bidding.

"I'm going out on the point to paint. Will you carry my things?" she said when I presented my doleful face. "Look sharp, now."

Aunt Margaret gave commands like that and they usually led to such interesting experiences that I jumped to obey them. Within minutes we were crossing the lawn. She marched in front, the broad brim of her finely-woven straw hat wobbling with each step. A scarf of filmy grey material which matched her dress was wound around its crown.

I stumbled along behind with her stool and easel and the satchel containing her painting things. I was an old hand at these expeditions and once she had chosen a spot it took only a moment to get her settled.

Jumped to Obey

But oh dear, why did she choose as her subject the stretch of shoreline that still bore the black scars of the morning's misadventure.?

As I knelt to watch her work I decided not to broach the subject. Neither did she. In fact, she said nothing at all, which was strange, since she usually maintained a running explanation of what she was doing.

Soon I was completely absorbed as the scene was recreated by the deft strokes of her brush. then she did a strange thing. She took up a jar of clean water and soaked a rag in it, really soaked it, dunking it up and down. Then with a sudden movement she smeared it across the painting, leaving a blurred mess where beach and trees had been making their appearance.

If she had picked up a rock and brought it down on my head she could not have shocked me more. "Aunt Margaret!" I cried in real pain.

I cannot tell you whether the eyes that glinted from under that floppy hat-brim were those of an eagle or a lizard, or whether her smile was kind or cruel. But I remember her words.

"That's what you did, isn't it?" she said.

By CLAUDE ADAMS

(Adams is Washington correspondent for the Montreal Star and has a home in the satellite suburb of Reston, Va., which has been called one of North America's 15 finest places to live. He doesn't seem so sure)

"If this is the best of all possible worlds, what then are the others?"
—Voltaire

WASHINGTON — We are riding back to our cluster.

Some of us sleep open-mouthed in our seats, newspapers scattered over laps. Others read by the pale light.

A few peer out into the dusk, occasionally sipping from beer and cocktail mixes in paper bags.

We are being shuttled, by commuter bus, home to suburbia. Out of purgatory after eight hours, we race toward limbo.

It is a physically pleasing place we are riding to, not your average Levittown with its identical homes and postage-stamp lawns, but a satellite town with character.

Reston, Va.

Better Homes and Gardens calls it one of North America's 15 finest places to live.

Only a dozen years old, it is home to bureaucrats and intelligence officers and writers and high-profile professional athletes and architects and doctors.

Commuter's Coma

It is a suburb that celebrates leisure and grace. It is eclectic, a designer's playground. It is green. It breathes. Even the concrete is becoming.

Reston.

See our faces in the coach. Classic studies in repose. We are not unhappy, not happy; in a third state of consciousness: Commuter's coma.

The lights of Washington recede from view. We are on the George Washington Parkway.

My companion shifts in his seat, groans and resumes his mild snoring. I fight sleep by reading a newspaper editorial. But, as always, I too doze off in the cocoon warmth of the bus. In midsentence.

We awaken as the bus enters Reston. We pass townhouse clusters and golf courses and rolling lawns and manmade lakes.

We pass an avenue called Sunrise Hill and turn on to another called Sunset Valley.

We pass the Terraset school, an award-winning design with its roof grid of solar reflectors.

At my stop, I say "good night" to the driver and he says "good night" to me. We are utter strangers.

As I disembark, I am immediately struck by the early-evening stillness. Nothing moves. Not a sound.

This is Waterview Cluster, the archetypal Elm Street and Oak Road and Poplar Lane of every bedroom suburb of every major city in North America.

That is the way it is.

A shopping cart emblazoned with a capital S sits in the driveway. It is offensively assymetrical. It flouts a local bylaw. I leave it there. Tomorrow it will be gone. Someone will come during the night and take it back to the supermarket, quietly.

Near it, two plastic garbage bags rest against one another, securely tied. They will be collected in the morning, precisely at sunrise.

Frost covers the patio table. Tonight, I will coax a fire out of the oak logs we bought, foolishly, from the woman in the old pickup truck who told us the people who lived in the house before us, and the people before them, always bought a cord.

But I will have to turn the thermostat down to 62 to justify the fire.

My wife arrived home a half hour before me. She is putting Meredith's supper out. Meredith spends her days in a giant doll-house of a day-care centre, which has a "playground" on the roof. She is learning simple handicrafts. Today, she brought home an imprint of her hand in a piece of plaster.

I sit down to read the local paper. The headline reads: Cluster Power, Protection or Threat? The Hickory Cluster Association, it says, has ruled that all townhouse doors must henceforth be painted "greige" — a blend of grey and beige.

A small but heated debate has started. Some of the Hickory residents are grumbling about "fascism." But the majority are level-headed citizens. They recognize the importance of uniformity.

An association lawyer is quoted as saying: "Painting of homes benefits not only the home owners, but primarily others who look out their windows and see the freshly-painted buildings."

Soon, there will be a cluster meeting. There will be speeches, followed by a vote. Common sense will prevail. Hickory Cluster will be greige.

My eye is pulled to another headline: "Group Protests Changing Sambo's Name."

Not Many Blacks

A week ago, a group of concerned citizens had succeeded in their campaign to prevent the Sambo's Restaurant chain from using that name in a Reston franchise.

They said it was offensive to blacks. There are very few blacks in Reston.

The company backed down. It agreed to rename the restaurant Jolly Tiger. Now, a group calling itself the Grievance Action Group (GAG) has been formed to protest the name change.

They say such forced action will discourage future businesses from moving to Reston.

Any day now, a petitioner will be knocking at the door.

A newspaper notice tells of an upcoming Reston town meeting to vote on the architectural design of a new set of townhouses.

The citizens pride themselves on their sense of esthetics. There is no room here for shoddy workmanship.

'Model Town' of Newport Beach Harbor in California

A third headline is particularly intriguing. "Use Latex Paint on Trees," it says. Fruit trees, the story explains, are susceptible to what is commonly known as "southwest injury."

During the day, the sun shines on the tree trunks and heats the tree under the bark. At night, the temperature drop can be so sudden that the bark will crack.

But if the trunks are painted with white exterior paint, the sunlight will be reflected.

The article, unfortunately, does not address itself to the problem of whether white fruit trees would fit into the cluster color scheme.

My wife asks me to walk to the supermarket for a quart of milk. I don't mind; it's a pleasant stroll.

On the way, I pass a neighbor jogging around the lake in the dark. He gasps "hi" but doesn't stop. He has found his rhythm.

He jogs twice around the lake before supper every evening. He works in highway planning for the government. He once asked me to join him, but I know he prefers to run alone.

I walk along a path carefully marked with "Private Cluster Property" signs. The view from the little oriental-style curved bridge is stunning.

The bridge is popular with skateboarders on weekends, when nobody minds the noise.

The shopping mall is always a welcome sight. No brazen commercialism here. The boutiques are carefully arranged around a square, which overlooks Lake Anne.

There is a small joke here that you can sail into the shopping centre if you live across the lake.

Ultra-modern concrete art forms, all highly tasteful, are in the middle of the square.

A few youths are strolling around in the dim light, smoking and whispering. They all nod and say "hi" to strangers.

In the summer, they will rent paddle-boats on the lake and strum their guitars on the dock. On mild winter nights, they just loaf around. Once in a while, they get drunk and howl.

I buy some milk and return home for a Martini and supper. We put Meredith to bed and read the mail.

We have been advised that next weekend is the annual cleanup. All residents are required to pitch in, trimming trees, grooming the marina, fixing up the dock — that kind of thing.

Slashed Wrists

The weekend after that, we are required, as parents of a child who attends the day-care centre, to join other parents in painting the premises.

Parents who refuse are assessed $30. It isn't very hard work, really, and they serve coffee and doughnuts.

Over supper, my wife tells of some distressing news. She has learned, in the circuitous way that suburbanites learn of these things, that a woman nearby has attempted suicide three times. She clumsily slashed her wrists. Senseless.

I am reminded of three nights earlier, when a middle-aged neighbor died in his sleep of a heart attack.

We watched the ambulance from a window. Through the Venetian blinds.

The day ends on this note. The dishes are stacked into the dishwasher. The Dispos-All churns up the supper remains.

The track-lighting is turned off. We have no trouble falling asleep. It is that quiet.

On a warm autumn day last year, two little neighborhood girls knocked on the door. "Do you have any jobs we can do?" they asked. "We need some money."

The lawn had been cut and raked, weeded and groomed. The front steps had been swept. The car was newly waxed. Meredith didn't need a sitter. There was no brass to polish, no trash to carry.

"I'm sorry," I said. "Everything's been done."

"Okay," they said, and went away to play.

Stifle the Young

In his book Growing Up Suburban, Edward Wynne, an associate professor of education at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle, has written a definitive work on how suburbs like Reston, Va., however well-planned, however well-intentioned, stifle the young.

In the sterile, crime-free and congenial environment of middle- and upper-middle-class suburbs, Prof. Wynne writes, children are "uniquely isolated from diversity."

In an Oz-like existence, their childhoods are prolonged and they are not confronted by the kinds of challenges that prepare them for adulthood.

All this leads to anti-social and self-destructive conduct, Prof. Wynne writes. Suicide rates are high, drug use is prevalent and there is a great deal of introverted behavior.

Prof. Wynne is only the latest in a series of American academics and sociologists who are taking a critical look at the suburbs, which now hold about 40 per cent of American families.

The suburban dream is turning sour.

Take just one illustration: The suburban streets are relatively safe, thus children need much less parental monitoring. There is less child-adult interaction — so crucial in the maturing process.

Suburbanites will argue that the cities, like Washington, are uninhabitable. Educational standards are atrocious. Some years ago, for example, the class valedictorian of a group of graduating high-schoolers in Washington was unable to pass college entrance exams. He was judged not sufficiently literate.

Stories like that abound.

But Prof. Wynne and others like him respond that the migrating middle classes have created that situation by leaving the city core.

Whatever the case, suburbs like Reston are prospering.

But there is something indefinable, something terribly wrong.

Some of us feel the tug of the city, with the noise and the bad air and the people.

The day they tell us to paint our door greige, we're leaving.

'One Worries About Poor...'

NEW YORK TIMES

CALCUTTA — Suresh Kumar, who explains that his family "is really quite big in coal," has both a Rolls-Royce and a Bentley.

The Maharani of Cooch-Behar, who likes to make Bloody Marys with her own special marinated chilies, wears a ring with a square-cut diamond the size of a caramel.

These are some of the rich of Calcutta, and although their city has become a symbol around the world of aching poverty, the life that they lead here is glittering indeed.

Behind high stone walls topped with barbed wire or on the green "tea lawns" of secluded country clubs, Calcutta's small rich upper class carries on a busy social life that is little different on the surface from what goes on in a wealthy U.S. suburb. But at every turn, because this is Calcutta, there is the contrast with the degradation that marks the daily life of most people here — "going from luxury through misery to get luxury," as one of the city's millionaires put it.

'The Concern of Social Workers'

"One worries about the poor, of course," explained Lady Ranu Mookerjee, the grande dame of Calcutta society, "but those problems seem overwhelming. And besides, they are really the concern of the social workers."

So Lady Mookerjee, whose husband made a fortune in steel, devotes her energies instead to the Academy of Fine Arts, an agreeable little museum that she founded to provide "a special niche in the cultural world" of Calcutta.

Foreign visitors to India are often struck by the fact that there is a great deal of turning away in this country, of simply not seeing because there are too many awful sights. The phenomenon is probably nowhere more evident than in Calcutta.

At the Royal Calcutta Turf Club, the most stylish place to spend a Saturday afternoon, a horse fell in the seventh race the other day and broke its leg. The veterinarian decided that the animal would have to be killed, and as that news spread through the ornate old Victorian wedding cake of a grandstand, several women burst into tears — women who, like everyone else there, had to have passed by some of the thousands and thousands of families living on the city's sidewalks in order to get to the races that day.

The club's stables house 300 race horses, which have more living space per animal, and a considerably better diet of grains and vegetables, than millions of the city's human residents. For the upkeep of each horse, the owners pay the equivalent of $125 a month, which is more than the income of a young lawyer.

Despite the glaring human need, a millionaire manufacturer has said that the first priority of the city's urban renewal program should be to paint the shabby buildings that line the main streets downtown. But not everyone of his class agrees.

For example, Sunita Kumar, the wife of a rich industrialist, devotes much of her time to helping Mother Teresa, the saintly nun who runs hospitals here. And although upper-class Indian women do not have the same tradition of volunteer social work that their U.S. counterparts have, she says that she is persuading more of her friends to go along with her.

"Of course, it is particularly easy to criticize the haves in Calcutta, because the have-nots are so poorly off," said Mrs. Kumar, whose elegantly furnished apartment is, like most buildings here, not more than a block or two from slums. "But I think there's more awareness among our kind of people, and we do what we can."

S. K. Birla, a member of one of India's major industrial dynasties, said that his family, which has spent tens of millions of dollars on schools and hospitals over the years, prefers to concentrate its philanthropy on education because "if a man has an education, then he can work."

The Birlas, a super-elite family comparable in many ways to the Rockefellers, are generally austere and tend to keep a bit apart from the social whirl. But for many of the rich in Calcutta, as much as in a U.S. city, social life is centred on their clubs.

The best clubs are old relics of the Raj, grand reminders of the days when Calcutta, the capital of India until 1912, was regarded by many as the second city of the British Empire.

Tennis on Manicured Grass Courts

At the Tollygunge Club (known to its members and the hundreds of hopefuls on its waiting list as the Tolly), young ladies and gentlemen, all wearing white, play tennis on manicured grass courts.

At the Royal Calcutta Golf Club (which displays on a plaque the information that King George V gave it the title "Royal" in 1912), the peaceful, 18-hole course is surrounded by a high wall that keeps out the sight of the nearby shantytowns.

At the 150-year-old Bengal Club downtown, some of India's most powerful industrialists get together in a quiet lounge that has huge leather chairs, bound volumes of Punch magazine dating back to the 19th century and The Times of London flown in every day.

Calcutta's other, more common face is never far away, and it is not unusual to see a ragged woman washing a baby at a street drain outside a cluster of fetid hovels just on the other side of a millionaire's wall.

Judge Attacks Defence Lawyers

A provincial court judge took a swipe at Victoria lawyers Wednesday, suggesting some are entering "irresponsible pleas" on behalf of clients.

Judge Fred Giles, who splits his duties between Victoria and Duncan provincial courts, was sitting in the main "call court" in Victoria for only the third time since coming to Vancouver Island from Coquitlam when he halted proceedings at mid-morning.

"I've received only one guilty plea in three days, compared to 50 per cent guilty pleas in other areas," Giles stated. "There's something wrong here."

Giles, who has been on the bench for 11 years, seven in Coquitlam, told the young lawyer who happened to be appearing before the judge at the moment that he was not the counsel being referred to, but went on to talk about "irresponsible pleas by lawyers."

Giles, who was raised in Victoria since 1924 and had been a teacher and principal in the area before turning to law, clarified his remarks outside the courtroom.

"For counsel to come into court without having even one interview with their client, or receiving any particulars of the case from Crown counsel, in my opinion is professionally irresponsible."

Giles had praise for 23-year-old Cynthia Fulton, one of a number of University of Victoria law students attached to The Law Centre for training.

Miss Fulton was the only counsel to plead a client guilty prior to Giles' remarks and the judge said he admired the fact she had "guts enough" to do it. Her client was charged with impaired driving and refusing a breath test demand and Miss Fulton entered a guilty plea to the first charge only. Crown counsel Robert Mulligan entered a stay of proceedings on the second charge and Giles levied a $250 fine for the impaired driving conviction.

B.C. Indians Ask NEB To Reopen Pipe Probe

The Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs said Wednesday it has asked the Federal Court of Appeal to order the National Energy Board to reopen hearings into the Grizzly Valley and Silver Dahl pipeline projects.

Chief George Manuel, president of the UBCIC, also said his group might seek an injunction to stop work on the two pipelines and gas scrubbing plant until the appeal is heard.

The association said it was denied natural justice because the NEB did not give sufficient notice last year when it held its hearings into the proposals.

Premier Bill Bennett announced last week that the NEB and the federal cabinet had approved construction of the 96-mile, $28.5 million Silver Dahl pipeline northeast of Fort St. John; and the 101-mile, $122 million Grizzly Valley pipeline southwest of Dawson Creek and the gas scrubbing plant near Chetwynd.

He said construction will begin immediately, with the Silver Dahl line scheduled for completion April 1; the Grizzly line, early fall; and the plant, September 1979.

Louise Mandell, lawyer for the UBCIC, said the NEB was asked to postpone its hearings because her group was given only 10 days' notice, and the local native people only one day's notice.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A preliminary hearing into charges of unlawful confinement and rape began Wednesday in Victoria provincial court before Judge William Ostler.

Timothy Charles John Findlay, 20, was charged following an incident Nov. 19 in which a 40-year-old Saanich woman was allegedly attacked in the parking lot of a Gorge Road apartment block, forced into her car and ordered to drive to Sayward Road, where she was raped and beaten while held for five to six hours.

Findlay was refused bail Nov. 28 after a hearing before Judge Blake Allan and has been held in custody at Wilkinson Road jail.

Defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood and Crown counsel Richard Law agreed on Feb. 17 for continuation of the inquiry. Findlay elected trial by judge and jury Dec. 30 and a non-publication order on the preliminary was granted by Ostler.

A 23-year-old who changed his plea to guilty on a charge of obstructing a peace officer was fined $100 and ordered by Judge Fred Giles to perform 100 hours of community service work.

Brent Taylor Hoff, 425 Quebec, told the court he missed a January trial date because of a misunderstanding with his lawyer and entered the change of plea.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said the incident occurred Aug. 26 at the Royal Oak Inn in Saanich.

Mulligan said Saanich police were engaged in another matter when Hoff began insulting and provoking one of the officers, grabbed his jacket and pulled it open, saying he "just wanted to see your badge."

"It didn't happen just like he said it," replied Hoff.

His version was that he told the officer, "Oh, you forgot your badge tonight," after which he and the police got into a disagreement about going outside and he was grabbed and handcuffed.

Giles also placed Hoff on six months probation.

Robert Ernest Cleaver, 25, of 37 Regina was jailed 10 days after pleading guilty to driving while suspended.

Court was informed Cleaver was spotted in the 1800-block Trans Canada Highway on the evening of Jan. 25 by Colwood RCMP, who engaged emergency equipment and chased Cleaver's vehicle to the Colwood shopping plaza, where he was finally stopped. A check by police indicated that Cleaver's driver's licence had been suspended for one year on Jan. 5, 1978.

Mulligan said Cleaver had three convictions for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08: Nov. 7, 1973, in Qualicum Beach for which he was fined $250; Jan. 6, 1977, in Duncan for which he was fined $300, and Jan. 5, 1978, in Victoria for which he received a $400 fine. In addition, Mulligan added, Cleaver was assessed penalty points Jan 8, 1974, for driving with undue care and attention in Colwood.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Allen Barry Olson, 32, of 932 Arden, $300; Stanley Clarence Turner, 46, of 2817 Powers, $300; and William Keith Alexander, 22, of 4025 Happy Valley, $250.

$225,000 Raised

Voluntary workers of the Royal Jubilee Hospital Auxiliary raised a total of $225,000 for hospital work in the past two years, Betty Scroggs, retiring president, said Tuesday.

Mrs. Edna Keppy has been elected president of the auxiliary.

424 Condos On the Market

The number of new unsold condominiums on the market in Victoria has soared to 424, up from 294 at the same time last year.

A report released today by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation showed there are 353 new unsold condos in Victoria City, 26 in Saanich, 22 in Oak Bay and 17 in Esquimalt.

Local CMHC spokesman Ray Pitt said some of the unsold condos can be expected to be converted to rental units fairly soon, where regulations permit it.

Meanwhile, the surplus of rental accommodation is diminishing as the local market moves closer to equilibrium.

There are 250 new unrented apartment units in the Victoria area, down sharply from 454 at the same time last year.

The number of new unsold single family homes has declined to 166 from 214.

The lower totals were due in part to a cooling off in the pace of construction during the past 12 months.

Still, housing starts in Victoria were down only 16 per cent in January. There were 49 single family homes started during the month, up from 47 the previous January.

In addition, there were 30 duplex units started, up from 14, plus 10 row housing units, up from nil the previous January.

The decline was in apartment starts. Work began on 292 apartment units during January, down from 393 one year ago.

Victoria builders have taken the reduction in surplus rental accommodation as a sign of improving conditions and there are plans for several more large apartment buildings in the immediate future.

Construction of single family homes is also expected to be steady during the year.

Builders are showing little enthusiasm, however, to construct new condominium apartment buildings in the immediate future.

Job Pact Verbal, Court Told

Employment negotiations involving a one-time bank president and a land developer were on a verbal, trust basis and that is why there is no mention of it in a profit-splitting arrangement created as an incentive for the employment, county court was told Wednesday.

William Alfred Eastgate, 43, a Central Saanich land developer, was testifying on the 14th day of a trial in which he and Richard Brian Higgins, 42, of Saanich, president of Unity Bank from 1972 to 1975, are accused of conspiracy to obstruct justice and corruptly offering or agreeing to accept a secret commission.

Unity Bank, formed in 1972 with Higgins as its first president, merged with the larger Provincial Bank of Canada last year.

Eastgate's cross-examination by Crown counsel Mike Hutchison was to conclude before Judge Peter Millward today. Two more defence witnesses were expected to be called to testify.

Hutchison referred to a memo written by Eastgate and signed by him and Higgins which both men said occurred in December, 1974, but which was backdated to May 16, 1973.

The memo reads: "Please accept this document as our agreement to share any profits or losses on a 50-50% basis covering the land development with W.A.E. Holdings Ltd. and Seaboard Enterprises Ltd. 10.03 acres from G. Doney lots 4-5-6-7 Block 1 R 2E Section 4 SS Plan 1830 in which W.A.E. Holdings Ltd. has a 50% interest. This agreement is with yourself or company name you may wish to form in the future."

The memo concludes with the word "accepted" followed by the signatures of both men. The date May 16, 1973, appears at the top of the memo.

Eastgate said he offered Higgins a job as a real estate salesman and financial adviser for the Seaboard group of companies, in which Eastgate is president of six companies and secretary of a seventh. This occurred during a drive up-Island in December, 1974, during a visit to Victoria by Higgins, he said.

He said the memo was made in the evening of that day and as a result of the conversation during the trip.

Eastgate agreed he could not point to a reference in the memo to any additional conditions.

But, he said, it was a confidential matter regarding the possibility of Higgins leaving his bank president's job, a "verbal understanding," and that was why it was not referred to in the memo.

Questioned why he didn't backdate it to May 15, 1973, if it was to appear as a joint venture to coincide with a Seaboard Enterprises directors meeting, Eastgate said it was an additional venture the following day.

He said he didn't take the profit-splitting memo to an accountant or to a lawyer. He also said he didn't obtain any advice regarding a tax saving by backdating it. He said it was his understanding there would be a tax saving. Earlier he said he had found out later this wasn't the case.

Pressed again why he didn't record the terms and conditions of the employment offer, Eastgate said because it was a verbal understanding and he didn't want others knowing that Higgins might be leaving the bank and possibly jeopardizing that job.

Hutchison suggested that the memo was in fact made May 16, 1973, after he had signed an agreement regarding the Doney development.

"You are wrong," Eastgate replied.

The prosecutor suggested that he did it at that time once he knew, on May 15, 1973, that Higgins had authorized a $425,000 line of credit for Seaboard Enterprises Ltd. to finance land assembly for the Doney Road subdivision, and that the project would go ahead.

"You are wrong," Eastgate said again.

Eastgate also said that the $425,000 was intended for five parcels of land he was negotiating to purchase for Seaboard but only $300,000 was used because negotiations only resulted in the purchase of three parcels.

He said the interest rate was two per cent over prime.

He said it was his decision to stop at $300,000 and Unity Bank had not cut off funds.

After the meeting Eastgate said occurred in December, 1974, he said he next met Higgins in the summer of 1975 when there was "some discussion" about him incorporating a company for Higgins and it was to be "kept quiet" until details of Higgins separation from his wife were completed.

As a result, Eastgate said, he did cause a company called Mount Newton to be incorporated. He agreed he had his accountant, William Elliott, do this, that it was the only company Elliott incorporated for him, and that the various Seaboard companies were incorporated as the result of instructions to solicitors.

In the summer of 1975, when Higgins again visited Victoria, Eastgate said they "generally" discussed employment possibilities but not in specific detail.

Towards the end of January, 1976, Eastgate said he met Higgins in Toronto after he had left Unity Bank. He said Higgins was still under stress and strain he had observed before and his plans were to rest and relax.

Asked if he felt then that he wouldn't expect Higgins in Victoria to start the job any earlier than the spring of 1977, Eastgate said "I can't honestly answer that." The real estate course took four months, Higgins was going to take a holiday, and he didn't know when the course started.

He agreed that a new company, Seaboard Ventures, came into existence in June, 1976, and the list of persons causing that company to begin included Higgins.

He said Mount Newton bought six shares in the new company but Mount Newton was not mentioned on the list.

Eastgate said he told Higgins he was investing Mount Newton funds in the Seaboard group and if Higgins took control of Mount Newton as a result of the employment offer he would be the owner of the six Ventures shares.

He agreed there was no reason that he couldn't sign for Mount Newton. It was "just a way of mine doing business."

In the fall of 1976, Eastgate said employment of Higgins was again discussed and he told him that terms would be settled once the real estate course was finished.

Eastgate said it was his own money that had been put into Mount Newton and Higgins himself hadn't put any money in. He said Higgins agreed to let him use the company.

Post Office Beefs Handled by Mail

The plant manager of the Glanford Avenue mail processing plant won't be having much eyeball-to-eyeball dialogue with disgruntled post office workers but he may get more letters.

Duncan Brooks, in response to a series of complaints from the Victoria local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said earlier this week he doesn't want confrontation but more dialogue.

However, CUPW spokesman Philip Thompson said Wedbesday there will be no further consultation with Brooks and that future matters will be handled by letter.

Problems will be taken through the normal complaint or grievance routes as laid out in the contract.

"We have had numerous meetings in the past and any agreements that have been reached have been broken or violated," Thompson said.

CUPW sent Brooks a letter to that effect Tuesday.

Brooks was accused last week by a union spokesman of having an 18th century attitude toward the employees.

One of the union's major complaints is that Brooks is attempting to violate their contract by indirectly forcing employees to work with new mechanized equipment. They say Brooks wants to increase the number of mechanized clerks on the day shift and reduce the number of those who work manually with the mail on all shifts.

This action would also infringe on the union's right to call for a time when employees can bid for jobs on other shifts, Thompson said.

DUNCAN OFF TO SLOW START

DUNCAN — Dollar volume increased in most industries in Duncan and the Cowichan Valley in 1977, Canada Manpower manager J. F. McCulloch reports, but 1978 is off to a slow start.

McCulloch said most major logging operations are back at work in January with reduced crews and about 300 loggers are awaiting recall.

The volume of construction in Duncan dropped in 1977 to $2,259,902 from $4,400,652 in 1976, most of the shortfall occurring in residential construction. This trend is expected to continue in residential and commercial building at least for the next few months.

North Cowichan construction figures were up slightly in 1977, due mainly to major expenditures on the community centre, but figures this year are expected to reflect a decrease in investment and employement.

There were few changes in production levels and job turnover at area sawmills and B.C. Forest Products has announced the shutdown of one paper machine at Crofton in February. This will cut production by about one-third but no major layoffs are expected.

Flower Count Unbelievable?

Victorians counted 894,126 flowers blooming outdoors during the past week and a lot of people in Winnipeg and Toronto refuse to believe it.

"I got phone calls from radio stations across Canada during the past week and some of them were quite skeptical," Flower Count chairman Carmela Costigan said today.

"A woman in Toronto said she assumed we were kidding. A radio announcer in Winnipeg wondered how we could find flowers with snow on the ground. I had to explain we don't have snow in Victoria," Mrs. Costigan said.

"It is amazing how little they know about Victoria weather."

She said the flower count, sponsored annually by Victoria Chamber of Commerce, is becoming an effective way to publicize the mild west coast winters.

"News about our blooming daffodils was particularly effective this year with so many snowstorms in the rest of Canada."

Mrs. Costigan said more than 1,000 Victorians phoned in their flower count totals during the past week.

Largest total was the 250,000 daffodils blooming at Vantreight's farm. Butchart Gardens counted 90,000 flowers, ignoring the blooming heather which would have run into several million.

Hillside Shopping Centre phoned in a total of 2,820 flowers blooming outdoors.

The other calls were from people reporting the flower totals in their own back yards.

"We could never hope to count all the flowers blooming outdoors in Victoria," Mrs. Costigan said. "It would be millions and millions. However, we publicized Victoria and hundreds of people phoned in to particpate. They seem to enjoy counting their flowers and reporting the total.

Flower count totals were phoned daily to the Victoria tourist promotion delegation, which is in Edmonton after a visit to Calgary. The delegation, which includes Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy and Victoria Mayor Mike Young, will return to Victoria Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas Flint, 316 Linden, won $200 worth of shrubs from Elk Lake Garden Centre in a draw associated with the flower count.

'MILITANT UNIONIST' BCSC NEGOTIATOR

A self-described militant unionist who twice led the Victoria Fire Fighters' Union to the brink of a strike has been appointed manager of labor relations for the government's new B.C. Systems Corporation (BCSC).

Ross Cameron, 39, will be charged with trying to maintain industrial peace at the corporation which has about 300 government employees.

The BCSC is being set up to consolidate the government's $22 million-a-year computer system into a single, co-ordinated operation. Government departments will channel all their computer work to the Crown corporation.

Cameron said today he is going into the new job with a mixture of idealism and practicallity and is looking forward to the challenge of trying to achieve industrial harmony.

Cameron said that as president of the Fire Fighters' Union he spent the last four years leading a union that was in a confrontation situation with management.

"Yet over all these years I've been convinced that there's got to be a better way than the adversary system. That whole process is designed for not getting along."

Cameron said he'd like to see sweeping changes to labor-management relations in B.C.

"I'm not so conceited that I think I can change the system, but this is a small part of it I can get involved in . . . and if it works out, fantastic; if if doesn't at least I can say I tried and that's one of our problems these days — nobody's trying."

Region Staff Pay Difference Called Elitist

The Capital Regional District board voted Wednesday to give the district's executive, administrative and professional staff a 6 per cent hike in salaries but peg increases for two female non-unfon secretaries at 4 per cent.

Only directors John Mika and Al Beasley voted against the increases.

Mika described the differential as "sexist and eletist" and said the higher-paid non-union staff should set an example in "this year of sacrifice".

He noted the annual inflation rate is approaching 10 per cent and the increases mean higher paid workers will only fall behind 4 per cent while the lower paid workers would be 6 per cent behind.

The increases were recommended by the executive committee following the contract settlement with the Canadian Union of Public Employees for a 4¾ per cent increase.

The board was told that the Anti Inflation Board guidelines preclude the secretaries from getting more than 4 per cent.

The only other exempt staff to get less than 6 per cent are executive director Dennis Young and regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil. Their salaries are more than $40,000 a year. Instead of 6 per cent, they will be limited to a $2,400 increase this year.

Region Stumped By Grants

The Capital Regional District board can't make up its mind on how to decide which organizations in the regional district should be given grants.

It was almost evenly divided Wednesday on a recommendation to apply for letters patent to cover the situation. The matter was tabled.

Some directors, like chairman Jim Campbell, believed regional grants should be shared by all municipalities and electoral areas in the district.

They're Helping Take the Mystery Out of Sex

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

In these so-called liberated days, society still likes to pretend sexuality doesn't exist.

When the subject is sex, the generation gap becomes an abyss. Parents generally cross their fingers and let children figure the mystery out themselves.

Even medical schools and universities ignore human sexuality and its communication to the public.

Experts say sexual confusion contributes to behavior disorders such as depression, rebellion, delinquency and rape.

The increase in recent years of venereal disease, unplanned pregnancies and abortion proves this haphazard approach to the facts of life is taking its toll.

In 1963, the Greater Victoria school board decided to supplement whatever was being taught in the home with a broad course in human relations called family life education.

The program acknowledges human sexuality and brings it out into the open for discussion and instruction.

When it started it was controversial and the district had enough well-publicized brushes with anxious parents over the years to become cautious of media coverage.

But the attendance rate of almost 100 per cent has proven the program, which is optional, is providing needed information.

In the beginning, doctors did the instructing and hundreds of anxious parents turned up at pre-course meetings.

Now the course is taught by two specially-trained teachers who reassure an average of 30 parents who attend monthly meetings.

Roy Christie has been teaching the course five years and Kathy Adams joined him three years ago.

They spend a month each year at the 11 junior secondary schools in the district and work as a team, Christie instructing the boys and Adams the girls in Grades 8, 9 and 10.

Helped in Growing

In a recent school district survey, 85 per cent of the students who took the course said it helped them deal with the problems of growing up.

Through student feedback, the course has been revised over the years to keep up with the issues.

Grade 8 students get four one-hour sessions, one of them with a doctor or other resource person.

The Grade 8 course deals with the family unit, biological and cultural traits, the life cycle from infancy to old age, reproduction, relationships with others and available health services.

Although some elementary schools supply basic sex instruction, the family life course doesn't begin until Grade 8.

"Grade 8 is the key," Adams explains. "Before then students are too young to deal with the material and later on in high school they're too old to benefit from it.

"Kids are bombarded by an explosion of sex information through the media and the schools would be archaic if they didn't keep up," says Adams, a relaxed young woman with a friendly smile.

She studied psychology at university and later taught health education and guidance in Ontario.

Adams and Christie, a former biology teacher, are open and informal. They were selected for their teaching ability and most important, their rapport with students.

Students must feel comfortable if they're going to talk about things like masturbation, homosexuality and their relationships with the opposite sex.

Embarrassment and guilt are probably the main reasons children don't talk these things over with their parents.

According to Adams and Christie, only one-third of the students say they communicate with their parents about sex.

And even fewer get satisfactory answers.

"You should hear some of the strange and totally wrong things they come out with in class," Christie said.

The family life education handbook quotes sources as saying 25 per cent of all students are beyond help by Grade 8.

A wide assortment of slides, models and films collected through the years aids in the instruction. All new material goes through a screening committee comprised of teachers, parents, doctors and clergy.

Teaching methods are a combination of fact and common sense derived from experience.

Because the instructors have a vast supply of resource material at hand, they can discuss most topics in clinical detail that could not be obtained at home.

Common Sense

The emphasis is placed on scientific evidence rather than religious or cultural beliefs and the pros and cons of every topic are discussed fully.

Moral judgments are avoided and Adams and Christie tend to stay away from personal opinion unless they are specifically requested.

Classroom attitudes vary from redneck ignorance to worldly sophistication depending on the area, the pair has noticed.

Children of affluent, well-educated families tend to have liberal attitudes and a larger body of knowledge that seems to come from television and books rather than personal experience.

Generally, students from poor, less educated and broken homes have a wider range of personal experience — but paradoxically, less knowledge.

Statistics indicate a higher rate of pregnancy and abortion in these areas, according to Christie and Adams.

At the Grade 9 level, the instruction drops to two hours and the topics include venereal disease, emotional development, problem solving and relationships with the opposite sex.

In Grade 10, the program deals with sexual attitudes, a review of anatomy and conception and methods of birth control.

The section on birth control is undertaken with the full blessing of parents, who seem relieved to have the burden lifted from their shoulders.

"Parents indicate they want their children to know about birth control but they don't want to be the ones to tell them," Christie said.

Parents are afraid their children will think they are condoning sex and the use of contraceptives.

Before starting the program at each school, a meeting is held with parents. The structured course ends at Grade 10, but Christie and Adams make it a practice to travel to senior secondaries and talk to students.

At the senior level, the boys have caught up to the girls in terms of maturity and the classes are co-ed.

McClelland Draws 'Intractable' Label

Victoria Medical Society president Dr. Doug Critchley said today an "intractable" Health Minister Bob McClelland will ram the controversial Helmcken Road hospital through even if it's dead against public opinion.

He said the society's executive is meeting today to discuss what action can be taken following attacks Wednesday by McClelland and other cabinet ministers on a VMS newspaper advertisement which warned Victoria General Hospital will be closed once the Helmcken Road hospital is completed.

"He (McClelland) told me three weeks ago he would not be swayed by public opinion. I don't believe that. It's a public matter. I wouldn't go on unless I believed we are right," Critchley said.

At Wednesday's meeting of the Capital Regional District's hospital board, Critchley presented a society brief urging the expansion of Victoria General on adjacent St. Ann's Academy land in order to avoid a split hospital.

At a press conference today, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, MLA for Victoria, said he has asked McClelland to build the Helmcken Road hospital in one phase instead of two, and had been told there were insufficient funds.

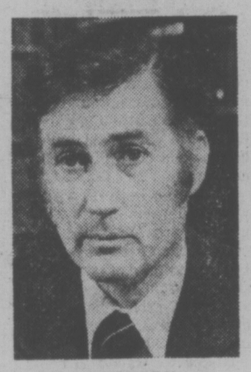
McClelland has accused the doctors of running an advertisement that is "immoral and dishonest."

Critchley admitted today the words "acute care" had not been included "but how long can you make an ad, and how do you deal with an intractable minister?

"He's playing with words. He told me three weeks ago Victoria General will be closed for acute care once Helmcken Road is completed.

"He told me he wouldn't consider acute care beds down there and said I could quote him."

Critchley said he asked McClelland to consider having extended care beds, instead of acute care ones, at Helmcken Road but the minister was adamant that this would not be done.



CRITCHLEY
... "we are right"

Critchley said such a move would have relieved the strain on the two downtown hospitals caused by extensive care patients being forced to use acute care facilities because there is nowhere else they can go at this time.

Critchley answered accusations that the society's stand does not represent the majority of its members. He said a referendum had been held, and a total of 170 doctors were against a split hospital compared to 66 in favor of the Helmcken Road site. He said 75 per cent of Greater Victoria doctors are society members.

Critchley said the minister is not being open when he says Victoria General will continue to be a health care centre.

"As we know Victoria General, it will no longer exist as an acute care hospital. I appealed to him on that point. If you change a downtown hotel into an office building you no longer have a hotel," Critchley said.

At Wednesday's meeting of the regional district's hospital board, city alderman Bob Wright made a motion that the region's hospital and health planning commission immediately start a study on the future role of Victoria General. The final allocation of acute care beds in the regional district would not be decided until the study is completed.

"I'm confident that a study by the commission will find that a community hospital will continue at the Humboldt site," Wright said.

Opposing the move, Saanich alderman John Mika said it was "a noble intelligent attempt for a band-aid solution".

Wright's motion, which includes an immediate start on the first phase of the new hospital and continuation of planning for the second phase, passed.

Earlier in the meeting another group of doctors appealed to the board not to have pediatrics and obstetrics moved from Royal Jubilee to the new site. They said the result would be depreciation of care for sick infants and children.

"I'm willing to jump through any number of hoops so long as we can come up with the correct solution," pediatrician Dr. Bash Boulton told the board.

Victims Thought It Was A Bridge

The occupants of a car that carried two Victorians to their death Tuesday night off Port Renfrew government dock apparently thought they were driving across a bridge.

Alexander Topper, 38, of Victoria, was identified by RCMP as the driver and one of the victims. Also drowned was Kim Annette Joyce, 17, of 4061 Larchwood.

Survivors were William Alfred Friers, 35, of 812 Old Esquimalt, and Richard James Kurahara, 19, of 791 Pandora, who made their way out of the four-door sedan and to shore.

The survivors told police they were in Port Renfrew for the first time that afternoon. When their car came to the wharf after dark they thought they were on a narrow bridge heading back toward Jordan River.

Police said tire swerve marks on the wharf deck seem to support this. The car was going about 25 mph when the driver realized his mistake and tried to stop.

An RCMP diving team recovered the bodies early Wednesday morning before the car was raised from about 30 feet of water.

A police spokesman said an inquest will be held but a date has not been set.

Over the past three decades seven other vehicles have gone off the dock, according to long-time residents of Port Renfrew.

Although the dock area has lighting, there are no warning signs indicating that the main road ends at the approach to the wharf, almost adjacent to the waterfront Port Renfrew Hotel.

An unsuspecting driver could easily mistake the wharf for a bridge or continuation of the main road, particularly in a rainstorm like Tuesday's.

Other Subdivisions Near Kingsview?

North Cowichan will encourage new subdivisions along Maple Bay Road near the troubled Kingsview Properties development, Mayor George Whittaker said today.

He said the municipality has invested more than $500,000 in services in the area near Duncan and taxpayers can be assured the money will be recovered one way or the other.

"I am confident the Kingsview development will go ahead; they have got too big an investment there to let it collapse, but in any case the services will be paid for," he said.

"We will permit other subdivisions along the route and the developers will share the costs of the services already installed."

He said this process might take several years.

"One way or the other we will recover the money," he said. "If Kingsview goes ahead soon we will recover the money quickly. If it doesn't, then it will take a couple of years."

Whittaker said he has not received word from Kingsview on when the project might resume.

He said the development company will soon have to pay a large tax bill on the property.

"In three years their taxes will come to $250,000. Somebody will have to pay that or the whole development will revert to the municipality. We are protected but we hope the development will go ahead soon, as a vote of confidence in the local economy."

He said concern about a slow real estate market was a factor in Kingsview's decision to delay the project.

"There has been very little communication from the Kingsview people since the project was shelved. We are still waiting to hear when it will proceed."

He said 59 lots are ready for sale in the development now, and Kingsview may want to put them on the market so it can pay its bills.

In all, the development will have 1,200 lots for single family homes plus land for apartments and townhouses.

Bootleg Cabbie Nailed

A cab driver whose car yielded a least a dozen cases of beer and numerous bottles of liquor was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty in provincial court today to bootlegging.

Samuel John Patterson, 54, of 941 Kings, was charged under the B.C. Liquor Control and Licensing Act with selling after the permitted time, at 1:30 last Friday morning in a Gorge Road motel where city police constable Dan Parker had booked a room.

The officer, acting undercover, said he phoned Red Top Cabs at 12:55 a.m. and asked for Sam but was told he was not in. Parker then asked for a bottle of rye whiskey and was told it would be $13.

At 1:30 a station wagon cab appeared at the motel and Patterson delivered the bottle to Parker's room, where he was arrested. The cab was searched and its contents siezed.

"You sold it to the wrong man," Judge Harold Alder commented in fining Patterson and confiscating the liquor.

The Liquor Act permits liquor to be sold at liquor store prices during liquor store hours, plus the cost of delivery.

Father, Daughter Hurt in Crash

A girl and her father were treated at hospital and discharged after their car and two others collided at Gorge and Tillicum Wednesday night.

Saanich police are seeking witnesses to the crash in which Brad Thomas, 667 Treebank, received head and shoulder bruises and his daughter Trisha, 7, was cut on the head when thrown from the car by impact.

The accident occurred at 6:30 and damage to the vehicles was heavy.

Early today, at 2:57, driver Glen Alan Forsen, 21, of 530 West Bay, escaped without injury when the small car he was driving hit a power pole, snapping it off, in the 900-block of Old Esquimalt Road.

Damage was estimated at $700 to the car and $1,000 to the pole.

APPLICANTS PLUG CITIZENSHIP COURTS

Swearing-in ceremonies for new Canadian citizens in Victoria have tripled because of recent changes to the federal Citizenship Act, a court official said today.

Instead of having only one hearing a month the citizenship court is now holding ceremonies three times a month and is filled to capacity at each session, swearing in 69 new citizens at a time.

Other courts in B.C. have experienced similar surges and in a recent peak period more than 1,200 new citizens were sworn in around the province, compared with the weekly routine of 85 to 170 before the act was changed Feb. 15, 1977.

Additional judges and staff have been assigned to ease the load, which includes two or more swearing-in ceremonies a day in Vancouver with 120 new citizens presented with certificates at each, in addition to personal interviewing of candidates by the judges.

Before the changes, the routine was one or two swearing-in ceremonies a week.

"The reason we have had such an influx," said Norman L. Oreck, chief citizenship judge in B.C., "is that the residency qualification was reduced from five to three years.

"In addition, the qualifying age was reduced from 21 to 18. And persons who formerly were categorized as British subjects now are required to have the same kind of swearing-in and court ceremony as other applicants, instead of more or less automatically getting citizenship."

Oreck said that from January, 1976, to Feb. 15, 1977, there were 4,868 judges' interviews with individual citizenship applicants held by him and the three other full-time citizenship court judges in B.C. But since Feb. 15, 1977, there have been 18,826 such interviews.

Tax Tips '78

Tax tips are prepared by Revenue Canada. More information may be obtained from the Victoria office of Revenue Canada, 1415 Vancouver Street, or by phoning 386-2176.

Q. I received a lump sum upon retirement. I do not want to pay tax on it at this time but would like to invest it so as to spread the tax over a number of years. Is there some way that this can be done?

A. Yes. A person can use such amounts to purchase an income averaging annuity or contribute to a Registered Retirement Savings Plan. Any income earned will not be subject to tax until withdrawn.

Q. What is the general rule as far as capital gains or losses are concerned?

A. The general rule is that one-half of capital gains are included in income and taxed at a person's normal rate of tax. When dealing with capital losses, one-half of such losses may be deducted against one-half of capital gains. When losses exceed gains, subtract one-half of your gains from one-half of your losses and deduct up to $2,000 of the difference.

Q. My wife receives interest from bonds which I purchased for her in her name. Is this interest considered to be my wife's income?

A. No. The interest is your income because you purchased the bonds from your funds. The same rule would apply to dividends on shares, interest on savings accounts and so on. It is the person who provided the money to invest who must report the income earned.

Q. My wife and I have a joint bank account. My wife deposits money into the bank account from some of her earnings. The T5 slip is made out in our joint names. Do I declare the income on my tax return or does my wife declare it on her tax return, or should we divide the interest income, declaring half of it on each of our returns?

A. If you and your wife deposit an equal amount of your respective earnings, then the interest is earned equally. If one of you deposits more than the other, then that person should report a larger share of the interest. See Item 12 of the 1977 Tax Guide.

Q. If our child cannot be claimed as a dependant, who reports the family allowance?

A. In this case, the person to whom the cheque is payable must report the income.

Q. My wife has no taxable income and she is eligible for the Age Exemption and the Interest Dividend and Capital Gains Deduction. Which one of us must complete Schedule 9 to claim "eligible deductions transferred from spouse"?

A. You will be claiming the eligible deductions on behalf of your wife so you must complete Schedule 9. Remember to attach Schedule 9 and your wife's information slips (T5, T600, etc.,) to your income tax return.

Q. I have a bank account and my interest amounts to $28.00. The bank will not issue a T5 information slip because it is less than $50.00. Does this mean that I do not need to declare the $28.00 interest?

A. No. Even though the bank does not issue a T5 slip you must report any interest as income.

Bewley Complains About Judges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Court Judge Les Bewley, criticized this week by the British Columbia Judicial Council for injudicious remarks, has formally complained against the two judges who launched an inquiry against him.

Judge Bewley confirmed Wednesday that he has written a formal letter of complaint to the B.C. Provincial Court Judges Association about the roles Chief Judge Lawrence Brahan and Associate Chief Judge Laurence Goulet played in bringing judicial council proceedings against him.

He said he outlined his complaints in a letter to Judge Lorne Pearce of Penticton, association president, before the council held a two-day hearing in January into controversial remarks Judge Bewley made about women during a trial here last September.

Brahan and Goulet are the senior members of the nine-member judicial council, a watchdog body that polices B.C.'s provincial court judges and justices of the peace, and has the power to recommend to the provincial cabinet removal of a judge from the bench.

Judge Brahan could not be reached for comment.

Judge Pearce confirmed the association has received Judge Bewley's letter and said the association's 12-member executive will meet March 4 in Vancouver to discuss what action will be taken on the matter. He said the meeting will be an informal session "and that's about all I can say about it at this time."

Judge Bewley declined to go into the specifics of his letter.

The Crown successfully appealed a six-month jail term Judge Bewley gave carpenter Anthony Tourangeau of Toronto for the forcible seizure of his girlfriend. The B.C. Court of Appeal increased the sentence to one year definite and two years less a day indefinite.

Father's Abduction Trial Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — A trial date of April 13 was set Wednesday for Andre Dulong, 41, a French martial arts instructor charged with abduction early in 1973 of his daughter, Lucienne, now five years old.

Dulong was arrested in Montreal last month after a charge of abduction was laid by his former wife, Loredana Weichel, 28, of Vancouver. The charge was later stayed by the British Columbia attorney-general's department following negotiations involving the Canadian and French governments. The abduction charge was relaid by his former wife and he now faces the provincial court trial.

Dulong's lawyer, Michelene Parizeau-Popivici, of Montreal, said Wednesday that attempts will be made as soon as possible to seek a court order to allow Dulong to meet his daughter before he returns to Montreal to await the trial. He is free on $500 bail with a condition he stay away from the child until a judge gives him an order allowing access to her.

Dulong is charged with abducting the child from Vancouver, where the family had moved and where Dulong had obtained landed immigrant status. He allegedly took the child in March, 1975, and returned to France, where she had been born.

RCMP Corporal Faces Judgment For Assault

WATSON LAKE, Yukon (CP) — Judgment was reserved until today in the assault trial of an RCMP member charged after a 17-year-old Metis youth died July 1, 1977, in this small Alaska Highway community just north of the British Columbia-Yukon boundary.

Doug Johnston died following an altercation with Corporal Kenneth Munro, 30, an 11-year veteran of the force. An inquest jury subsequently ruled the death unnatural but accidental. An autopsy was held but no cause of death was established.

Evidence during the trial showed that Munro had been transferred to Whitehorse, 450 kilometres away, 10 days before the incident, after serving 2½ years in Watson Lake. He returned June 30 to pick up some belongings and visit friends.

That night, Munro, who was off duty and in plain clothes, was asked by other officers to assist an investigation of a suspected break-in.

Deputy Magistrate Dwayne Rowe was told that at about 2 a.m. Munro noticed Johnston and a group of friends.

Munro said Johnston appeared unusually pale and seemed to be in a trance. It was established that Johnston had taken five chloryl-hydrate capsules, commonly known as Mickey Finns, and had a blood-alcohol level of .06.

Munro followed Johnston and his friends up a steep embankment where the officer noticed a case of beer. He cautioned the youth against joining a drinking party.

Court was told that Johnston told the officer to leave him alone. Munro turned red, grabbed Johnston by the neck and told him he was under arrest for swearing.

Munro's version, in a statement he made after the incident, was different: "For no apparent reason, Dougie became erratic. I knew there was something wrong with the boy and with the late hour, having known his parents, I advised him he was under arrest for swearing."

Witnesses agreed that the pair then tumbled down the embankment, at the bottom of which Munro pushed the youth back over a large garbage container and held him back with a hand on his throat.

Munro said he loosened his grip when he heard Johnston make a gurgling sound.

The two then walked a dozen steps before Johnston either tripped or collapsed.

Munro said he heard more gurgling sounds, turned Johnston over and saw that his eyes were staring skywards. He said he could detect neither pulse nor breathing.

Munro applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until Johnston was in hospital. The coroner's jury determined he had died where he had fallen in the parking lot.

Crown prosecutor M. M. de Weert of Vancouver said it was because of the pathologist's report, saying cause of death could not be determined, that assault was considered the only charge appropriate to the evidence.

In response to Munro's lawyer's argument that no excessive force was used, de Weert said a police officer with 11 years experience, arresting a smaller, younger, and apparently intoxicated youth need not have used the force that was used.

M-B Log Operation To Grow

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. plans to increase log production in British Columbia by adding third shifts at two company sawmills on the Fraser River, Calvert Knudsen, company president, said Tuesday.

The Truck Loggers' Association had said Monday that if the company closed its Vancouver Plywood plant operation log production in the province would be reduced.

Knudsen also denied allegations by the association concerning financial conditions at MacMillan Bloedel.

"The company is in a healthy state," Knudsen said. "It has large unused credit lines available and is well along on a $450 million program to improve productivity and profits of its B.C. base — our wood products facilities, our logging operations and our pulp and paper mills."

Pool Diggers Hit Gas Main . . . Level House

RICHMOND (CP) — Contractor Mike Gaines knows it is unwise to dig up natural gas mains because bad things happen — such as a house blowing up.

Somebody dug up a gas main Tuesday in Gaines's back yard.

A short time later, his house blew up.

The gas main was dug up while Patio Pools Ltd. of Richmond was excavating to install a $12,000 swimming pool in Gaines back yard.

While a back-hoe was taking chunks of earth out of the back yard, it ripped the gas meter right off the side of the house, firemen said.

Gaines, 40, said he and his wife Maureen were sitting in the kitchen when they smelled gas filling up the house. He went downstairs to take a look, saw what had happened and went to turn the main off.

Fortunately, he had to lie on his back to reach the main, and that probably saved his life.

"I opened up the little hatch to the thermostat and I saw these small flames around the meter," Gaines said Wednesday. "Then the gas just blew up in my face."

Then everything blew. Every window in the two-storey three-bedroom wood and stucco house blew out like a popped paper bag. The explosion charred most of the back of the house and all of the basement. Smoke damaged the remaining rooms.

"There's nothing left," Gaines said. "It makes me sick."

His two children were in school and his wife was not hurt by the blast because, he said, "it's a well-constructed house."

Gaines bought the house last July and spent "thousands of dollars in materials and my own time renovating it."

Gaines had insurance on the house. His brother-in-law, who lives down the street, sold it to him.

"I'll start right away all over again on the house," he said, "but my pool . . . I was going relax in it this summer."

For the time being, however, he's just got a big hole in the ground with muddy water in it.

And a broken gas main.

It's here. A very special beer from Labatt's.

54,500 Houses Get Aid

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 54,500 more houses in British Columbia have become eligible for $350 federal home insulation grant, Lloyd Skuce, a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation spokesman, said Tuesday.

Skuce, CMHC regional information co-ordinator, said they are among the 900,000 houses built across Canada between 1941 and 1946 now eligible for the grant, which is designed to help residents of older homes save fuel costs.

Skuce said about 190,500 houses in B.C. now are eligible. It was not known how many of these are in Victoria.

Federal Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellett announced in Ottawa Tuesday that all homes built before 1946 will be eligible.

Thompson In Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — Veteran woodworker Syd Thompson was re-elected Tuesday for another one-year term as president of the Vancouver and District Labor Council.

Thompson, president of the International Woodworkers of America's Vancouver local, was not opposed for the post, which he has held since 1969.

Fatal Fire Arson - Jury

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled today that arson caused a fire that killed four children in a provincially-funded child-care home last Dec. 18.

The six-member jury ruled that the children died of asphyxiation in the early morning fire that began when they were in their beds.

They are identified as Stanley Tracey Galbraith, 15, Linda Elaine Galbraith, 10, Reno Chummy Wells, 10 and Gideon John Hepworth, 9. Three other children living in the home escaped injury.

The home was owned by the the provincial government and funded by the human resources ministry. It was operated by the Prince Rupert Childrens' Group Home Society.

Mrs. Ernestine Peterson, a home worker, testified that everything was normal when she checked the children at 2:30 a.m.

Mrs. Peterson said when she later smelled smoke she jumped out the window of her second-floor bedroom but couldn't get back inside because the doors were locked.

Jagtar Sangha, the home's supervisor, testified that the Prince Rupert fire department told him last June that smoke detectors and emergency lighting should be installed in the house, but this wasn't done before the fire began.

King Blasts Socred Policy

Former labor minister Bill King (NDP—Revelstoke-Slocan) said Wednesday the Social Credit government is encouraging unemployment in B.C. through its bottom-line economics.

King said in a news release the number of unemployed in B.C. when the present government took office in December, 1975 was 82,000 or 7.5 per cent of the labor force.

He said the figures released by Statistics Canada on Tuesday show the number of unemployed in B.C. now has reached 115,000, or 9.9 per cent of the work force.

The federal agency adjusted the rate to 8.7 per cent, however.

"Thus 33,000 more British Columbians are experiencing privation and insecurity," King said, "while the government actually encourages more unemployment by withdrawing hundreds of millions of dollars from the marketplace through unnecessary tax increases, higher rates for ferries and electricity — with the single goal of showing a profit on the books at the end of the year.

"It is a profit calculated on the suffering of the people."

Premier Bill Bennett does not comment on the monthly unemployment figures.

Diversion Eyed

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — A recent British Columbia Hydro decision to drop a major energy project makes the proposed Kootenay River diversion scheme look more promising, says a B.C. Hydro official.

In a telephone interview Tuesday, Nigel Grant suggested more emphasis may be placed on the Kootenay diversion now the McGregor River diversion proposal has been scrapped for environmental reasons.

The provincial power authority had planned to develop the McGregor project in the mid 1980s to increase power output on the Peace River's Bennett dam.

GOV'T WILL FUND CENTRAL MISSION

Health Minister Bob McClelland said Tuesday his ministry will provide $20,000 to assist the Central City Mission in Vancouver in retaining its alcoholism counsellors formerly employed by the human resources ministry.

A health ministry spokesman said the program was funded by the Vancouver Resources Board which has since been incorporated into the human resources ministry.

COUGARS 7-I-I ON TOUR

The Only Way To Go!

For Victoria Cougars, there has never been a road trip quite like the one they just completed.

After defeating Billings Bighorns 4-1 in the Montana city Wednesday, the Cougars headed home today with the most successful road trip in their Western Canada Hockey League history.

They won seven, tied one and lost but one to pick off 15 out of a possible 18 road points and thereby re-established themselves as strong playoff contenders in the Western Division.

Victoria's previous best on the road was a 14-point harvest by the 1974-75 team. The Cougars opened that campaign with a 10-game road trip and compiled a 6-2-2, won-tied-lost record.

"They've been coming," said coach Jack Shupe, who pointed out that the Cougars have lost only four times in their last 20 games. The surge has lifted Victoria out of the Western cellar into second place, two points ahead of Seattle Breakers.

Admittedly, all Victoria's rivals in the Western Division have games in hand but Shupe sees a balancing faator in "an excellent schedule for the rest of the season." Cougars will close out the regular campaign by playing 13 of their final 19 games at Memorial Arena.

The only remaining away games are against divisional rivals — three at Portland, two at Seattle and one in New Westminster. A seven-game home stand starts Saturday when they Cougars play host to Brandon Wheat Kings.

The Cougars closed their 13-day tour on a winning note because of another outstanding performance by netminder Steve Amiss. The redhead was magnificent in blocking 50 of the 51 shots directed his way Wednesday.

GARY LUPUL
. . .scores winner

It was enough to justify unanimous selection as the star of the game, the fifth time Amiss was so honored on the tour.

As spectacular as he was, Amiss also got good support from a rock-solid defence and back-checking forwards who peeled back quickly to pick up their checks. The tactics forced Billings attackers to take many of their shots from far out. When they did penetrate in close, Amiss and the quick-clearing Victoria defence worked the Cougars out of trouble.

Harvey Pocza was the only Bighorn to beat Amiss, scoring at 14:34 of the third period to tie the game, 1-1, briefly. Gary Lupul came back 18 seconds later to score the winner. It was Lupul's eighth goal in his last 10 games.

George Fritz opened scoring with his seventh goal of the trip and the Cougars sealed the victory on last-minute goals by Sid Giroux and Curt Fraser. Giroux scored into an open net at the 19:15 mark when Billings goalie Tim Thomlison was pulled in favor of an extra attack.

Thomlison went back in and Fraser added the final goal with a blistering shot with only 11 seconds left.

Each team was assessed one major and Victoria took five minors compared to Billings' two. Victoria played shorthanded for 6½ minutes but the Cougar penalty-killers also did their job in excellent fashion.

Despite the loss, Billings remained three points behind Lethbridge Broncos, the Central Division leaders. Lethbridge dropped a 6-4 decision to the touring Wheat Kings as captain Brad McCrimmon and high-scoring Brian Propp each scored twice.

In Wedneday's only other game, rookie John Eger scored three goals to spark Regina Pats to a 9-4 victory over Flin Flon Bombers.

Morerod Scores Giant Slalom Win

MEGEVE, France (CP) — Switzerland's 21-year-old World Cup holder, Lise-Marie Morerod, skiing in masterful fashion, twice dominated the world elite Thursday to win the giant slalom race of the International Arlberg Kandahar ski tournament. The race counted toward this year's World Cup.

Morerod decisively led the field in each of the two heats to win the race by 1½ seconds over Austria's Annemarie Moser-Proell.

France's Fabienne Serrat came from behind in the second heat to take third place, almost two seconds behind Morerod.

The unluckiest girl in the 12-nation race was Germany's world giant slalom champion Maria Epple who finished the first heat in second place, .64 seconds behind Morerod, but later was disqualified for launching her run one-third of a second before the starting signal.

Epple won the giant slalom world championship in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, West Germany last week and previously had placed among the top four in each of the four World Cup giant slalom races run this season.

Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., placed 11th in 2:41.28 with runs of 1:20.74 and 1:20.54.

Ali Continues His Silent Act

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Muhammad Ali, who has made work easy for reporters for so long, now is making it tough.

The heavyweight champion is giving the press the cold shoulder.

The 36-year-old Ali, who will defend his world boxing crown for the 20th time Feb. 15 at the Las Vegas Hilton Pavilion against former Olympic champion Leon Spinks, didn't talk to anyone except his wife Veronica, trainer Angelo Dundee and aide Bernie Yuman at his workout Tuesday.

The champion even resisted his normal lecture to the large audience. Instead of talking, he shadow-boxed, jumped rope and hit the heavy bag. He didn't spar with either James Ellis or Mike Dokes.

The silent act by Ali began Jan. 17 in Miami Beach, Fla., when he refused to speak with reporters at his 36th birthday party.

"Isn't he in great shape?" asked Dundee. "I think he's at 226 pounds now. He's done a lot of roadwork. He came into the gym weighing 245."

Entzminger Sparks A's

John Entzminger fired two goals Wednesday night to lead Victoria Athletics to a 6-3 victory over Juan de Fuca Merchants in South Island Big Six Hockey League play at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Gord Neilson, Ross McKinstry, Brian Hamilton and Dale Ewasiuk added singles to the Victoria total while Barry McLachian (2) and Brad Girling replied for Merchants.

Athletics and Merchants were tied 1-1 after the first period but Athletics took a narrow 3-2 advantage going into the final 20 minutes.

Dave Sandy of Juan de Fuca made 26 saves and Gord Michell blocked 22 shots on the Athletic net.

Old age pensioners will be admitted free to tonight's game between Athletics and Esquimalt Maple Leafs at 8:25 in Pearkes Arena.

Foul Key Play

By The Canadian Press

Brian Winters broke a shooting slump by pouring in a season-high 37 points Wednesday night, but the Milwaukee Bucks' guard saved perhaps his most significant play until there were only four seconds left on the clock.

Then, with the Bucks clinging to a 104-103 lead and Buffalo trying to set up a potential winning shot, Winters fouled Braves' star guard Randy Smith.

Smith, named most valuable player in Sunday's National Basketball Association all-star game, had the ball and was just starting to pass or drive when Winters grabbed him by the arm.

But the catch was that the Bucks had a foul to waste before they entered the penalty situation. Instead of Smith going to the free-throw line, the Braves had to pass the ball back inbounds with precious little time to find a good shot. Smith took the inbounds pass, but his 18-footer from the left of the key was short, preserving the Bucks' victory and snapping their five-game losing streak.

Dave Meyers's basket with 22 seconds left produced the winning margin as the Bucks climbed back to the .500 mark in their stretch drive for a playoff spot.

The Braves, who dropped their 10th sucessive game, dressed only eight players. Marvin (Bad News) Barnes was ill, while Bill Willoughby and Billy Knight—the latter averaging 23.9 points per game—are sidelined with injuries.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Returning after long absence from list of winners is Hilda Hildebrand, who captured women's fivepin award in 16th week of 15th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Hilda collected weekly laurels and berth in season-end Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs with 301-271-261 — 833 series in Friday Matinee League at Town and Country Lanes.

Titans Pad Skein

Victoria High Titans extended their unbeaten streak in the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League to four games Wednesday by tripping Oak Bay Barbarians, 10-4.

In other matches, St. Michael's University School topped Parkland 21-4, Spectrum tumbled Mt. Douglas Mountainmen 20-14, Belmont blanked Lambrick Park 7-0 and Claremont Spartans and Esquimalt Dockers battled to a 10-10 exhibition deadlock.

Trios Hang On

CHEMAINUS — Oak Bay Trios held of a furious rally by Fuller Lake Flyers Wednesday night before chalking up a 6-5 victory in a Patterson Division game of the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League at Fuller Lake Arena.

Steve Hunt fired what proved to be the winning goal in the third period after Trios had breezed to 2-0 and 4-1 period leads.

Clay Bertoia scored the first three goals for Oak Bay and single tallies were added by Brad Pettinger and Ian McLaren.

Steve Mitchell, Ken Ellison, Laurie Bell, Glen Naylor and Greg Hollett answered for Fuller Lake.

No Shortage of NHL Jobs For Canadians — Ziegler

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — National Hockey League president John Ziegler says he foresees little change in the number of Canadian junior players finding employment in the NHL in the coming years.

Ziegler, in an address at the Ontario Major Junior Hockey League's annual all-star gathering, was commenting on recent reports that the United States government may try to limit the number of Canadians playing hockey in the U.S.

"The stories are totally incorrect about the U.S. screening hockey players coming in," Ziegler said.

"The realities are that 85 per cent of the players in the NHL are from the Canadian major junior leagues. That percentage will not change much in coming years."

He added that the Ontario Hockey Association alone has provided 45 per cent of the players picked in the first two rounds of the NHL's last six annual drafts.

Ziegler also reviewed some of his comments at the recent NHL meetings in Buffalo where he discussed plans for a possible annual all-star series between a select NHL squad and a Soviet Union all-star team.

"In Buffalo, a good idea came out—our best against their best. I think it has the prospect of being one of the great sports spectacles the world, or North America, has seen in some time."

Reviewing the league's recent progress, Ziegler said: "In my opinion, we have reversed the negative opinion that has resulted in the last four years, in our wars with the WHA (World Hockey Association), in the business of litigation and other factors that have caused us to lose part of the fun of the game."

He admitted the league has learned a lot from its mistakes.

"The entertainment and sport is going to get better because we're getting smarter.

"The NHL is going to grow. Whether it's going to grow by numbers, I can't say, but it's going to grow in entertainment value."

Black Hawks Run Streak to Seven

By The Canadian Press

As Montreal Canadiens continue to claim most of the attention because of a 20-game unbeaten streak, Chicago Black Hawks quietly go about performing one of the biggest turnarounds of the National Hockey League season.

The Black Hawks, who suffered their most dismal season in 20 years during the 1976-77 campaign, have made a complete turnabout this season and, with 56 points, are within seven of their entire total for last year.

Chicago's latest victory came Wednesday as the Hawks recorded their seventh consecutive triumph with a 5-4 victory over New York Islanders in a battle of divisional leaders. It was also their 10th win against one loss in their last 13 games.

The win gave the Hawks, leaders in the Smythe Division, a commanding 15-point bulge on second-place Vancouver Canucks. Meanwhile, the Islanders cling to a two-point lead over second-place Philadelphia Flyers in the Patrick Division.

In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs edged St. Louis Blues 5-4, Buffalo Bruins dumped Cleveland Barons 5-2 and New York Rangers blanked Minnesota North Stars 3-0. (See summaries, standings on page 15).

One player who typifies the Hawks' transformation is Ivan Boldirev, who scored his 21st goal of the season in Wednesday's victory, tops on the club. He managed only 24 goals last season.

"This season has been a real pleasure," said Boldirev, who also drew two assists—including one on J. P. Bordeleau's winner at 10:42 of the final period. "Its probably my best and with the team effort, it hasn't been hard to score a lot of goals."

Veteran Stan Mikita scored twice for the Hawks while rookie sensation Mike Bossy scored one of the Islanders' goals. It was Bossy's 40th of the season.

Chicago's toughest test to date comes tonight when the Hawks meet head-on with the red-hot Canadiens.

Errol Thompson, foiled on a breakaway midway through the third period, made no mistake when given a second opportunity—beating St. Louis goaltender Phil Myre for Toronto's game winner with 2:43 remaining in the game. He took a pass from George Ferguson at centre ice and sped in alone to beat Myre with a backhander.

The Blues, who had led 3-1 midway through the second period, lost Curt Bennett late in the second period when he was given a match penalty for kneeing Leafs defenceman Trevor Johansen after the two became embroiled in a fight in front of the Toronto goal.

Danny Gare scored twice for Buffalo as the Sabres moved into a first-place tie with Boston Bruins in the Adams Division, nine points ahead of the third-place Leafs.

Phil Esposito hit the 20-goal mark for the 14th year in a row and Wayne Thomas registered his fourth shutout of the season as the Rangers blanked the North Stars.

GRAY MEETS GREEN

LONDON (Reuter) — Commonwealth welterweight boxing champion Clyde Gray of Toronto will defend his title against David (Boy) Green of Britain at Wembley Stadium on March 7, promoter Harry Levene has announced.

Green, who has been out of action for four months, lost a bid for the world title when he was beaten by Carlos Palomino of the United States last year.

Tigers Whip Dunsmuir

Victoria High Tigers blasted Dunsmuir 44-7 in the lone Greater Victoria High School Girls' Basketball League game played Wednesday.

Kim Peterson scored 13 points and Sandy Lewis added 10 to pace the Tigers, who moved into a tie for second place in the "A" Division with Spectrum.

Trilec Wins Twice

Trilec Installations collected two victories in one game Wednesday while downing Little Giant Bakeries 54-23 in Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League play at S.J. Willis Junior High School.

The game also counted as the opener of the Vancouver Island junior men's playoff.

Charlie Davis led Trilec with 18 points while Doug Calbeck added 12. Rob Spanier set the pace for Bakers with 14 and John Horrigan added 12.

Trilec now meets UVic Jayvees in the second game of the playoff on Monday night.

Graham Has Hope Lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — David Graham, a native Australian, says he intends to concentrate more on the American golf tour and less on his interests outside the United States.

Graham said he had his best year on the tour in 1976, earning $176,174, but fell off to only $72,086 last year because he spent too much time travelling some 200,000 miles, most of it outside the U.S.

"What happens to most players happend to me," said the 31-year-old Graham after he shot a six-under-par 66 to take a one-stroke lead Wednesday in the opening round of the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

"I got relaxed, picking and choosing where I played," Graham said. "At the end of the year, I was financially well off, but I was playing for easy money and not with my golf clubs.

"I made my name in America, so I'm going to play here more," said Graham, who now makes his home in Del Ray, Fla. He said he plans to play only in the British and Australian Opens outside the U.S. this year.

Graham, who has played in only one other tournament so far this year, needed an eagle on the 501-yard, par-five 18th hole at Bermuda Dunes to edge Peter Oosterhuis, David Eichelberger, Victor Regalado and Fuzzy Zoeller, who came home with five-under 67s.

Oddly enough, all but Zoeller played at Bermuda Dunes, site of Sunday's final round, which is considered the toughest of the four courses used in the tournament.

Right behind the top five, at 68, were defending champion Rik Massengale, Tom Purtzer, Larry Nelson and Keith Fergus.

Tom Watson, 1977's top money-winner who already has won the Bing Crosby and the Tucson Open this year, and crowd favorite Arnold Palmer, who has won here five times, led a group of 10 that came home with 69s. The others were Jim White, Ron Cerrudo, Bob Murphy, Tom Shaw, Bob Rosburg, Barry Jaeckel, Grier Jones and Bill Rogers.

Palmer, who had an eagle on the 521-yard sixth hole at La Quinta, said he struggled throughout the round, especially the final hole of the day, a 391-yard, par-four, which he bogied.

"It ruins the whole day," he said. "It really upsets me."

Forest Eyes Soccer Double

LONDON (Reuter) — Nottingham Forest marched one step closer to the double of Cup and league victory when it beat Leeds 3-1 in the away leg of the League Cup soccer semi-final Wednesday.

The League Cup, though far younger than the F.A. Cup, also stages its final at Wembley and the winner qualifies for the European Football Union (UEFA) Cup next season.

Peter Withe, with two goals in three minutes mid-way through the first half, shocked Leeds, last club to beat Forest, which has since become runaway leaders in the first division.

Eddie Gray's low drive put Leeds back into the hunt before the half but Forest looked sharper on the break and with 15 minutes left, John O'Hare, a surprise substitute for the ineligible defender David Needham, made it 3-1.

The second leg will be played at Nottingham next Wednesday. The eventual winner meets either Liverpool or Arsenal in the final.

18 Rinks In B.C. Final

PRINCE GEORGE—Eighteen rinks, 11 of them qualifying out of the B. C. Curling Association bonspiel, will start play today to decide a representative for the best-of-three provincial men's final against the champion of the Pacific Coast Curling Association.

Joining zone-winners Bill Sweet of Nelson, Ralph Will of Sparwood, Bert Gretzinger of Kelowna, Doug Chilton of Vernon, Bob Fields of Burns Lake, Peter Delver of Prince Rupert and Darrell Will of Kamloops in the playoff were Bob McWhirter, Guy Marston, Dave Johnston, Mike Shelest, Mel Delziel and Pete Sherba of Prince George, Rick Shymanski of Mackenzie, Alex Coffey of Quesnel, Don Bogie and Rob Kuroyama of Kamloops and Wayne LaFace of Vernon.

Fry Upset

BRANDON (CP) — Top-seeded Barry Fry of Winnipeg dropped his opening game and had to scramble to avoid a second loss Wednesday at the Manitoba men's curling championship.

Fry lost 7-6 to Doug Armour of Souris then eliminated Alex Mowat of Winnipeg 6-5. But Fry had to score two on the 10th end and then steal a point on the 11th for the victory.

Eight rinks were undefeated after Wednesday—defending champion John Usackis of Lac du Bonnet, Gary Ross of Miami, Jack Shwaluk of Portage la Prairie and five Winnipeg rinks—Jack Hellemond, Hal Tanasichuk, Bill Walsh, Mike Riley and Doug Harrison.

Armour, 33, making his debut in the provincial championship, lost 7-3 to Hellemond after his upset win over Fry.

Deaf Skater Relies On Hand Signals

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — David Michalowski, deaf since birth, held the lead Wednesday in the junior men's category at the United States figure skating championships.

"I don't believe this; I don't believe this is happening to me today," said Michalowski, tears streaming down his face after the results of the compulsory figure tracing exercises were posted at the Portland Coliseum.

Michalowski, 20, from Park Ridge, Ill., earned the first-place votes of five judges along with a pair of second-place awards for a total of nine ordinals and 81.80 points. Californian Brian Boitano placed second with 11 ordinals and 81.30 points, while James Santee, also from Park Ridge, Ill., was third, picking up 26 ordinals and 77.20 points.

Even Michalowski was surprised after taking the lead in the first phase of the three-part competition. The two-minute skating program for junior men is scheduled for tonight and the free-skating program is set for Friday night.

"I doubt I'll win, but I'll just skate my best and let the judges decide," said Michalowski, who is able to read lips.

There was no surprise in the first day's standings in the senior women's event. Linda Fratianne, defending national and world champion, piled up a comfortable lead after the compulsory figures, a tedious exercise in tracing figure eights.

Michalowski is profoundly deaf, which means he cannot hear human voices but can hear loud sounds like airplanes. Never having heard human speech, Michalowski had to be taught to speak. His vocabulary is wide-ranging and his speech is fairly easily understood.

He is a junior rather than a senior skater because his coach, Carol Nitti Ueck, didn't think he was ready for the more difficult senior qualifying tests. But his skating seems so competent that when he entered his first major competition in 1974 no one knew he was deaf, except the referee.

"I had to tell the referee because I needed permission to stand by the ice and make crazy hand signals," Ueck said.

Wednesday's compulsory exercises were non-musical but the next two phases of the junior men's competition are skated to music. Since David can't hear the music, Ueck will signal him when to begin and give him a speed-up sign if he falls behind his music and a slowdown signal if he's moved ahead of the soundtrack.

"If he falls and recovers quickly, he can pick up the count," Ueck said. "But if he takes a real bad spill, he can become very lost and I'll have to talk him back into the routine."

Brian Monahan, a judge in the Midwest area, says the officials never consciously favor Michalowski.

"We never gave him an advantage because he's never needed it. Even though he can't hear the music, he's able to demonstrate musical mood changes in his routine. It's incredible."

Gaines Could Be Viking Trouble

University of Victoria Vikings, still needing to put the lock on the men's basketball title in the Canada West University Athletic Association, meet the University of Saskatchewan Huskies this weekend at McKinnon gym while the Vikettes, already champions-elect of the women's division, get tested by the Huskiettes.

The Vikings lead Calgary by four points, each team having four games remaining; and one way to enhance the Viking chances this week is devisinga plan to stop one of the league's all-time great scorers.

Roger Gaines, a conference all-star in recent seasons, is the lone bright light in what otherwise has been a dismal season for the Huskies who have won but three games this season. Gaines can shoot and may require special attention.

The Vikings are expected to be at full strength for the games with the exception of Gary Budd who is out for the balance of the season. Budd recently underwent surgery to have bone chips removed from his knee.

The Vikettes are 16-0 on the season and are expected to preserve that unblemished record.

Game times Friday and Saturday are 7 p.m. for the Vikettes-Huskiettes clashes and 8:30 p.m. for the Vikings-Huskies games.

The Jayvee Vikings will host Vancouver Raiders at McKinnon gym Saturday at 5 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m.

In volleyball activity, the all-Japan universities men's team will play the Vikings at the McKinnon complex Tuesday at 8 p.m.

THOMAS BACK

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Outfielder Gorman Thomas, a veteran of four baseball seasons with Milwaukee Brewers before he was cut last spring, has been reacquired by the Brewers for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Ryan Spurns TV Debate

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial Liberal leadership candidate Claude Ryan has refused a proposed television debate with his only opponent and says he will decline all future requests during the race.

Ryan said in a statement Wednesday that the nine regional all-candidate meetings organized by the Liberal party are adequately covered by the media and give party members ample opportunity to hear contenders.

The former Le Devoir publisher said his decision also applies to radio debates.

Raymond Garneau, his only declared opponent, had accepted an invitation for a television debate from the TVA network.

Ryan said that after April 16, the day following the leadership convention in Quebec City, "I'll be happy to cross swords with the leader of any other Quebec political party."

The two contenders addressed party members Wednesday night in Sherbrooke, 140 kilometres east of Montreal, and Ryan appeared to score an organizational victory.

Ryan supporters clearly outnumbered Garneau's for the first time. Their three previous face-to-face meetings were rated as standoffs.

"It shows we have a better organization than a lot of people think," said Ryan supporter John Ciaccia, national assembly member for Mount Royal.

A Bleak Future Feared

HAY RIVER (CP) — This community of about 4,100 residents faces a bleak future, according to its representative on the Northwest Territories government council.

He says it's going to become a ghost town.

Hay River Coun. Don Stewart said the tallest apartment building in the territories and a smaller complex — both in Hay River — have been forced into bankruptcy.

"This is just the beginning of the collapse of the town," he said.

Stewart had said earlier the decision against building a natural gas pipeline in the valley at this time is the prime cause of the community's decline.

Witnesses 'Pirated'

MONTREAL (CP) — Rivalry between Quebec and federal inquiries into illegal police activities broke into the open Wednesday in a wrangle over a key witness.

A lawyer for Quebec's Keable commission lashed out at the federal McDonald inquiry for practising "witness piracy" and showing "a lack of professional ethics."

Both commissions, one headed by labor lawyer Jean Keable and the other by Mr. Justice David C. McDonald of Alberta Supreme Court, are sitting here this week, continuing hearings on an an illegal police break-in at a left-wing news agency in October, 1972.

The dispute centres on the McDonald commission's decision to call former Quebec justice minister Jerome Choquette to the witness stand Tuesday, two days before his scheduled appearance today before the Keable inquiry.

Keable did not complain in December when the McDonald inquiry called several key witnesses, such as RCMP Chief Supt. Donald Cobb, while the Quebec commission was tied up in court fight with the federal government.

Train Sets Record

MIMITSU, Japan (Reuter) — An experimental "floating" train has reached a speed of 261 kilometres (156 miles) an hour in a test run. It easily surpassed Japan's "Bullet" trains which run at 210 kilometres (126 miles) an hour.

But this time, commission lawyer Jean-Pierre Lussier said:

"I was not only surprised but extremely disappointed and even disgusted by the way in which the McDonald commission proceeded with the questioning of Mr. Choquette."

Lussier described the incident as "deplorable in the extreme and out of place."

"I am convinced that, if there was a goal to this action, it was to break the sequence of our witnesses," he added, saying that this could throw evidence out of perspective and harm "the honor and integrity" of some witnesses.

He pointed out that Keable announced six days ago that Choquette was to appear today, along with Maurice St. Pierre, former director of the Quebec provincial police.

Lussier accused Mr. Justice McDonald of calling Choquette at the last minute "to the surprise and, I would even say, without the knowledge of everyone."

Mr. Justice McDonald replied that he had been planning to call Choquette for some time. He said he only learned last weekend that the witness was to appear before Keable today, while looking at television.

McDonald commission lawyer A. J. Campbell said: "I don't consult Mr. Lussier on witnesses and he doesn't consult me.

"I'm not going to comment of these kinds of statements.

COVERING THE CHANGES PLANNED BY McMURRAY

FORT MCMURRAY (CP) — This northern oil sands boom town has decided to fork out $700 to land on the cover of a business publication in an effort to improve the community's image.

The decision to pay cash to be splashed on the cover of Trade and Commerce magazine was reached by town board members who said they wanted to publicize the good side of Fort McMurray across the United States and Canada.

According to some board members, Fort McMurray has a frontier-town image, which board member Grant Howell said was painted by visiting press representatives.

Howell said it was time to counter-balance the effect of travelling experts who analyze the town in two days and then spread a derogatory image to their readers.

"Some of these people's views are ignorant and we should do something to try and reverse that," he said.

Council passed a motion to accept an invitation from the magazine to feature Fort McMurray's recent economic development in a cover story.

The price includes 1,000 reprints of the article along with costs for a one-page advertisement.

End of the Road Reached For 1,000 Workers at Inco

TORONTO (CP) — This week's paycheque from Inco Ltd. might be the last for more than 1,000 Sudbury, Ont., mining and smelting workers unless suggestions made Wednesday by a select committee of the Ontario legislature are put into effect.

The committee recommended a 60-day moratorium on job cuts planned for Monday at the company's Sudbury nickel operations and a temporary infusion of millions of dollars of government funds.

Premier William Davis and Inco officials were not available for comment but federal representatives said they were not optimistic that the recommendations would resolve the situation.

In the first 30 days of the moratorium, the federal and provincial governments would provide interest-free loans to finance excess production and pay about 2,000 workers scheduled to be laid off.

The workers would continue to produce nickel for which Inco says there are no markets. The loans would amount to more than $10 million.

Piles of unsold nickel would continue to grow during the second month, when Inco and the United Steelworkers of America, the union for most of the workers to be laid off, would implement a work-sharing program.

Under such a plan, workers would work for three weeks and draw unemployment insurance benefits during the fourth.

In Ottawa, Jacques Olivier, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister John Munro, said there is little chance the federal government can avert the layoffs.

Alastair Gillespie, energy, mines and resources minister, ruled out the possibility of the federal government buying nickel from Inco and stockpiling it until the market improves — a key component of the committee's recommendations.

Committee chairman Sidney Handleman said all that can be done before Monday is to "get assurances from the premier and the other parties that the legislation will be agreed to and we think it will."

Handleman said the cost of the moratorium, if it meant continuing production, would be the full payroll for one month for the workers who would have lost their jobs.

The average Inco wage, including benefits, is about $12 an hour.

Stewart Cooke, district Steelworkers director, said the union is "prepared to cooperate with the cabinet, both levels of government and the company to see how much of the committee's report can be put into effect."

"Our union supports most of the committee's report enthusiastically," Cooke said.

The union has previously balked at the idea of work sharing.

Last Oct. 20, Inco gave four months notice that it was reducing its work force by one-fifth at the nickel mine and refinery, the backbone of Sudbury's economy.

About 2,800 jobs were to be eliminated — 600 through attrition by June, 1978, and 2,200 through layoffs effective Monday. About 1,800 of the 2,200 are members of the Steelworkers union. The other 400 are unorganized supervisory and clerical staff.

About 200 of the 2,200 to be laid off Monday already have taken early retirement.

Union officials have called the October announcement "the worst blow to hit Sudbury in memory."

Spur to Travel 'Not Enough'

OTTAWA (CP) — Plans to encourage Canadians to travel within the country have received mixed reactions from tourist industry officials interviewed this week.

But the officials agree further action is needed before the government can reverse the growing travel deficit.

The plans, put forward last week by Trade Minister Jack Horner and key industry executives, ask the government to spend $1.5 million to promote 54 see-Canada low-cost tours.

But Ash Mukherjee, Ottawa regional manager of Suntours Ltd., dismissed the tours as "a lot of window-dressing." He said the plans just call for recycling tours that already existed.

As well, the plans do not attack the root of the problem, he said — the lack of imaginative, aggressive marketing by tour organizers and hotel and restaurant owners.

Keith Westerlund, general manager of Ottawa Travel Agency Ltd., said if the new tours are publicized enough and sufficiently understood by the public, then they may have a marginal effect" in stemming the growing travel deficit.

Latest estimates for 1977 indicate that Canadians spent $1.7 billion more abroad than foreign tourists spent here.

But Tom Spalding, executive vice-president of Wardair, called the plans "an excellent first step" which should boost his company's business this year.

As well, the plans should serve as a catalyst to bring about badly-needed innovations in the way travel within the country is packaged and marketed, Spalding said.

But other changes are needed to stimulate domestic travel, he said, suggesting a hard government look at its user-pay policy for transportation.

The cost of flying in Canada is higher than in the U.S. and one contributing factor is higher airport service charges levied on planes.

As well, the government has a tradition of taking a centralized approach to running the airports, whereas some locally-run U.S. airports offer incentives to stimulate local tourism, Spalding said.

Spalding also said Wardair will push the transport commission to relax the 45-day advance booking rule for charter class airline seats.

He said the U.S. recently dropped that limit to 15 days and Canada should follow suit.

Westerlund said the limit turns off prospective tourists. Canadians thinking about going to Europe, tend to plan their trips far in advance, whereas there is the psychological problem that they are more spontaneous about travelling in their own country although the distances may be comparable, he said.

Westerlund also said there will not be enough charter class seats offered by Air Canada and CP Air this year to meet demands for low-cost travel packages.

Despite substantial increases in the number of charter class seats both airlines will make available, they "will be majjed up just as quickly," especially to popular destinations, he said.

Travel executives have blamed wages for much of their troubles, saying higher Canadian minimum wages compared with those in the U.S. make Canadian accommodations and restraints uncompetitive.

While Spalding said "the government ought to be taking a deep look at that area," Mukherjee said wage levels have less effect on tourism than poor, unimaginative marketing practices.

Another complaint was lodged by Nordair Ltd., which said it will not benefit from the government's promised $1.5 million promotional fund.

Ford Fairmont. North America's best selling new car in history.*

*Based on new car nameplate sales since introduction.

The sales results are in—and Fairmont is Ford's newest success car. Maybe it's because of Fairmont's good looks, or room or fuel economy or attractive price. But whatever it is, Fairmont has something for everyone.

When it comes to roominess, Fairmont holds five 6-footers comfortably, with exceptional all-around visibility. To help meet the challenge of rising prices, suggested retail prices are remarkably low, especially when you consider the equipment that is standard on Fairmont: rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, a new advanced front suspension system and front bucket seats, to mention a few. Fairmont's fuel economy ratings are close to some little economy cars, but plainly Fairmont is not a little economy car.

To help you better appreciate Fairmont's unique combination of low price, fuel economy and roominess, check the details below.

Ford Fairmont 2-door sedan
Certain items illustrated are optional at extra cost.

†NOTE — Fuel economy ratings based on Transport Canada approved test methods for the standard engine and transmission for each manufacturer. For Fairmont the engine is 2.3 litre, 4 cylinder with a 4-speed manual transmission. For competitive cars the base engines are 6 cylinder with 3-speed manual transmission. Your actual mileage will vary depending on driving conditions, driving habits, car's condition and optional equipment.

On roominess, Fairmont more than holds its own. Although Fairmont does not have the edge in every dimension, it's interesting to note it has more rear seat legroom and a bigger trunk than all these cars.

Action Urged On Fluoride

CORNWALL ISLAND, Ont. (CP) — Excessive exposure to fluoride pollution likely is seriously affecting human health in this St. Lawrence River community, say two United States doctors.

Drs. Bertram Carnow and Shirley Conibear, both envrionmental health experts, say the pollution must be reduced immediately and that a major study is needed to determine the extent of damage to human health.

Their findings are contained in a special report prepared for the St. Regis Indian Band. The report, given to The Canadian Press late Wednesday, has been sent to Indian Affairs Minister Hugh Faulkner with a band council demand that the federal government "wake up and take some action."

The fluoride is from the Reynolds Metals Co. aluminum smelter on the New York side of the river. The report says more than 25 million pounds of fluoride have drifted over, or have been dropped on, the island since the smelter opened in 1959.

Large amounts of fluoride can cause crippling bone disease, respiratory illnesses, thyroid problems and other ailments.

Cornwall Island is located in the middle of the St. Lawrence just off Cornwall, Ont. It is an Indian reserve occupied by approximately 1,300 Mohawks.

Reynolds has admitted that the fluoride has poisoned vegetation and cattle. Several years ago it paid compensation to some Mohawk farmers and installed pollution abatement equipment.

Mercury Levels

EDMONTON (CP) — A federal program for testing methyl mercury levels among natives in Alberta and the Northwest Territories shows 40 people have slightly-elevated levels of the chemical in their blood.

In Alberta, only two of 78 people tested had higher-than-normal levels — one in Fox Lake and another at Jean D'Or Prairie.

In both cases, the federal health and welfare department says, the levels were only slightly elevated, at 20 to 29 parts per million. Up to 19 parts per million is considered normal.

Levels over 100 parts per million are considered dangerous.

Police Win 4-Day Week

MONTREAL (CP) — Police began patrolling city streets early today for the first time in almost six days after union shop stewards accepted the recommendations of two provincial conciliators.

The tentative settlement came when the union representatives agreed on a compromise solution that included more money and a later starting date for a modified four-day week police wanted implemented almost immediately.

Spokesmen for the Montreal Urban Community (MUC) could not be reached for comment.

During the work slowdown which began Friday the city's 5,200 policemen answered emergency calls only and remained in their stations, playing cards and watching television.

The conciliators recommended that the so-called four-three schedule be put into effect in September, while the MUC had offered to begin Jan. 1. Policemen had been demanding implementation in April.

The conciliators also suggested a wage increase of seven per cent this year and next, instead of the six and eight per cent offered by the MUC, bringing the salary of a first-class constable to about $20,800 a year. A first-class constable with three years experience currently earns $19,025 a year.

Policemen would also be entitled to cost-of-living bonuses of $200 to $800 a year if inflation exceeds seven per cent a year.

Police, who had been negotiating for the new schedule for 18 months, implemented the four-three schedule on their own beginning Jan. 1 and worked the new hours for about a week until the city obtained a permanent injunction.

Under the modified four-three system, police will work 21 out of 35 days in a complicated cycle. They currently work 15 days out of 21.

Pierre Lenoir, vice-president of the policemen's brotherhood, said that all but one of 75 union stewards agreed to the conciliation proposals.

'Bus-Snatcher' Otto Raked

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative John Crosbie says the transport policies of Otto (Bus-snatcher) Lang are enough to make any province want to separate from Canada.

The MP for St. John's West said in the Commons Wednesday he can understand why some Quebecers want to separate after seeing the lamentable policies imposed by Transport Minister Lang in his native Newfoundland.

Crosbie's criticism of Lang came during second-reading debate on a bill which would put the government-owned Canadian National Railways on a new financial footing and wipe out $808 million of its debts.

Crosbie accused Lang of snatching control of the island's bus system from the provincial government. Once the buses were under control of the Canadian transport commission, a federal regulatory body, rates increased by 15 per cent.

Crosbie also accused the federal government of allowing the trans-Canada highway on the island to deteriorate to the point that it "was sinking in the more."

The CNR had cancelled its rail freight services, causing a larger number of heavy trucks to carry products on the highway.

Crosbie also lamented the state of the CN marine service, claiming its unpredictability was hurting local residents and damaging the tourist industry.

"That's great for Newfoundland's hoteliers, moteliers and purveyors of hot turkey sandwiches," Crosbie said bitterly.

The CN dockyards in St. John's badly needed $6 million for repairs but the federal government refused aid. If the yards were in better shape, more ships could use the facility and jobs would be created in a province which has the hoghest unemployment rate in the nation.

"This is an awful government that doesn't care."

Crosbie said he knows the CNR would like to cease all operations in Newfoundland. The services lose about $22 million annually, he said.

Region Split Urged for Mail

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Ritchie, appointed by the federal Progressive Conservative party to study the mail system, said Wednesday the post office could be decentralized into regional units to improve efficiency.

Ritchie, the 60-year-old Conservative candidate for the federal riding of York East, said it is bad management to have 70 per cent of the country's mail move through Toronto.

He plans to study the postal system in the next six weeks and report to Joe Clark, federal Conservative leader, on how the post office might be made more efficient.

Clark said Tuesday the report will be discussed in Parliament or during an election.

Ritchie said the public is not being well served by the postal service.

Ritchie is a former vice-president and director of Imperial Oil.

Tomatoes Get High Rating

Food for Thought

FOOD & nutrition

Q. I read your reply to a recent question about "other sources of potassium," but you didn't mention that tomatoes were also a convenient source. My internist said that tomatoes were No. 1 on the list as a source of potassium for people who take diuretics. Is that true?

A. Your internist is correct. A medium-sized tomato — about three inches diameter — contains approximately the same amount of potassium as a cup of orange juice, the "classic" aid for diuretics.

During the summer months, tomatoes are plentiful and inexpensive and they taste excellent. When in season, tomatoes and many other fruits and vegetables may be a more important source of potassium than at other times of the year, when their taste, texture, color and cost have far less appeal.

However, during the winter months, stewed tomatoes are an excellent and dependable source. And so is tomato juice. We should point out, however, that both tomatoes and tomato juice are usually canned with salt and so should be used in moderation.

In addition to tomatoes, there are many outstanding sources of potassium — potatoes, spinach, summer squash, kale, bananas, cantaloupe, apricots, peaches, watermelon and dried fruits. Other fruits and vegetables also provide important amounts. If you eat plenty of fruits and vegetables, you should have no trouble getting all the potassium you need.

Q. I have heard that pectin may be helpful in lowering blood cholesterol. Is that true?

A. In 1961, Dr. Ancel Keys and his coworkers at the University of Minnesota demonstrated that 15 grams of pectin a day (the amount estimated to be the upper level that could be provided in a natural human diet) lowered serum cholesterol levels in a group of middle-aged men on a controlled diet. After three weeks, the average cholesterol level had dropped below what it was on the same diet without a pectin supplement.

More recently, a group of British investigators gave supplements of 36 grams of cellulose, pectin and guar gum (a polysaccharide often used as a thickener in processed foods) to a group of healthy male volunteers. In this study, no attempt was made to regulate food intake.

However, based on the observation that the volunteers' weight varied minimally during the study, it was assumed that they continued to consume their usual diets during the test periods. Cellulose did not affect serum cholesterol levels, whereas pectin produced a drop of 29 milligrams. Guar gum supplements produced a drop of 36 milligrams of colesterol per 100 milliliters of blood.

No doubt this is an area of investigation that will receive further attention.

And while there are many good reasons to eat apples, berries and other fruits containing pectin, it is certainly premature to suggest that a cholesterol-lowering diet be replaced by one that includes pectin.

Q. In answering a recent question you mentioned that choline was thought to be a vitamin. I've noticed it advertised in a circular I just got from my local pharmacy. Could you please tell me more about it?

A. Choline has many important functions in the body. It is found in what are called phospholipids, where it aids in the transport and metabolism of fats. It is also an ingredient for normal nerve functioning and for the synthesis of several hormones.

Since it has been shown that choline is required for health in at least 10 species of animals, it is thought also to be a vitamin essential for man.

In animals, a deficiency of choline produces a fatty liver and a form of kidney disease. Because of articles on this research, we frequently get questions from readers inquiring about whether choline would be effective in the treatment of fatty liver, cirrhosis or chronic liver disease. Unfortunately, the attempts to use choline in treating these conditions have been disappointing.

Choline is naturally available in a wide variety of foods, including egg yolk, whole grains, legumes, meats and wheat germ. It can also be made by the body. What that adds up to is there is absolutely no reason to take choline supplements.

HAM SALAD SANDWICHES

2 cups diced cooked ham
½ cup finely diced celery
1 pound grated onion
⅓ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
12 slices whole wheat bread

Blend ham, celery, onion, mayonnaise and mustard together. Spread on six slices of bread and top with other slice.

NEARLY HIS LAST SLEEP

COPENHAGEN (AP) — A young Dane decided to sleep off a hangover in a garbage container — and it nearly killed him.

The container was hoisted to a garbage truck. As the destructor mechanism began rotating, an attendant spotted a protuding leg and stopped the machine as it was about to crush the still-sleeping man.

TRY PARTY FROSTED SANDWICH LOAF

Egg Filling

4 hard-cooked eggs, shelled and chopped
3 tbs. finely chopped green onions
3 tbsp. finely chopped celery
2 tbsp. chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
¼ cup mayonnaise (or salad dressing)
2 tsp. prepared mustard
salt and pepper (to taste)

Ham Filling

1 cup ground cooked ham
⅓ cup finely chopped green pepper
2 tbsp. pickle relish, well drained
½ tsp. horseradish
¼ cup mayonnaise (or salad dressing)
2 tsp. finely chopped parsley
salt and pepper (to taste)
1 unsliced sandwich loaf softened butter
12 oz. softened cream cheese
⅓ cup milk (approx.)
finely chopped parsley (garnish)
thinly sliced radishes (garnish)

Prepare egg filling by combining in a bowl, eggs, green onions, celery, olives, ¼ cup mayonnaise, and mustard. Season to taste with salt and pepper. In separate bowl, prepare ham filling by combining ham, green pepper, pickle relish, horseradish, ¼ cup mayonnaise, and parsley. Season to taste with salt and pepper. To prepare loaf, using a long, sharp knife, cut all crusts from bread; cut bread horizontally into 3 equal slices. Place bottom bread slice on large sheet of foil or plastic wrap; spread lightly with butter; spread with egg filling; top with second bread slice; lightly butter bread; spread with ham filling; top with remaining bread slice. Wrap in foil or plastic wrap. Before serving time, beat cream cheese and milk until light and fluffy (use amount of milk to obtain a good spreading consistency). Frost top and sides of loaf (or frost early; cover loosely, refrigerate). Garnish with chopped parsley and thinly sliced radishes. Use a sharp knife to slice the sandwich loaf.

Note — If desired, increase the number of layers of your Sandwich Loaf. Cut the bread horizontally into 4 equal slices. Use the Egg and Ham Filling in recipe and prepare 1 more filling of your choice (try using 1 cup finely chopped cucumber (drained) moistened with just enough mayonnaise to bind; season to taste with salt and pepper; add a dash of curry powder, if desired. Proceed as directed in recipe for first 2 layers. Spread extra filling over lightly buttered third layer. Top with fourth layer; frost.

When Batter's Up Use Bundt Pan

Mary Moore

Coffee cakes are popular.

Bundt pans are finding their way into many Canadian kitchens but you can use your tube pan for this.

This is a yeast cake, but inexperienced yeast bakers will have no trouble with it because explicit details will guide them.

KAFFEE KLATSCH COFFEE CAKE
(1 bundt or tube pan)

1 tbsp. granular yeast
1 tsp. sugar (first amount)
½ c. lukewarm water
⅔ c. scalded milk
¾ tsp. salt
⅓ c. butter or margarine
⅓ c. granulated sugar (second amount)
2 eggs
1 tsp. grated orange rind (optional but recommended)
3½ c. unsifted all-purpose flour (divided — see below)
¼ tsp. mace
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ c. chopped nuts (almonds or walnuts or pecans)
½ c. raisins
¾ c. chopped mixed glace fruit cake fruits
½ c. nut halves (same kind as used above — almonds or walnuts or pecans)

In measuring cup dissolve the 1 teaspoon sugar in the luke warm water. Sprinkle over the yeast and let soak 10 minutes. Stir down yeast with spoon.

Meanwhile scald milk. Remove from heat and add salt, butter or margarine and sugar (second amount) and stir until butter melts and salt and sugar are dissolved. Let cool to lukewarm.

In a large bowl combine the yeast liquid, lukewarm milk mixture, eggs and grated orange rind (if used). Add 3 cups of flour, mace, nutmeg, chopped nuts, raisins and mixed fruit cake fruit and beat until thoroughly blended and smooth. Scrape down sides of bowl. (Dough is very sticky.) Cover and let rise in warm place for 45 minutes. Punch down dough, turn out onto board floured with remaining ½ cup flour and knead 150 times. All of the flour will be kneaded in before you reach 150 strokes and dough will become very sticky but do your best. Do not be tempted to add more flour.

Butter generously a large 12-cup Bundt or Tube Pan and line bottom of it with the halves of nuts of your choice. Now you must arrange dough evenly around bottom of pan. I found the easiest way was to break off large chunks and shape chunk into a roll about 4" long and place in pan to fill bottom surface. I have enough dough to place two layers, one to top of the other.

Let rise in warm place until mixture almost fills the pan — about 1 to 1¼ hours. Bake at 350° deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes, placing a loose sheet of foil over top after 20 minutes of baking. Remove from oven and turn out of pan immediately and cool on wire rack. The nuts that lined bottom are now the top of the cake. Sprinkle sparingly with sifted icing sugar or sparingly drizzle over simple white icing.

dear abby

It's Fair to Share Dad With Others

DEAR ABBY: One year after Roy and I married, his father, a 68-year-old widower, came to visit us for "a few months." That was three years ago, and he's still here.

He's a nice enough person, but Roy and I have no privacy in this one-bedroom apartment. Dad sleeps on a sofa bed in the living room and comes with us wherever we go. I'm 30 now and Roy is 32, and we want a baby, but until his father leaves it's out of the question.

Dad has three other children (all married) who have invited him to live with them, but he prefers living with us because we live in California and the others live in New Jersey. He's in good health for his age, but all he does is eat, sleep, read and watch daytime TV. (We can't watch TV after 10 p.m. so he can sleep.)

Forget about letting Dad live alone. His family wouldn't hear of it.

I hate to complain to Roy because he's such a sweet guy and thinks it's his moral obligation to look after his father. But I just want to be alone with my husband, Abby. Am I being selfish? Our marriage is beginning to suffer from this arrangement? Is there a solution?

THREE IS A CROWD

DEAR THREE: Yes. Tell your husband that it's time for "Dad" to divide his time among the other children. You are not selfish; it's a matter of survival. And if your husband is the "sweet guy" you say he is, he'll see it your way.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23 and Peter, the man I'm engaged to, is 32. I love him very much and he says he loves me, and I guess he does, but I don't know why.

Peter is an engineer and he's had a very good education. I never went beyond the seventh grade. When we are with his friends, I'm always afraid I'll say the wrong thing, then everybody will know how dumb I am and Peter will be ashamed of me.

He says I am fine and I shouldn't worry about what to say, but by the end of the evening I'm so nervous and tied up in knots that I'm trembling. How can I get over this feeling? Folks tell me I'm pretty, but that's not enough. Can you help me?

SICK WITH FRIGHT

DEAR SICK: If you can write, you can read. And if you can read, you can learn. Read your newspaper and keep up with the current events. That's a beginning. And don't be afraid to speak up.

Victoria's Group of Eight Rack Up Artistic Firsts

elizabeth forbes

It's original in presentation, interesting in its diversification and unique in the number of "firsts" to which it can lay claim.

Briefly, that's my reaction (as a non-critic) to an art exhibit that opened a week ago in the Media Gallery, 716 Yates Street, and that will remain open until February 17.

Its originality stems not only from the interpretations one sees in the various works but also from the fact that eight Victoria women artists joined forces to mount this exhibit.

Also the FIRST time some of the artists have appeared in an exhibition and the FIRST time most of them have met.

This may also be the FIRST time — in Victoria and vicinity at least, and perhaps farther afield — that eight women have co-operated to present such a showing.

They describe themselves as in their "mature years."

That means "over 30 and under 50."

Some are married, some are single, some have children "now pretty well grown up".

Birthplaces include the Prairies, Ontario, Montreal and the United States.

At present however, they call Victoria "home". And they tell you it's a perfect place for the life style in art they have chosen.

Up until now they have all been working alone, some for as short a time as five years, others as long as 20 years.

Now that they have formed a group for this event they are planning to find a suitable place where they can get together regularly "and perhaps do work with models."

A few of these women artists tell you, quite candidly, that they have no formal training. That they evolved their distinctive styles on their own.

Others are highly qualified. One, in particular, studied at the famed Slade School of Art in London, England.

In the opinion of Heather Hestler, one of the trio now running the Media Gallery, "this mix tends to give a wide range of experience and leads to a wellbalanced quality in the work."

Hestler and her partners are "very excited" about the exhibit.

"All eight artists are talented," she says, "They deserve increased recognition and far more support for their work."

Then she expresses the hope that this co-operative effort will lead to "some — perhaps all — eight mounting one-person shows at the Media Gallery."

Certainly there appears to be scope for such showings.

In the present exhibit there are wood block prints, skrigraphs (silk screen), etchings, pencil drawings, watercolors, gouache (watercolors that are opaque), oils, acrylics, crayons and conte (charcoals).

The Media Gallery is open Tuesday to Thursday inclusive, and on Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Fridays the hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays the gallery is closed.

It's in the basement at the Jus-Rite Photo store at 716 Yates Street. You go through the store and down the stairs.

Names of the eight women artists are Elizabeth Ballam, Elizabeth Cullen, Jayne Finn, Irine Schestakowich, Phyllis Serota, Millicent Shapiro, Diane Thomson and Linda Willoughby.

Readers have again asked for a "recipe" for newspaper logs. Here's mine: Place folded sections of newspapers in a deep sink or tub; add enough warm water to cover papers. Add three or four squirts of liquid detergent. Place a broom handle across the sink or tub, and wrap a section of paper around the handle, squeezing out all the water you can. Keep adding paper sections as long as your hands can squeeze around the roll. Tie log ends with string. Slip the log off the handle and stand on end to dry. Or, roll solid paper logs with dry newspapers — however they burn faster than the papier mache.

A reminder when you're shopping for a new suede handbag for your autumn wardrobe: Check the lining. If it's plastic, don't expect a dry cleaner to freshen the leather after it's soiled. Drycleaning chemicals dissolve plastic linings, so most dry cleaners won't accept plastic-lined handbags.

'Innards' Cooked Right Can Taste Sublime

craig claiborne

There was a time when specialty cuts of meat — "innards," if you will — were, where cost was concerned, one of the chief bargains of the butcher's trade. Alas, that day may be past, with brains, liver, kidneys and so on gone the way of the more expensive cuts. There are those, of course, who may view such victuals with loathing and distaste, and a pity it is, for these foods can be sublime. Here is an international potpourri of excellent preparations for specialty cuts — kidneys, French style; tripe, Italian style; and Greek appetizer of sauteed brains.

VEAL KIDNEYS IN RED-WINE SAUCE

3 tablespoons coarsely chopped shallots
1 cup dry red wine
½ bay leaf
2 sprigs fresh thyme or ½ teaspoon dried
½ teaspoon crushed peppercorns
2 sprigs parsley
4 teaspoons red-wine vinegar
1 10¾-ounce can brown beef gravy
Salt and freshly ground pepper
3 veal kidneys, about 1¾ pounds
5 tablespoons butter
½ pound fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced
½ cup heavy cream.

1. Combine the shallots, wine, bay leaf, thyme, peppercorns, parsley and one teaspoon of wine vinegar in a saucepan. Bring to the boil and cook about five minutes over high heat to reduce.

2. Add the brown beef gravy and simmer 15 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste.

3. Meanwhile, split the kidneys in half and cut away the white centre corne. Thinly slice the kidneys crosswise and sprinkle with salt and pepper to taste.

4. Heat two tablespoons of butter in a skillet, and when it is very hot and starts to brown add the kidneys. Cook, shaking the skillet and stirring, over high heat for two to three minutes only. Turn the kidneys into a colander and let stand 10 to 15 minutes to drain thoroughly. Do not wash the skillet but set it aside.

5. To the skillet in which the kidneys cooked add one tablespoon of butter and add the mushrooms. Cook over high heat until the mushrooms give up their juices and then until the liquid evaporates.

6. When the sauce is ready, add the remaining vinegar.

7. Add the drained kidneys to the mushrooms. Strain the sauce over all and bring to the boil. Add the heavy cream, and when it reaches the boil swirl in the remaining butter. Add salt and pepper to taste and serve piping hot with baked rice.

Yield: Four to six servings.

CALF'S TRIPE GENOA-STYLE

4 pounds honeycomp tripe
Salt
2 tablespoons olive oil
½ cup ham fat or fatback
1 cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1 cup dry white wine
1 hot dried red pepper
2 cups imported canned Italian peeled tomatoes
2 cups chicken broth
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
Freshly ground pepper
Grated Parmesan cheese.

1. Place the tripe in a deep kettle and add water to cover and salt to taste. Bring to the boil and simmer about half an hour. Let stand until cool and refrigerate.

2. When ready to cook, drain the tripe and cut it into thin bite-size strips.

3. Heat the oil in a deep casserole and add the ham fat. Cook about five minutes, stirring, and add the onion and garlic. Cook until the onion is wilted and add the tripe.

4. Considerable liquid may come from the tripe. Cook this down about 10 minutes and add the wine and red pepper. Cook until almost all the liquid is evaporated. Add the tomatoes, chicken broth, parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until quite tender, about three hours.

5. Serve with grated Parmesan cheese on the side.

Yield: Ten to 12 servings.

SAUTEED BRAINS

1 pair calf's brains, about one pound
12 peppercorns
Salt
2 tablespoons wine vinegar
1 bay leaf
2 sprigs fresh thyme or ½ teaspoon dried
Freshly ground pepper
Flour for dredging
3 tablespoons butter, approximately
3 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ tablespoons finely chopped dill
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
½ teaspoon oregano
1 tablespoons capers

1. The calf's brain consists of a pair of lobes. Place them in a mixing bowl and add cold water to cover. Let them stand several hours, changing the cold water frequently.

2. Drain and pick over the brains to remove the outer membranes, blood and other extraneous matter. Place the brains in a saucepan and add cold water to cover about half an inch above the brains. Add the peppercorns, salt to taste, vinegar, bay leaf and thyme. Bring to the boil and simmer about three minutes; do not simmer longer. Remove from the heat and drain. Run under cold water until chilled. They are now ready to cook when patted dry. If the brains are not to be cooked until later, leave them covered with cold water.

3. Season with salt and pepper enough flour to coat the brains lightly.

4. Cut the brains into slices a quarter inch thick or slightly thicker. Dredge in the flour. Heat the butter in a skillet and brown the slices on both sides. Add more butter if necessary. Transfer the brains to a serving dish.

5. Combine the olive oil, lemon juice, water, dill, parsley, oregano and capers in a saucepan and bring to the boil. Pour the sauce over the brains and serve lukewarm.

Yield: Six or more appetizer servings.

It is believed that schizophrenia may be related to some chemical substance in the blood. It was this thought that prompted Dr. Herbert Wagemaker, of the University of Louisville School of Medicine in Kentucky, to try to cleanse the blood of the offending chemical.

A patient of his with chronic schizophrenia also had a kidney disorder. For this condition, kidney dialysis was given. This is a process by which unwanted chemical substances are removed from the blood when the kidney itself cannot do it. It was noted in this particular patient that the symptoms of schizophrenia were definitely diminished during the dialysis program.

Many readers have been seeking additional information about this new, exciting possibility. Direct communication with Dr. Wagemaker may give readers some indication of the reasearch program that is going on and the type of patient who may benefit by this still speculative approach to this mental disorder.

A new drug is being enthusiastically talked about in scientific circles. The drug seems to be able to reduce the calcium deposits within the arteries. In experimental animals there has also been marked reduction of the cholesterol levels in the blood.

Dr. William Hollander, of Boston University Medical Centre, has been studying this chemical compound, known as PHB. In a recent international symposium on drugs, it was shown that the drug may have very significant value as a protection against coronary artery disease.

Although the reports are still premature, there is sufficient interest to induce researchers all over the country to proceed to learn more about this anti-atherosclerotic drug. Only in this way can initial studies in animals later be translated for the benefit of humans.

The threat of hepatitis as an aftermath to blood transfusion is now being diminished. In Japan, at the Nagoya University Medical School, gamma globulin is now routinely given to patients who are being transfused.

Gamma globulin is a short-term protection against certain types of infection.

Another idea seems to be catching on. Patients who know that they are to be operated on at some future time are asked to donate one or more pints of blood. This blood is then banked and used for the same patient if the need should arise. In this way, there is greater assurance that the blood is free from the contaminants that someone else's blood might contain.

There are a great many elective operations where the patient is in good health and where such planning can take place.

Drumming up Credit

TORONTO — A man who said he was John Bonham, drummer for the rock group Led Zepplin, received VIP treatment at four local hotels, police said Wednesday.

A man claiming to be Bonham drove a stolen car to Toronto from Ottawa on Jan. 2, police said, and ran up bills in four Toronto hotels without paying.

He told two Toronto radio station employees he was in the city searching for a recording studio where the group could work when its United States tour ended in August.

During an interview at the station the interviewer, himself a drummer, said he thought the man's answers to questions about drumming were evasive.

Police have charged Patrick Dupuis, 27, of no fixed address, with theft, impersonation and fraud.

Leg Blood Clot Feared After Connie's Fall

LOS ANGELES — Entertainer Connie Stevens has been admitted to hospital to determine whether she has a blood clot in her right leg, a spokesman for Los Angeles New Hospital says. The 39-year-old Miss Stevens bruised her knee in a fall two weeks ago in Las Vegas. She was ordered to hospital by her doctor after the knee became swollen and turned black and blue.

SAN FRANCISCO — Former U.S. president Gerald Ford says his friendship with political foe Hubert Humphrey was "a relationship that could only exist in this country. Nobody would anticipate that somebody like Hubert, with his ideological views that he held so deeply, could be a friend of somebody who was somewhat more conservative than he." Ford told about 200 California business leaders and politicians at a tribute to the late senator that "one of the things that Hubert and I learned in our service in Congress and elsewhere was that you could disagree without being disagreeable."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Retiring FBI director Clarence Kelley is considering running next year for mayor of this city, his hometown, the Kansas City Star reported Wednesday. "Some Kansas City friends have told me I have a real good chance, that I am popular and I would get good support," Kelley said, in an interview in Washington as he prepared for his retirement next Wednesday. He is 65. The former police chief of the city said: "Kansas City has been good to me. I would like to be mayor, but I just can't say now that I will run. I have not turned it down. I don't know yet."

MONTREAL — Quebec Superior Court Justice Marcel Nichols annulled a marriage Wednesday between a 46-year-old widow and a 34-year-old bachelor on grounds the groom was homosexual. Mr. Justice Nichols ruled that a section of the Civil Code permitting annulments "when there is error as to the person" should be understood to imply that the complaining spouse has been misled on the "essential attributes of the other party." "It appears to me that today's social context authorizes us to take a broader interpretation of 'error as to the person'," he said. As well, Mr. Justice Nichols said he believed the woman's testimony that she would not have knowingly married a homosexual. The woman said her suspicions crystalized when her husband took her to a homosexual club where he was greeted affectionately by another man. She decided to leave him after six months of marriage.

LOS ANGELES — The lawyer representing fugitive movie director Roman Polanski has flown to Paris to try to persuade his client to return to the United States and face sentencing for having sex with a 13-year-old girl. A secretary at lawyer Douglas Dalton's office confirmed that Dalton was in Paris and probably would remain there this week. Polanski fled to London on Jan. 31, the night before he was to have been sentenced on a charge of having sexual intercourse with a minor—an offense previously known as statutory rape. The Polish-born director then flew to Paris, where, because he is a French citizen, he cannot be extradited. Nonetheless, the district attorney's office here was preparing extradition papers for Polanski's return, officials said.

CBC NETWORK LICENCE RENEWAL HEARING

In a Notice of Public Hearing issued on January 26, 1978, the Commission stated that it will hold a Public Hearing in Ottawa on June 12, 1978 at the Government Conference Centre, 2 Rideau Street, Ottawa, Ontario to consider applications for the CBC's French and English radio and television network licence renewals and other related issues. This Hearing will afford the Corporation an opportunity to present its programming plans and to indicate how it proposes to fulfill its mandate in the period ahead. The issues to be examined at the Hearing:

The Commission has concluded that at the forthcoming licence renewal Hearing attention should focus on those issues still outstanding from the CRTC 1974 decision along with a number of other issues contained in the CRTC Committee of Inquiry Report. The CRTC will also examine in detail those issues raised in the Touchstone document, and specifically the CBC's plan for future activity described by the President of the CBC in the conclusion of his document as:

> "... our commitment to an absolute priority of Canadianism in our programming, done with all the imagination and vitality of our creative community."

The CRTC proposes to conduct the Public Hearing discussions under the following headings:

(i) The CBC's expression of Canada;
(ii) The public's right to be informed;
(iii) The CBC's programming: Mass appeal or diversity of choice;
(iv) The question of the CBC's commercial constraints;
(v) The CBC as an open and responsive public service;
(vi) The CBC's international service: Radio-Canada international;
(vii) The CBC's facilities, extension of service and financial support;
(viii) The CBC's reflection of special and minority needs.

The CRTC welcomes and invites public participation in this Hearing. In order to facilitate participation copies of the CRTC 1974 decision entitled Radio Frequencies are Public Property along with the Report of the Committee of Inquiry into the National Broadcasting Service (1977) and Touchstone of the CBC (1977) are available to the public by request to the Secretary General, CRTC, 100 Metcalfe Street, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A ON2.

Mad Canadian to Try

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Evel Knievel failed to leap the Snake River Canyon in his sky cycle, but stuntman Ken Carter, of Montreal, says he thinks he can make it across in a rocket-powered Lincoln Continental.

Carter, 41, who calls himself "The Mad Canadian," plans to use the same dirt ramp Knievel used for his unsuccessful leap four years ago. Carter said he has made arrangements with the owners of the canyon rim property to lease the land for the jump.

Knievel, from Butte, Mont., tried to jump the canyon Sept. 8, 1974 in a rocket-like vehicle he called a sky cycle. He failed when his parachutes opened too soon, slowing the rocket halfway across and sending it into the chasm.

Knievel was not injured, except for a few cuts.

"People think I'm crazy, trying to do something that Evel Knievel couldn't do," Carter said. "Evel Knievel made it to the other side—he just had a mechanical failure."

Twin Falls County placed restrictions on large gatherings after an estimated 10,000 to 15,000 persons showed up for the Knievel jump. Carter said he does not want an audience for his jump, but plans to notify only a small group of reporters shortly before the attempt.

County commission chairman Merl Leonard said, "Mr. Carter has not contacted any of us and gotten any information about our large gathering ordinance. Anything like this has an impact on the community."

A superficial post-mortem analysis of South's play in today's deal might give the impression that it was a routine run-of-the-mill hand. But a closer scrutiny will reveal that an error of ommission was committed by a defender; and had this error not been made, declarer might well have lost his contract.

Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

West's opening lead of the spade king was taken by dummy's ace. the singleton trump was then led, East followed with the six, and declarer's king captured the trick as West played the four. Declarer next led the deuce of trumps, East perforce winning with his ace. Later, declarer's queen of trumps was cashed, felling West's jack. Thus declarer fulfilled his contract, losing a trick in each suit.

As was stated, it looks like a routine deal, with declarer being a bit lucky in catching East with, specifically, the doubleton A-x of trumps. But suppose that on the initial trump lead West had dropped the ten, instead of mechanically following suit with his lowest trump, the four?

In this case declarer might well have hoped that West had been dealt the doubleton J-10 of trumps. And if he came to this conclusion, his next play might have been the trump queen, smothering West's (presumed) jack as East's ace won the trick. It would then have become a simple matter, after regaining the lead, to play the trump nine and pick up the outstanding trump (East's presumed four-spot).

But when West played the four on the first trump lead, he gave declarer no chance to go wrong. At the conclusion of the trick there were three trumps outstanding, the ace, the jack and the ten. If East still had either the A-J or A-10, then declarer would have to lose two trump tricks.

Therefore, in the actual play, declarer really had no option but to return a low trump at trick three, and hope that East had been dealt the doubleton A-6. As is evident, his hope materialized.

U.S. Offers $5.75M In Asbestos Suit

TYLER, Texas (AP) — THE U.S. government has agreed to pay $5.75 million to settle its share of a multi-million-dollar suit filed by 445 asbestos workers who said they were unknowingly exposed to cancer-causing materials, a judge said Wednesday.

U. S. District Judge William Stieger said he confirmed the settlement in a telephone call Wednesday with officials of the U.S. justice department in Washington. He said settlement offers from private defendants in the suit would bring the total amount paid to the asbestos workers to $20 million.

None of the lawyers representing the asbestos workers could be reached Wednesday to comment on whether the settlements are acceptable.

It was reported as early as last December that the government would attempt to settle the suit for the $5.75 million figure. In a memorandum, government lawyers warned that if a settlement were not made and the asbestos workers won their suit, a precedent would be set for future cases.

The workers sued the government and several private firms on grounds that their negligence resulted in on-the-job exposure to a type of asbestos called amosite, which has been shown to cause lung cancer in humans.

The suit was filed in 1974 on behalf of asbestos workers at a Tyler plant which was co-owned by PPG Industries and Corning Glass Works. The plant was closed in 1972.

AEC Urged Scientist To Deny N-Plant Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scientist told Congress on Wednesday that the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) put pressure on him in 1974 to contradict a report that indicated workers at one nuclear installation experienced an unusual number of cancer deaths.

Dr. Thomas Mancuso told a House of Representatives subcommittee the AEC asked him to take such action after it found that Dr. Samuel Milham, a researcher with the Washington State department of social and health services, was compiling a critical report.

The agency feared public knowledge of Milham's report on cancer deaths among employees of the Hanford Atomic Works in Richland, Wash., Mancuso said.

Milham never published his report, deciding instead to await further studies.

Mancuso said the commission wanted him to publish his own study, which by then had indicated no unusual number of cancer deaths at the plant.

Mancuso said he declined to do so because he thought his study was incomplete. He said he was relieved of responsibility for the research later in 1974 and the project was turned over to others.

When Mancuso's report was finally completed and released in 1976, it said 473 of the 3,883 Hanford workers who died between 1944 and 1972 perished from cancer.

PIPELINE TESTS PLANNED

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The Northwest Alaskan Pipeline Co. says it plans preconstruction tests in Canada next year for its Alaska Highway natural gas pipeline.

President John McMillian told a meeting of pipeline contractors in Boca Raton, Fla., that the program will include $10.5 million in facilities for full-scale pipe burst and frost heave tests.

The burst tests will be conducted near Rainbow Lake, Alta., McMillian said.

Strike Forcing Coal Rationing

Associated Press

Rapidly dwindling coal stockpiles brought declarations of energy emergencies in Indiana and West Virginia as opposition built among striking miners to a contract proposal which could end the utilities' woes.

In West Virginia, the state ordered a mandatory reduction of 10 per cent in power supplies to major industrial and commercial customers of two utilities whose stockpiles have slipped below the 30-day level. All consumers were asked to begin "very serious energy conservation."

"Mandatory cutbacks are imminent, and when I say imminent, I don't mean a matter of weeks. It's a matter of days," said William Sorrells, director of the Indiana energy office.

Kentucky has also approved plans for power cuts.

Brutality Charges Dropped

SALISBURY (AP) — The Rhodesian army said Wednesday it has completed an investigation of allegations of brutality by some of its troops against black tribesmen last year and has ruled out serious prosecutions because several key witnesses are not available.

A military spokesman said in a statement that summary disciplinary action has been taken and administrative measures made to preclude such incidents in the future.

He said the allegations involved incidents in which Ross Baughman, a contract photographer for The Associated Press, is said to have been closely concerned.

"Acting on legal advice, it was completely clear that, mainly due to the non-availability of several key witnesses including Mr. Baughman, together with other evidential and legal difficulties, a prosecution on any serious charges of atrocities or brutality would not be successful," he said.

Baughman, arranged last September to ride with a 25-man unit of the Grey Scouts, the only cavalry unit in Rhodesia's army.

While on a three-day mission with the scouts, Baughman said he witnessed white troops beat unconscious a black man suspected of recruiting guerrillas, burn huts and drag prisoners behind horses.

Baughman also described other brutalities he said he witnessed. The report was accompanied by Baughman's photographs of blacks being questioned at gunpoint and being led behind horses with ropes around their necks.

Movie Monopolies Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. justice department is trying to determine if the motion picture industry is using monopolistic tactics in distributing its films—including the phenomenally successful Star Wars.

The investigation marks the first time in more than 25 years that the industry has come under intensive scrutiny for alleged anti-trust violations.

"We plan to be a good deal more active in this area," said Assistant Attorney-General John Shenefield, head of the department's anti-trust division. "There are large implications, not only because it involves a lot of money but also because . . . it affects deeply the whole cultural life of the country."

A federal grand jury in New York is reported to be investigating complaints by theatre owners that Fox Film Co. engaged in block booking by requiring theaters showing Star Wars to also exhibit another Fox film called The Other Side of Midnight.

Under block booking procedures, a theatre owner is required to show a less popular movie for several weeks before he can get a movie like Star Wars.

A comparison of the two films' popularity as measured by gross receipts was not available. But Weekly Variety has reported that film distributors' cut of rental fees amounted to $127 million for Star Wars in 1977, but only $17 million for The Other Side of Midnight.

Fox refused to comment.

Syrian Guns Pin Lebanese

BEIRUT (AP) — Syrian forces and Christian troops of the Lebanese Army battled on the east side of Beirut for the third consecutive day today.

The Syrians tightened a tank ring around the 600-man garrison at the Lebanese Army's Fayadiyeh Barracks and poured rocket and artillery fire into the compound, Lebanese civilians said.

"There was a lull part of the night, but all hell broke loose again at daybreak," a Lebanese woman trapped in a basement near the barracks said over the telephone.

Almost 50 Syrian troops and Lebanese troops, militiamen and civilians were reported killed and more than 100 wounded in the first two days of the heaviest fighting in Beirut since Syrian intervention brought the Lebanese civil war to a halt 15 months ago.

A cease-fire ordered by Syrian President Hafez Assad and Lebanese President Elias Sarkis appeared to take effect Wednesday night, but occasional bursts of gunfire and shell explosions continued through the night.

Jamaica Loan

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Canada has agreed to lend Jamaica about $5 million to finance Jamaican rice purchase from Guyana, it was announced Wednesday.

Details of the Canadian loan were not disclosed.

RARE BIRD SEEN

WHANGAREI, New Zealand (Reuter) — New Zealand ornithologists say they have positively identified and photographed the Magenta petrel, a species of bird whose existence has never before been confirmed.

The last sighting was 110 years ago by an Italian, 500 miles east of Hatham Island.

An ornithological expedition headed by Davie Crockett, of Whangarei, claims to have attracted three of the birds with a bright light during a search last month.

Couple Burn for Hungry

BERLIN (AP) — A man and woman burned themselves to death outside the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church in downtown West Berlin on Wednesday in an apparent protest against world hunger.

Police watching over the badly burned bodies said they had not been able to identify the two people, believed to be between 20 and 30 years old.

The pair seated themselves just north of the church, poured gasoline over themselves and ignited it during the peak of West Berlin's rush hour, police said.

"They had a put up a banner saying they were protesting against world hunger," a policeman said.

U.K. MINERS REDUCE DEMANDS

LONDON (Reuter) — The British government won a major battle in its fight to restrain wages when negotiators representing 250,000 coal miners agreed Wednesday to drop demands for 90 per cent wage increases and to limit increases to a maximum of 10 per cent.

The news, following official statements that inflation in Britain was falling faster than expected, pushed up the value of the pound by about half a cent on exchange markets here.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey warned members of the ruling Labor party they should not expect a give-away "election budget," while members of Parliament speculated that October looked a likely election month.

Argentine Naval Presence

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Fifty Argentine naval ships have sailed for southern waters claimed by Argentina and neighboring Chile, Argentine naval sources confirmed Wednesday.

The navy refused to give a reason for the ship movement but other naval sources said it is connected to a jurisdictional dispute with Chile.

The ships include cruisers, destroyers, torpedo boats, and one aircraft carrier, the source said.

They said the ships would remain in the area indefinitely and carry out manoeuvres with Argentine ground forces.

Argentine troop movements were reported along the 3,500-kilometre border shared by the two countries.

The dispute goes back more than a century and centres on three small islands off the tip of South America. The islands are inhabited by eight families of Chilean sheepherders.

The countries took the dispute to arbitration before the British crown seven years ago under terms of a 1902 treaty. Chile won in a judgment made public last May.

Argentina rejected the ruling.

Those Weeds Are Helpful

GARDENING
jack beastall

Weeds become an obsession with some gardeners, an obsession that increases to a point where the pleasure of gardening is lost.

Seldom do we hear the home gardener recite the benefits of weeds, how they protect the soil from damage by pounding rain, how the deep rooting kinds bring plant nutrients from far down for the benefit of shallow rooting kinds, and their value in protecting the soil from scorching sun and keeping moisture near the surface.

What exactly do we mean by a weed? The term symbolizes any plant the gardener does not wish to have growing in the garden.

In most instances these will be native plants which have the ability to survive adverse conditions within the area to which they are indigenous.

When given a cultivated area where the soil has been improved, these native plants not only grow without any attention, they actually thrive and show their appreciation, much to the annoyance of the gardener.

One thing we are likely to forget is that all the plants we enjoy in our gardens are "weeds" in some other part of the world, and many of our local natives are considered desirable by gardeners in other parts of the northern hemisphere.

Pampas grass, rhododendrons, bamboo, orchids and many of the delightful bulbous plants we grow are the bane of farmers where these plants are native. Whether a plant is classed as a weed or something to be desired is solely a state of mind.

Improved by generations of careful cultivation and selection, many of the plants we despise are basic food crops in other countries, dandelion, burdock, nettles, fern fiddles and chickweed, to name a few. If some gigantic disaster should destroy our cultivated food plants our approach to weeds would quickly change.

Most gardeners can name chrysanthemums, dahlias or roses on sight, but few can name a weed or recognize those safe to eat.

For example, the dandelion is an excellent source of nutrition, but the Hairy Cat's-ear which thrives in our lawns all summer is poisonous, although it is called a dandelion by most gardeners. If our food supplies from Mexico, California, Texas, and Florida were suddenly cut off we would quickly learn the difference if only by trial and error.

The amazing discovery to most of us would be that a handful of edible weeds contain more nutrients of benefit to animal and human bodies than a handful from the packets in our cupboards or the contents of our refrigerators. The question is this: Should we continue our mania for destroying weeds or change our way of thinking and use them to our benefit?

Our chances of eliminating weeds are slim. Some of the most pernicious have seeds that can lie dormant in the soil for 50 years. Every time we dig or cultivate, these seeds are brought to the surface and germinate. We actually encourage their growth by methods designed to destroy them.

Seeds are dispersed annually by humans and animals, birds, machinery, tools and wind currents; no garden is immune from invasion. But even weed seeds are selective. Some prefer an acid soil, others alkaline conditions, some dry soil, others wet.

The weeds that thrive in any garden are often better indicators of soil conditions than the most elaborate soil tests. The gardener who learns his weeds can make a reasonable estimate of the quality of his soil.

Much as we would like a garden without weeds, we must constantly remind ourselves of one important fact; a soil unable to support hardy native plants would be unable to support the native plants from other lands for which we so willingly pay dollars to possess.

Possibly we would be making better use of our time if we learned about our weeds, learned the edible and the poisonous, and by cultivation and selection provided ourselves with food of higher nutritional value than can be purchased with our dollars and cents.

If we did that, we could truly say that gardening is a healthful hobby.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Tel Threatens to Cut Line

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Telephone Co. has threatened to cut service to two commercial customers unless phones connected by a private firm are replaced.

Peter Lancaster, B.C. Tel marketing manager, gave the warning Tuesday in meetings with owners of retail outlets in nearby New Westminster.

The action follows reports of a new telephone installation company Tell-A-Phone Systems Inc., whose owner, John Bryson, has started connecting phones to lines on customers' premises.

Bryson said he is prepared to battle in court for the right to install telephones in buildings where lines already exist. He said B.C. Tel's latest action poses a threat to the viability of his business.

David Whidden, owner of Central Vac Systems, a vacuum sales and service outlet, said Lancaster threatened to cut phone lines unless the privately-installed phones were replaced within four days by B.C. Tel staff.

"I've got no choice," he said. "My business is run on the phones so I can't be without them."

Whidden said he was satisfied with the efficiency of Bryson's telephone system, adding the cost was cheaper than B.C. Tel.

Wayne Atkins, owner of Aladdin Pest Control Ltd. and Mister Kleen Building Maintenance Ltd., said he also agreed to install B.C. Tel phone equipment.

"It's a matter of who pushes the hardest," he said. "It would be a long-term situation if we did fight it and we can't afford to be without the service."

Lancaster admitted phone lines could be cut if the equipment was not replaced, adding he mentioned this only after persistent questioning from Whidden.

Lancaster said he was skeptical lines would actually be cut, but that he was obligated to say it was a possibility.

Bryson said he is consulting a lawyer to try to stop the telephone company from cutting lines of customers utilizing his services. He said B.C. Tel is afraid to complain to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission because it may lose.

Bill Halladay, regional director of the department of communications, said he has no enforcement policy in such cases and is leaving any further action up to B.C. Tel. He suggested a court case might be the only way to settle the dispute.

'Prostitute' Files Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Civil Liberties Union has filed suit in U.S. District Court seeking $150,000 in damages for Arlene Carmen, 41, a church administrator who says she was falsely arrested Jan. 9 as a prostitute in the Times Square area. The charges were dropped for lack of evidence. The suit seeks damages and invalidation of a two-year-old state law that prohibits loitering for the purpose of prostitution.

Oak Bay Clubs Appeal Levies

The Victoria Golf Club and the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will appeal their 1978 assessments at a sitting of the Oak Bay court of revision next Tuesday.

The clubs are appealing assessments on land and improvements, a municipal official said. Neither appeal asks for a specific reduction in assesment, merely a general reduction.

Major BNA Changes Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's political leaders prescribed on Wednesday sweeping constitutional changes and an all-out attack on economic problems to cure Canada's ills as the Task Force on Canadian Unity opened a two-day hearing here.

Premier Bill Bennett told the task force that Canada's constitutional framework needs a complete overhaul to end concentration of power and wealth in Ontario and Quebec.

But Alex Macdonald, former attorney-general and spokesman for the New Democratic Party, said Bennett's proposals threatened to create unnecessary bureaucracy. He said that with common sense, the constitution can work — the economy is the real problem.

Gordon Gibson, provincial Liberal leader, submitted a 100-page brief explaining why he believes Canada's existing political system is "primitive, authoritarian and unsuited to a modern democracy where people know how to read and write."

The Senate must be reformed, Gibson said, to ensure a regional voice in national affairs and to curb the tendency of national governments to draft policy without considering regional impacts.

Bennett's three-part program included:

—Implementation of a national economic strategy "involving all governments in Canada to resolve the current economic situation."

—Restructuring federal-provincial bodies to guarantee full participation by the country's five regions.

—Revision of the Canadian political structure, particularly the Senate and Supreme Court, to correct an insensitivity to regional diversity that is "the basic flaw in our current federal system."

Macdonald countered Gibson and Bennett with a plea for the use of more humor and common sense in the Confederation debate.

"Our constitution can work with the necessary horse sense and compromise," he said, adding that it makes little sense to "pump up the Senate" when many backbench members of Parliament "don't know what to do with themselves."

"The best reform of the Senate is to let it pass away."

Vic Stephens, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, was less optimistic. He issued a challenge to the Canada's service clubs to take up the unity battle by arranging a massive exchange between residents of Quebec and other regions.

The task force heard briefs from three constitutional experts on technical aspects of reform during the morning.

The rest of the two-day session is to deal with briefs from a wide range of political, religious and cultural groups and includes two evening public forums.

In a brief prepared for the task force, Douglas Christie of the Committee for Western Independence, said Western Canada is nothing more than a subservient part of the eastern Canadian establishment.

Although some of the 40 speakers welcomed the task force hearings, others questioned the value of the unity debate.

As an example, Randy Noonan, 27, a recently laid-off Burnaby truck driver, said he was one of "one million unemployed Canadians who is wondering if Canadian unity can give me a job."

"Don't insult me by telling me my problem is Canadian unity. It isn't. I need a job."

B.C. Jail System 'Lacks Direction'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A problem with the British Columbia jail system is that "we really don't know what we are doing," Commissioner of Corrections John Ekstedt said Wednesday.

Ekstedt made the comment to the opening of an inquiry into all aspects of incarceration of women in provincial jails.

Justice Patricia Proudfoot of the B.C. Supreme Court is commissioner of the inquiry, set up in December by Attorney-General Garde Gardom following allegations of sexual extortion by male guards and other irregularities at the Lower Mainland regional correctional centre (Oakalla) in Burnaby.

"The vicious cycle is that we can't plan so we don't change and we don't change because we can't plan," Eckstedt said. "Some of us know on a day-to-day basis what we are doing, but as a collective enterprise, we suffer from lack of direction."

Ekstedt, who holds deputy minister rank in the attorney-general's department, attributed the problem to the lack of clear definition by politicians of the goals of the corrections service.

The service has no answer to such policy questions as whether the system should be providing punishment or treatment, removing offenders from the community or returning them to it, reforming them or protecting the public, he said.

Another difficulty, he said, is the high cost of replacing such old jail structures.

Ekstedt said the lack of coordination in the justice administration system comprising police enforcement, the courts and the jail service, compounds the problem. However, a department computer was acquired in 1974 to pull together information in the justice system.

An alternative to new jail facilities, he said, would be greater use of probation, community correction centres and other ways to reduce the prison population at Oakalla.

Equality of the sexes should stop at the entrance to living quarters of the Oakalla women's unit, the Elizabeth Fry Society said Wednesday.

The society urged that "no males be hired to work in or inspect" cells in the unit where about 75 women are confined.

The recommendation was one of 40 made to Justice Proudfoot.

Gardom had ordered that the director and deputy director of the unit, both men, be replaced by deputy director Marie Peacock, but nine male guards remain at the women's unit with duties that include inspection of cells.

Roden said it is "less of an invasion of privacy if women, not men, are allowed to enter the place where women inmates live."

The inquiry continues.

AirWest Names General Manager

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dick Laidman, former president of Pacific Western Airlines, has been appointed general manager of AirWest Airlines, president Norm Gold announced Wednesday.

Laidman was with PWA for 19 years, eight as president prior to his retirement in 1970.

Meanwhile, negotiations aimed at ending the lengthy strike by AirWest's Teamster Union employees are continuing, Gold said.

Newspaper Strikers Evicted

MONTREAL (CP) — Police evicted 50 striking employees of two Montreal French-language daily newspapers who had occupied a branch of the Montreal Trust Co. on the ground floor of busy Place Ville Marie today.

The demonstrators, employees of strikebound La Presse and Montreal-Matin, marched into the building shortly after 9:30 a.m. EST and had planned to stay for the day to publicize their dispute, now in its fifth month.

The demonstrators milled about for 90 minutes, barring the main doors to customers while they chanted slogans and singing popular songs whose lyrics had been altered to make fun of Paul Desmarais, owner of both newspapers.

The demonstrators said they chose Montreal Trust because the company is affiliated with Desmarais's Power Corp. financial empire. The trust company is controlled by The Investors Group of Winnipeg, in which Power Corp has a 56.5 per cent voting interest.

Officials of the trust company and Trizec Corp., owners of Place Ville Marie, the city's largest downtown office and shopping development, called police to evict the demonstrators. About 20 members of the riot squad moved in shortly after 11 a.m. EST and evicted the demonstrators without any resistance.

"We came here to express our dissatisfaction with the slowness of negotiations," said Michel Hotte, a spokesman for the demonstrators.

It was the second time strikers from the newspapers had occupied the premises. In December, a group spent more than three hours in the branch, but left just before police arrived.

Negotiations between management of the two newspapers — which are published in the same building — and the strikers broke down last week when the employer wouldn't accede to a union demand for a clause specifying that delivery workers won't be forced to cross picket lines in making deliveries.

Hotte said salaries also have to be discussed, although he said the unions concerned — affiliates of the Confederation of National Trade Unions — don't expect great problems there.

Prison Wardens Get Death Threats

TORONTO (CP) — A telephone caller who said he spoke for a group called the Prisoners Revolutionary Army has threatened a campaign of killing of prison wardens and guards to bring about prison reform.

The man called The Globe and Mail newsroom late Wednesday and read a statement saying that Ottawa has 10 days from the murder Tuesday of Michel Roy, warden of Archambault institute in Montreal, to make public 65 recommendations of a Commons subcommittee on prisons.

The caller appeared unaware that the recommendations were made public last June and many have been implemented already.

He said there will be further retaliation if his demand was not met.

"There will be no prison director or correctional officer safe."

Roy was shot dead while he was clearing snow outside his Montreal home "on the decision" of the group, the caller said but did not say whether the group was responsible for the actual killing.

The man, who insisted that his statement be tape-recorded, refused to identify himself or give any information that might authenticate his message.

"The only way I can authenticate this is to wait 10 days."

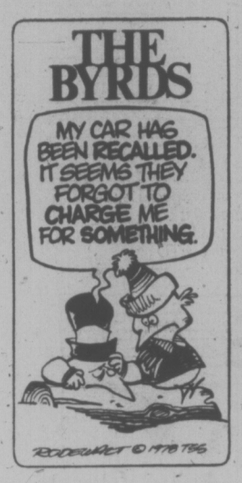
"There'll be other ways of authenticating it, you can rest assured about that."

The statement said that members of the Prisoners Revolutionary Army "have experienced, along with their brothers, the brutal force and utter futility which now exists in the Canadian Penitentiary Service."

Michel Le Corre, Quebec regional director of the Canadian Penitentiary Service, said "eighty or 90 per cent of those recommendations are already in effect anyway," and they had either already been made public or soon would be.

Meanwhile, in the Commons, Opposition MPs called for a revival of capital punishment and emergency measures to protect police and prison staff.

Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais rejected a return to hanging, abolished by Parliament in 1976. He added his department is doing all possible to help authorities pursue "the people responsible for this inexcusable act, this brutal act."



2 Cars, 2 Plates . . .One Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — Insurance Corp. of British Columbia (ICBC) officials said Wednesday they are being defrauded by some two-car families that split licence plates and insurance between both cars.

Officials said they cannot estimate the extent of the fraud.

R. J. Whitlock, superintendent of motor vehicles for the province, said the extent of the problem varies by municipality and is related to the consistency with which police stop cars with only one plate.

In B.C., auto insurance is bought from the government which also licenses vehicles. Decals affixed to each of the two licence plates on each car show licence and insurance is paid up.

Some two-car families divide a set of licence plates between their vehicles, affixing a plate to the rear of each car, ICBC officials said. Insurance is bought for only one of the cars and one of the two ICBC insurance decals is put on each plate.

The fraud comes to light only if the driver of the uninsured, unregistered vehicle is stopped by police for having only one licence plate or if the automobile is involved in an accident and an insurance claim is filed.

If the car is in an accident, the single-plate driver will usually settle any claim himself.

A $15 fine applies to drivers whose cars bear only one licence plate and an additional $15 fine is levied if the car is unregistered.

Owners of cars with one or more plates not registered to that vehicle are subject to a $250 fine while the driver of an uninsured car is liable to a minimum fine of $250 or three months imprisonment or both.

ICBC spokesman Bev Penhall said determining how many motorists divide a set of plates and insurance decals between two cars is impossible.

$2.5M Damages

MARINA SUES SOCRED MLA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Maple Bay Marina and Shipyard Ltd. Wednesday started a British Columbia Supreme Court action against Coquitlam Social Credit MLA George Kerster for $9,172.

The Duncan marina claims this amount represents the unpaid cost of repairs made between March and September, 1976 to Kerster's 26-foot pleasure cruiser.

YEAR-LONG RCMP PROBE

Soviet Spies Expelled

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson confirmed today that Canada has ordered some Soviet diplomats to leave the country for spying activities.

Earlier, government sources said that between 10 and 12 members of the Soviet embassy have been or are in the process of being expelled for spy operations.

The number is believed to be the largest ever expelled from the country.

The biggest previous spy roundup was during the 1940s when Russian cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko gave evidence of a Soviet spy network to the RCMP. Nine people were later convicted and nine acquitted on spy charges.

The last Soviet citizen expelled from Canada was Soviet exchange scientist Lev Griforeyvich Khovstantsev, 39, who was ordered to leave the country in February last year. He was expelled after buying documents from a fellow scientist at the National Research Council.

In a copyrighted story, the Edmonton Journal said that the expulsions follow more than a year of RCMP investigations.

Ottawa reporter Paul Jackson says the action is considered the biggest anti-espionage coup the force has ever had.

The newspaper says External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson called in Soviet Ambassador Alexander Yakovlev and told him of the action.

The stone-faced Jamieson was reported to have told Yakovlev that the evidence of a spy ring was irrefutable.

Jamieson was said to have warned Yakovlev that any retaliation against Canadian diplomats in Moscow would result in more Soviet diplomats being expelled from Canada.

The story said two of the Russian foreign officers had already been told they must leave the country and that 10 more were being so instructed today. A wife was told she must leave with her husband.

The Journal says Soviet diplomats apparently tried to get Canadian citizens to work for them for both ideological and financial reasons.

"So sure were the Russians that they had co-opted Canadian citizens that they even felt they had a top agent in the highest levels of government under their control.

"The phoney agent and other Canadian citizens played along with Soviet spies for months in order to help the RCMP fully uncover the extensive spy ring.

POSTAL HIJINKS SHOW ON FILM

FOREST, Ont. (CP) — Photographs of playful persons at a postal sorting station appeared on a film sent through the mail from Vancouver to this community, about 20 kilometres northeast of Sarnia.

The owner of the camera said he had loaned it to his sister in Vancouver. She wrapped the camera, which had a half-exposed roll of film inside, and mailed it back to her brother.

After the film was processed, the man said, he was puzzled by seven of the pictures, including one of a woman sticking out her tongue.

The man, who asked not to be identified, said he eventually discovered that the seven pictures were not taken by his sister.

"I certainly recognized the inside of the post office," he said.

The man said that workers in a postal-sorting station must have unwrapped the camera, taken pictures, then sent it on.

The man's sister said in an telephone interview said she is annoyed that there appears to be so little regard by postal workers about the confidentiality of what is entrusted to them in the mail.

Her brother said he did not send the photos to the postmaster in Vancouver because he thought it was an isolated incident until he began reading newspaper stories about abuse of parcels by postal workers.

He said he did not want his name used because he has no complaints about postal workers in Forest and does not want his comments regarded as an attack on them.

Like It Or Not. . . Tel Return Planned

B.C. Telephone Co. employees, who have been off the job since Nov. 24, are going back to work on Monday but the company doesn't want them — at least not all of them at once.

B.C. Tel wants the 10,000 locked out and striking employees to return to work on a gradual basis over a nine-day period but the union wants all its members back on the job as soon as ratification votes on a tentative agreement have been completed.

The union sees the company's return-to-work proposal as a repeat of the situation following a strike in 1969 when there was a 14-day phase-in. The TWU says the company used this as a method of punishing the more active union members by keeping them off the job until the very end.

Company spokesman Keith Mathews said today the union's charge is ridiculous.

"It wasn't the reason for the phase-in in 1969 and it isn't the reason this time," he said.

Mathews said there are about 250 supervisors whose home base is the company's main office in the Vancouver area who are scattered around the province filling in for striking or locked-out employees.

He said it will take time for these people to get back to their jobs and be in a position to assign work to the returning employees.

Membership voting is expected to be completed by Sunday, paving the way for the employees to show up for work on Monday morning.

A meeting has been scheduled for Friday with federal mediator Mike Collins who has already held five days of talks with both sides on the return-to-work issue.

The company says it will be at the meeting but the union won't.

B.C. Tel officials and negotiators for the Telecommunications Workers Union have tentatively agreed to a three-year contract retroactive to Jan. 1, 1977.

TWU ratification meetings began Wednesday night on the three-year contract and union officials feel the voting can be cleared up in three days.

The TWU's return-to-work threat assumes that the union members will accept the tentative agreement, which was based on the recommendations of B.C. Supreme Court Judge Henry Hutcheon, but union officials don't foresee any problems.

"Our people will return to work," TWU president Bob Donnelly said. "Any ramifications that flow from that will be dealt with as they happen."

The union is advising its

Blizzard conditions closed schools and secondary roads throughout eastern Alberta Wednesday while in the province's south a county hospital sought emergency help to cope with the storm.

Officials at Bow Island Hospital in Forty-Mile County near Lethbridge asked Alberta disaster services to supply snowmobiles with sleds to carry doctors to emergencies and patients to hospitals.

RCMP officials advised motorists to stay off major highways between Calgary and Edmonton because of drifting snow and near-zero visibility.

In areas southeast of Red Deer, full blizzard conditions — driving winds, six centimetres of snow, heavy drifting and zero visibility — prevailed.

Rail transportation in and out of Edmonton was curbed by the storm. The Canadian National rail liner to Calgary was cancelled Wednesday. The Edmonton train from Drumheller was also cancelled.

Calgary buses to Saskatoon were not running and bus service was halted in the Medicine Hat area.

In St. John's Nfld., bare pavement was showing on most downtown streets today after a 24-hour snowfall of 36 centimetres but schools remained closed and most businesses planned not to open until noon.

A storm with winds gusting to 80 kilometres an hour that brought the snow was moving out into the North Atlantic.

In the U.S., Texas, Oklahoma and the Pacific Coast, still recovering from previous storms, were hit with new waves of foul weather today.

The U.S. Northeast, however, expected a full day of sunshine as it dug out from Monday's blizzard.

Oklahoma residents were plowing through 10 to 15 centimetres of snow Wednesday when the first flurries of another storm began to fall. Up to 25 centimetres could accumulate today.

RUGBY CHALLENGE BOLSTERS UNITY?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Surrey Beavers Rugby Club stole the show at a public forum of the Task Force on Canadian Unity Wednesday with a challenge to any Quebec rugby football team to a contest on the Plains of Abraham to be followed by a beer-drinking championship.

Club spokesman Gordon Stewart admitted to a laughing forum audience of about 450 that "whether we win, lose or draw, we really haven't been able to figure out how we will translate victory, loss or equality into constitutional changes, so, we'll forget about them."

The Beavers' presentation was one of the more emotional submissions made to the task force. Details on Page 40.

16 in Saanich Salvage Scrounging

Saanich police investigations into salvage materials being taken from municipal projects have indicated 16 employees of the public works department have been engaged in the practice for four years.

The investigations have also shown that some of the materials taken have been sold to local firms, Ald. David Paterson said today.

But Paterson, chairman of the finance committee, said unless the continuing investigations unearth grounds for action, he does not believe police will lay charges.

He said the actions of the employees involved were "incorrect" rather than illegal, because they were simply continuing what was apparently an accepted practice in the department over a period of at least 10 years.

Mayor Mel Couvelier declined to comment on the situation today, saying it would be difficult and also dangerous to do so until the investigation has been completed.

"The ramifications are not yet determined," he added.

Police investigation so far has indicated that over the four-year period the sum involved was about $7,400, Paterson said.

Most of what Couvelier has termed the "irregularities" have shown up in the waterworks division, involving pipe and other fittings that have been dug up and replaced with new materials.

Under normal circumstances these salvaged items would be collected and, when a bulk quantity was available, the municipal purchasing agent would call for bids from salvage operators.

"But over the years it has apparently been the custom in the yard for the employees to salvage as much as they could individually and dispose of it on an individual basis," Paterson said.

"It's not that they are all full of larceny, running and ripping off the municipality. When they started it was one of the things that was done and no one questioned it."

No one, that is, until one former employee exposed the practice.

"Apparently he didn't like what was going on and didn't participate in it," Paterson continued. "Now he has brought it to the attention of the administrative staff and the investigation is under way."

He said some Victoria-area firms have been co-operating in the investigation and have supplied police with a total of 34 invoices. Of these, 16 over a four-year period have been linked with individual employees.

Religious 'Nut' L.A. Killer?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A religious part-time actor first described by police as "just another nut" has been arrested for investigation of the murders of 12 women, the victims of the Hillside Strangler.

Police said Ned Terrence York, 37, was arrested Wednesday after telephoning police and claiming responsibility for the killings in a lengthy, rambling call.

William Booth, a police commander, refused to call York's statements a confession, saying the man was "probably suffering from exhaustion." Booth said police had serious doubts about his story.

"But then he began to talk," said Lt. Dan Cooke, a public information officer for the department.

However, Cooke said that if police do not have enough evidence to charge York formally by Friday, he will probably be released.

Miss Weckler's death has been particularly puzzling to the special unit set up to investigate the Hillside Strangler case. The 20-year-old art student was not connected with the Hollywood street scene, as were most of the other victims. She lived in a quiet Glendale courtyard apartment selected for her by her parents, and neighbors said she seldom had visitors.

Her nude, strangled body was found Nov. 20 on a hillside near her home. The Hillside Strangler tag was created after strangled women, many of them nude and raped, began turning up on hillsides in the surburban Los Angeles area.

The balding, 6-foot-1, 240-pound York, whom neighbors described as "a normal man, a nice person," was taken from his home wearing only underwear. His arm was in a sling, the result of a fight with his dog, he said.

The personalized licence plate on York's yellow Volkswagen is RE 3:20, an apparent reference to the biblical passage Revelation 3:20. The license plate holder on York's car states, "Read the Bible," and a bumper sticker reads, "Peace with Christ."

B. P. Maddox, pastor of the First Southern Baptist Church, said York was a member of a religious cult called Children of God, which he said practiced "sexual divergences which do not go along with the Christian norm." However, friends said York has not been a member of Children of God for at least five years.

members to report to work on the shifts they left 13 weeks ago.

The tentative agreement calls for wage increases of six, four and six per cent over the three years.

The workers will get retroactive pay of $3.38 a day for the 10 months worked in 1977 and an additional wage increase of $2.10 an hour on return to work. Base rates ranged from $6.42 an hour to $9.75 under the old contract.

The major issue, contracting-out, was resolved when both parties agreed the matter should be turned over to a joint union-management committee headed by an independent chairman with the authority to arbitrate a decision.

Talks aimed at finding terms to guide the return to work came to an impasse Tuesday. About 600 union members demonstrated against the company's stand at its downtown Vancouver offices Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Mathews said the main focus of the company's attention once normal operations resume will be resumption of its construction program, mainly work on new electronic offices.

The one in Oak Bay, for example, is scheduled for expansion, he said.

He said the company is in reasonably good shape as far as handling the backlog of residential and commercial phone installations and the actual telephone system is in good shape.

SEIZED JUDGE TIED TO TREE

LYON, France (AP) — Police found Judge Noel Dalx bound to a tree in the woods early today. The 51-year-old judge told them he had been tied there for more than 12 hours.

The judge, who was kidnapped by four masked men Monday night, "was frozen, very exhausted and in shock," Police Chief Roger Chaix said.

"He was in no shape to explain what had happened and could only say he had been there since morning."

The police said there had been no demand for ransom and no negotiations with the kidnappers.

Until recently, he had been an examining magistrate, supervising investigations of persons who had been arrested and assessing the evidence to determine whether it was sufficient for conviction. But the police said he had not handled any major cases recently.

The police chief said he had been "roughly handled, treated without care and not given food since Monday night." His mouth was covered with adhesive tape, his wrists were handcuffed and he was wearing the same clothes he had on when he was abducted on his way home from grocery shopping.

Power Outage

Residents in East Sooke and Becher Bay went without power for six hours Wednesday night after strong winds blew a tree down on a B.C. Hydro line. A Hydro spokesman said power was out from 7:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. The tree knocked over a pole and five spans in the Cooper's Cove area.

Glazier-Wolfe Tax Meeting

Victoria Ald. Murray Glazier will meet Finance Minister Evan Wolfe Friday to discuss city-proposed changes to the government's Assessment Act.

City council has endorsed Glazier's request that the act be amended to remove apartments from the same category as single-family duplexes and condominiums, and assess them as commercial properties.

Glazier says that under the current system unacceptable tax pressures are placed on single-family and duplex housing while apartment blocks are enjoying an unfair tax reduction.

Glazier and Mayor Mike Young approached cabinet last week to complain about the tax inequities they say exist.

Glazier said that he was encouraged that Wolfe would call him for a meeting so soon after hearing the initial complaints.

"I think it's indicative that he's willing to make refinements," said Glazier.

McGeer, McLintock On Panel

Education Minister Pat McGeer and Victoria Times editor Barbara McLintock will be two of the featured speakers at a University of Victoria conference Friday that will focus on the education and employment of youth.

A background paper for the conference has been prepared on the subject by UVic's director of counselling service, Dr. H.D. Birch.

Participating in discussions will be 70 representatives from federal and provincial governments, universities, colleges, business, labor, industry and the news media.

The conference will be a day-long event.

Scrap Sales 'Incorrect'

Paterson for comment after receiving information that the situation involving misuse of salvage materials is more serious than has been indicated to date by Couvelier, who announced the investigation earlier this week.

Paterson admitted someone has suggested to him that the facts disclosed to date represent only the tip of the iceberg, but he said he is disinclined to believe that.

He would be "very surprised" if the total of the materials involved proved to be more than $10,000.

"It is not one of the things we as a council are going to get really excited about," he said, because the small-scale taking of items for personal use is a practice found in almost every place of employment.

Employees of Victoria Press Ltd. or the school board, for example, probably take pencils and items of stationery for their own use from time to time.

Procedures can be established to control the problem, Paterson said, but in many cases the cost of setting up such an administrative machinery far exceeds the original sum lost.

In the case of the Saanich municipal yard it is questionable whether the taking of materials was illegal because the practice was at least tacitly condoned by certain officials, he said.

"But the individuals knew that what they were doing was not entirely correct.

"The firms who have bought the materials probably knew they were buying it incorrectly as well."

They're Helping Take the Mystery Out of Sex

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

In these so-called liberated days, society still likes to pretend sexuality doesn't exist.

When the subject is sex, the generation gap becomes an abyss. Parents generally cross their fingers and let children figure the mystery out themselves.

Even medical schools and universities ignore human sexuality and its communication to the public.

Experts say sexual confusion contributes to behavior disorders such as depression, rebellion, delinquency and rape.

The increase in recent years of venereal disease, unplanned pregnancies and abortion proves this haphazard approach to the facts of life is taking its toll.

In 1963, the Greater Victoria school board decided to supplement whatever was being taught in the home with a broad course in human relations called family life education.

The program acknowledges human sexuality and brings it out into the open for discussion and instruction.

When it started it was controversial and the district had enough well-publicized brushes with anxious parents over the years to become cautious of media coverage.

But the attendance rate of almost 100 per cent has proven the program, which is optional, is providing needed information.

In the beginning, doctors did the instructing and hundreds of anxious parents turned up at pre-course meetings.

Now the course is taught by two specially-trained teachers who reassure an average of 30 parents who attend monthly meetings.

Roy Christie has been teaching the course five years and Kathy Adams joined him three years ago.

They spend a month each year at the 11 junior secondary schools in the district and work as a team, Christie instructing the boys and Adams the girls in Grades 8, 9 and 10.

Helped in Growing

In a recent school district survey, 85 per cent of the students who took the course said it helped them deal with the problems of growing up.

Through student feedback, the course has been revised over the years to keep up with the issues.

Grade 8 students get four one-hour sessions, one of them with a doctor or other resource person.

The Grade 8 course deals with the family unit, biological and cultural traits, the life cycle from infancy to old age, reproduction, relationships with others and available health services.

Although some elementary schools supply basic sex instruction, the family life course doesn't begin until Grade 8.

"Grade 8 is the key," Adams explains. "Before then students are too young to deal with the material and later on in high school they're too old to benefit from it.

"Kids are bombarded by an explosion of sex information through the media and the schools would be archaic if they didn't keep up," says Adams, a relaxed young woman with a friendly smile.

She studied psychology at university and later taught health education and guidance in Ontario.

Adams and Christie, a former biology teacher, are open and informal. They were selected for their teaching ability and most important, their rapport with students.

Students must feel comfortable if they're going to talk about things like masturbation, homosexuality and their relationships with the opposite sex.

Embarrassment and guilt are probably the main reasons children don't talk these things over with their parents.

According to Adams and Christie, only one-third of the students say they communicate with their parents about sex.

And even fewer get satisfactory answers.

"You should hear some of the strange and totally wrong things they come out with in class," Christie said.

The family life education handbook quotes sources as saying 25 per cent of all students are beyond help by Grade 8.

A wide assortment of slides, models and films collected through the years aids in the instruction. All new material goes through a screening committee comprised of teachers, parents, doctors and clergy.

Teaching methods are a combination of fact and common sense derived from experience.

Because the instructors have a vast supply of resource material at hand, they can discuss most topics in clinical detail that could not be obtained at home.

Common Sense

The emphasis is placed on scientific evidence rather than religious or cultural beliefs and the pros and cons of every topic are discussed fully.

Moral judgments are avoided and Adams and Christie tend to stay away from personal opinion unless they are specifically requested.

Classroom attitudes vary from redneck ignorance to worldly sophistication depending on the area, the pair has noticed.

Children of affluent, well-educated families tend to have liberal attitudes and a larger body of knowledge that seems to come from television and books rather than personal experience.

Generally, students from poor, less educated and broken homes have a wider range of personal experience — but paradoxically, less knowledge.

Statistics indicate a higher rate of pregnancy and abortion in these areas, according to Christie and Adams.

At the Grade 9 level, the instruction drops to two hours and the topics include venereal disease, emotional development, problem solving and relationships with the opposite sex.

In Grade 10, the program deals with sexual attitudes, a review of anatomy and conception and methods of birth control.

The section on birth control is undertaken with the full blessing of parents, who seem relieved to have the burden lifted from their shoulders.

"Parents indicate they want their children to know about birth control but they don't want to be the ones to tell them," Christie said.

Parents are afraid their children will think they are condoning sex and the use of contraceptives.

Before starting the program at each school, a meeting is held with parents. The structured course ends at Grade 10, but Christie and Adams make it a practice to travel to senior secondaries and talk to students.

At the senior level, the boys have caught up to the girls in terms of maturity and the classes are co-ed.

McClelland Draws 'Intractable' Label

Victoria Medical Society president Dr. Doug Critchley said today an "intractable" Health Minister Bob McClelland will ram the controversial Helmcken Road hospital through even if it's dead against public opinion.

He said the society's executive is meeting today to discuss what action can be taken following attacks Wednesday by McClelland and other cabinet ministers on a VMS newspaper advertisement which warned Victoria General Hospital will be closed as an acute care facility once the Helmcken Road hospital is completed.

"He (McClelland) told me three weeks ago he would not be swayed by public opinion. I don't believe that. It's a public matter. I wouldn't go on unless I believed we are right," Critchley said.

At Wednesday's meeting of the Capital Regional District's hospital board, Critchley presented a society brief urging the expansion of Victoria General on adjacent St. Ann's Academy land in order to avoid a split hospital.

At a press conference today, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, MLA for Victoria, said he has asked McClelland to build the Helmcken Road hospital in one phase instead of two, and had been told there were insufficient funds.

McClelland has accused the doctors of running an advertisement that is "immoral and dishonest."

Critchley admitted today the words "acute care" had not been included "but how long can you make an ad; and how do you deal with an intractable minister?

"He's playing with words. He told me three weeks ago Victoria General will be closed for acute care once Helmcken Road is completed.

"He told me he wouldn't consider acute care beds down there and said I could quote him."

Critchley said he asked McClelland to consider having extended care beds, instead of acute care ones, at Helmcken Road but the minister was adamant that this would not be done.

CRITCHLEY
... "we are right"

Critchley said such a move would have relieved the strain on the two downtown hospitals caused by extensive care patients being forced to use acute care facilities because there is nowhere else they can go at this time.

Critchley answered accusations that the society's stand does not represent the majority of its members. He said a referendum had been held, and a total of 170 doctors were against a split hospital compared to 66 in favor of the Helmcken Road site. He said 75 per cent of Greater Victoria doctors are society members.

Critchley said the minister is not being open when he says Victoria General will continue to be a health care centre.

"As we know Victoria General, it will no longer exist as an acute care hospital. I appealed to him on that point. If you change a downtown hotel into an office building you no longer have a hotel," Critchley said.

At Wednesday's meeting of the regional district's hospital board, city alderman Bob Wright made a motion that the region's hospital and health planning commission immediately start a study on the future role of Victoria General. The final allocation of acute care beds in the regional district would not be decided until the study is completed.

"I'm confident that a study by the commission will find that a community hospital will continue at the Humboldt site," Wright said.

Opposing the move, Saanich alderman John Mika said it was "a noble intelligent attempt for a band-aid solution".

Wright's motion, which includes an immediate start on the first phase of the new hospital and continuation of planning for the second phase, passed.

Earlier in the meeting another group of doctors appealed to the board not to have pediatrics and obstetrics moved from Royal Jubilee to the new site. They said the result would be depreciation of care for sick infants and children.

"I'm willing to jump through any number of hoops so long as we can come up with the correct solution," pediatrician Dr. Basil Boulton told the board.

Victims Thought It Was A Bridge

The occupants of a car that carried two Victorians to their death Tuesday night off Port Renfrew government dock apparently thought they were driving across a bridge.

Alexander Topper, 38, of Victoria, was identified by RCMP as the driver and one of the victims. Also drowned was Kim Annette Joyce, 17, of 4061 Larchwood.

Survivors were William Alfred Friers, 35, of 812 Old Esquimalt, and Richard James Kurahara, 19, of 791 Pandora, who made their way out of the four-door sedan and to shore.

The survivors told police they were in Port Renfrew for the first time that afternoon. When their car came to the wharf after dark they thought they were on a narrow bridge heading back toward Jordan River.

Police said tire swerve marks on the wharf deck seem to support this. The car was going about 25 mph when the driver realized his mistake and tried to stop.

An RCMP diving team recovered the bodies early Wednesday morning before the car was raised from about 30 feet of water.

A police spokesman said an inquest will be held but a date has not been set.

Over the past three decades seven other vehicles have gone off the dock, according to long-time residents of Port Renfrew.

Although the dock area has lighting, there are no warning signs indicating that the main road ends at the approach to the wharf, almost adjacent to the waterfront Port Renfrew Hotel.

An unsuspecting driver could easily mistake the wharf for a bridge or continuation of the main road, particularly in a rainstorm like Tuesday's.

Other Subdivisions Near Kingsview?

North Cowichan will encourage new subdivisions along Maple Bay Road near the troubled Kingsview Properties development, Mayor George Whittaker said today.

He said municipality has invested more than $500,000 in services in the area near Duncan and taxpayers can be assured the money will be recovered one way or the other.

"I am confident the Kingsview development will go ahead; they have got too big an investment there to let it collapse, but in any case the services will be paid for," he said.

"We will permit other subdivisions along the route and the developers will share the costs of the services already installed."

He said this process might take several years.

"One way or the other we will recover the money," he said. "If Kingsview goes ahead soon we will recover the money quickly. If it doesn't, then it will take a couple of years."

Whittaker said he has not received word from Kingsview on when the project might resume.

He said the development company will soon have to pay a large tax bill on the property.

"In three years their taxes will come to $250,000. Somebody will have to pay that or the whole development will revert to the municipality. We are protected but we hope the development will go ahead soon, as a vote of confidence in the local economy."

He said concern about a slow real estate market was a factor in Kingsview's decision to delay the project.

"There has been very little communication from the Kingsview people since the project was shelved. We are still waiting to hear when it will proceed."

He said 59 lots are ready for sale in the development now, and Kingsview may want to put them on the market so it can pay its bills.

In all, the development will have 1,200 lots for single family homes plus land for apartments and townhouses.

Father, Daughter Hurt in Crash

A girl and her father were treated at hospital and discharged after their car and two others collided at Gorge and Tillicum Wednesday night.

Saanich police are seeking witnesses to the crash in which Brad Thomas, 667 Treebank, received head and shoulder bruises and his daughter Trisha, 7, was cut on the head when thrown from the car by impact.

The accident occurred at 6:30 and damage to the vehicles was heavy.

Early today, at 2:57, driver Glen Alan Forsen, 21, of 530 West Bay, escaped without injury when the small car he was driving hit a power pole, snapping it off, in the 900-block of Old Esquimalt Road.

Damage was estimated at $700 to the car and $1,000 to the pole.

Bootleg Cabbie Nailed

A cab driver whose car yielded a least a dozen cases of beer and numerous bottles of liquor was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty in provincial court today to bootlegging.

Samuel John Patterson, 54, of 941 Kings, was charged under the B.C. Liquor Control and Licensing Act with selling after the permitted time, at 1:30 last Friday morning in a Gorge Road motel where city police constable Dan Parker had booked a room.

The officer, acting undercover, said he phoned Red Top Cabs at 12:55 a.m. and asked for Sam but was told he was not in. Parker then asked for a bottle of rye whiskey and was told it would be $13.

At 1:30 a station wagon cab appeared at the motel and Patterson delivered the bottle to Parker's room, where he was arrested. The cab was searched and its contents siezed.

"You sold it to the wrong man," Judge Harold Alder commented in fining Patterson and confiscating the liquor.

APPLICANTS PLUG CITIZENSHIP COURTS

Swearing-in ceremonies for new Canadian citizens in Victoria have tripled because of recent changes to the federal Citizenship Act, a court official said today.

Instead of having only one hearing a month the citizenship court is now holding ceremonies three times a month and is filled to capacity at each session, swearing in 69 new citizens at a time.

Other courts in B.C. have experienced similar surges and in a recent peak period more than 1,200 new citizens were sworn in around the province, compared with the weekly routine of 85 to 170 before the act was changed Feb. 15, 1977.

Additional judges and staff have been assigned to ease the load, which includes two or more swearing-in ceremonies a day in Vancouver with 120 new citizens presented with certificates at each, in addition to personal interviewing of candidates by the judges.

Before the changes, the routine was one or two swearing-in ceremonies a week.

"The reason we have had such an influx," said Norman L. Oreck, chief citizenship judge in B.C., "is that the residency qualification was reduced from five to three years."

"In addition, the qualifying age was reduced from 21 to 18. And persons who formerly were categorized as British subjects now are required to have the same kind of swearing-in and court ceremony as other applicants, instead of more or less automatically getting citizenship."

Oreck said that from January, 1976, to Feb. 15, 1977, there were 4,868 judges' interviews with individual citizenship applicants held by him and the three other full-time citizenship court judges in B.C. But since Feb. 15, 1977, there have been 18,826 such interviews.

Prison Wardens Get Death Threats

TORONTO (CP) — A telephone caller who said he spoke for a group called the Prisoners Revolutionary Army has threatened a campaign of killing of prison wardens and guards to bring about prison reform.

The man called The Globe and Mail newsroom late Wednesday and read a statement saying that Ottawa has 10 days from the murder Tuesday of Michel Roy, warden of Archambault institute in Montreal, to make public 65 recommendations of a Commons subcommittee on prisons.

The caller appeared unaware that the recommendations were made public last June and many have been implemented already.

He said there will be further retaliation if his demand was not met.

"There will be no prison director or correctional officer safe."

Roy was shot dead while he was clearing snow outside his Montreal home "on the decision" of the group, the caller said but did not say whether the group was responsible for the actual killing.

The man, who insisted that his statement be tape-recorded, refused to identify himself or give any information that might authenticate his message.

"The only way I can authenticate this is to wait 10 days."

"There'll be other ways of authenticating it, you can rest assured about that."

The statement said that members of the Prisoners Revolutionary Army "have experienced, along with their brothers, the brutal force and utter futility which now exists in the Canadian Penitentiary Service."

Michel Le Corre, Quebec regional director of the Canadian Penitentiary Service, said "80 or 90 per cent of those recommendations are already in effect anyway," and they had either already been made public or soon would be.

Meanwhile, in the Commons, Opposition MPs called for a revival of capital punishment and emergency measures to protect police and prison staff.

Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais rejected a return to hanging, abolished by Parliament in 1976. He added his department is doing all possible to help authorities pursue "the people responsible for this inexcusable act, this brutal act."

2 Cars, 2 Plates . . .One Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — Insurance Corp. of British Columbia (ICBC) officials said Wednesday they are being defrauded by some two-car families that split licence plates and insurance between both cars.

Officials said they cannot estimate the extent of the fraud.

R. J. Whitlock, superintendent of motor vehicles for the province, said the extent of the problem varies by municipality and is related to the consistency with which police stop cars with only one plate.

In B.C., auto insurance is bought from the government which also licenses vehicles. Decals affixed to each of the two licence plates on each car show licence and insurance is paid up.

Some two-car families divide a set of licence plates between their vehicles, affixing a plate to the rear of each car, ICBC officials said. Insurance is bought for only one of the cars and one of the two ICBC insurance decals is put on each plate.

The fraud comes to light only if the driver of the uninsured, unregistered vehicle is stopped by police for having only one licence plate or if the automobile is involved in an accident and an insurance claim is filed.

If the car is in an accident, the single-plate driver will usually settle any claim himself.

A $15 fine applies to drivers whose cars bear only one licence plate and an additional $15 fine is levied if the car is unregistered.

Owners of cars with one or more plates not registered to that vehicle are subject to a $250 fine while the driver of an uninsured car is liable to a minimum fine of $250 or three months imprisonment or both.

MARINA SUES SOCRED MLA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Maple Bay Marina and Shipyard Ltd. Wednesday started a British Columbia Supreme Court action against Coquitlam Social Credit MLA George Kerster for $9,172.

The Duncan marina claims this amount represents the unpaid cost of repairs made between March and September, 1976 to Kerster's 26-foot pleasure cruiser.

Soviet Spies Expelled

OTTAWA (CP) — Eleven Soviet officials have been ordered to leave Canada for attempting to recruit a high RCMP officer in spy activities, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson said today.

The minister said in the Commons that two more Soviet officials, now out of the country, will not be allowed to return to Canada.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander Yakovlev was told by the external affairs department earlier today that the 11 Soviet officials still in the country must leave immediately, the external affairs minister said.

The Soviet ambassador was told that these officials were being expelled for "engaging in inadmissible activities in violation of the Official Secrets Act" and their diplomatic status.

He said the Soviet spy effort was of "serious concern to the government."

The minister said the high RCMP officer was paid $30,500 for information of "no consequence," indicating the importance the Soviets placed on the spy effort.

The RCMP officer, who had previous contact with Soviet officials at an earlier time, had been offered "an unlimited amount of money" to spy for the Soviet Union, Jamieson said.

The Soviet spy activity in Canada had included microfilm and messages passed in cigarette packs contained in a hollowed-out stick, the minister said.

The Soviet officials involved are: Igor Vartanian, first-secretary responsible for sports and cultural affairs at the Soviet embassy; Nikolai Talanov, counsellor; Anatoly Mikhalin, Soviet Foreign Trade Office official; Vadin Borishpolets, attache; Vladimir Souvorov, second secretary.

Vladimir Oshkaderov, translator at the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) in Montreal; Yevgeniy Koblov, Soviet embassy clerk; Gennad Ivashavitch, third secretary; Oleg Reztsov, attache; Vera Reztsov, library employee in the embassy; Petr Lillenurm, second secretary; Voldemar Veber, embassy official who returned to the Soviet Union in July, 1977; and Andrei Krysin, a Soviet Foreign Trade Offfice official, returned to the Soviet Union in December, 1977.

The biggest previous spy roundup was during the 1940s when Russian cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko gave evidence of a Soviet spy network to the RCMP. Nine people were later convicted and nine acquitted on spy charges.

POSTAL HIJINKS SHOW ON FILM

FOREST, Ont. (CP) — Photographs of playful persons at a postal sorting station appeared on a film sent through the mail from Vancouver to this community, about 20 kilometres northeast of Sarnia.

The owner of the camera said he had loaned it to his sister in Vancouver. She wrapped the camera, which had a half-exposed roll of film inside, and mailed it back to her brother.

After the film was processed, the man said, he was puzzled by seven of the pictures, including one of a woman sticking out her tongue.

The man, who asked not to be identified, said he eventually discovered that the seven pictures were not taken by his sister.

"I certainly recognized the inside of the post office," he said.

The man said that workers in a postal-sorting station must have unwrapped the camera, taken pictures, then sent it on.

The man's sister said in a telephone interview she is annoyed that there appears to be so little regard by postal workers about the confidentiality of what is entrusted to them in the mail.

Her brother said he did not send the photos to the postmaster in Vancouver because he thought it was an isolated incident until he began reading newspaper stories about abuse of parcels by postal workers.

He said he did not want his name used because he has no complaints about postal workers in Forest and does not want his comments regarded as an attack on them.

Tel Workers Asked To Come Back Now

The B.C. Telephone Co. today invited its 10,000 employees, who have been off the job since Nov. 24, to begin returning to work immediately on a gradual basis.

Company chairman Gordon MacFarlane said it will take about five days to get all of the workers back to work.

The offer appears to be one the Telecommunications Workers Union can't meet as it is not likely the employees will go back on the job prior to completion of ratification votes on a tentative three-year agreement.

Voting on the contract began Wednesday night and is expected to take three days, meaning the earliest the employees could report for work would be Monday.

Union spokesmen were not available for comment on the latest development.

Prior to MacFarlane's statement, the company's position had been that there would have to be a phased-in return to work over a nine-day period.

The union said it wanted all its members to return as soon as the ratification voting is completed and said the employees will definitely report for work Monday morning.

MacFarlane said it is impossible for B.C. Tel to bring the employees back in a single day.

"Our supervisors have to be able to return to their normal jobs and employees assigned in an orderly way that assures no interruption in service to the public," he said.

But he said there is no reason why the employees have to wait until Monday to return and some, like traffic operators, could come back immediately "thus freeing supervisors for the earliest possible return of others.

"In fact, if the return to work starts immediately, most employees could be on the job by Monday."

A company spokesman had said earlier that about 250 supervisors whose home base is the company office in the Vancouver area are scattered around the province filling in for the striking or locked-out employees.

He said it would take time to get them back in order to assign work to the returning employees.

Both sides reached tentative agreement on a three-year contract, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1977.

However, negotiators reached an impasse on the return-to-work issue after meeting with federal mediator Mike Collins for five days.

The union sees the company's return-to-work proposal as a repeat of the situation following a strike in 1969 when there was a 14-day

RUGBY CHALLENGE BOLSTERS UNITY?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Surrey Beavers Rugby Club stole the show at a public forum of the Task Force on Canadian Unity Wednesday with a challenge to any Quebec rugby football team to a contest on the Plains of Abraham to be followed by a beer-drinking championship.

Club spokesman Gordon Stewart admitted to a laughing forum audience of about 450 that "whether we win, lose or draw, we really haven't been able to figure out how we will translate victory, loss or equality into constitutional changes, so, we'll forget about them."

The Beavers' presentation was one of the more emotional submissions made to the task force. Details on Page 40.

Blizzard conditions closed schools and secondary roads throughout eastern Alberta Wednesday while in the province's south a county hospital sought emergency help to cope with the storm.

Officials at Bow Island Hospital in Forty-Mile County near Lethbridge asked Alberta disaster services to supply snowmobiles with sleds to carry doctors to emergencies and patients to hospitals.

RCMP officials advised motorists to stay off major highways between Calgary and Edmonton because of drifting snow and near-zero visibility.

In areas southeast of Red Deer, full blizzard conditions — driving winds, six centimetres of snow, heavy drifting and zero visibility — prevailed.

Rail transportation in and out of Edmonton was curbed by the storm. The Canadian National rail liner to Calgary was cancelled Wednesday. The Edmonton train from Drumheller was also cancelled.

Calgary buses to Saskatoon were not running and bus service was halted in the Medicine Hat area.

In St. John's Nfld., bare pavement was showing on most downtown streets today after a 24-hour snowfall of 36 centimetres but schools remained closed and most businesses planned not to open until noon.

A storm with winds gusting to 80 kilometres an hour that brought the snow was moving out into the North Atlantic.

In the U.S., Texas, Oklahoma and the Pacific Coast, still recovering from previous storms, were hit with new waves of foul weather today.

The U.S. Northeast, however, expected a full day of sunshine as it dug out from Monday's blizzard.

Oklahoma residents were plowing through 10 to 15 centimetres of snow Wednesday when the first flurries of another storm began to fall. Up to 25 centimetres could accumulate today.

16 in Saanich Salvage Scrounging

Saanich police investigations into salvage materials being taken from municipal projects have indicated 16 employees of the public works department have been engaged in the practice for four years.

The investigations have also shown that some of the materials taken have been sold to local firms, Ald. David Paterson said today.

But Paterson, chairman of the finance committee, said unless the continuing investigations unearth grounds for action, he does not believe police will lay charges.

He said the actions of the employees involved were "incorrect" rather than illegal, because they were simply continuing what was apparently an accepted practice in the department over a period of at least 10 years.

Mayor Mel Couvelier declined to comment on the situation today, saying it would be difficult and also dangerous to do so until the investigation has been completed.

"The ramifications are not yet determined," he added.

Police investigation so far has indicated that over the four-year period the sum involved was about $7,400, Paterson said.

Most of what Couvelier has termed the "irregularities" have shown up in the waterworks division, involving pipe and other fittings that have been dug up and replaced with new materials.

Under normal circumstances these salvaged items would be collected and, when a bulk quantity was available, the municipal purchasing agent would call for bids from salvage operators.

"But over the years it has apparently been the custom in the yard for the employees to salvage as much as they could individually and dispose of it on an individual basis," Paterson said.

"It's not that they are all full of larceny, running and ripping off the municipality. When they started it was one of the things that was done and no one questioned it."

No one, that is, until one former employee exposed the practice.

"Apparently he didn't like what was going on and didn't participate in it," Paterson continued. "Now he has brought it to the attention of the administrative staff and the investigation is under way."

He said some Victoria-area firms have been co-operating in the investigation and have supplied police with a total of 34 invoices. Of these, 16 over a four-year period have been linked with individual employees.

'Pierre's Pub' Has MPs Frothing

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs rose in wrath Wednesday against Liberal party plans to turn the Parliament Buildings into what one called "Trudeau's tavern," a bar and dance hall for as many as 4,000 Liberals attending a Feb. 24 convention.

Commons Speaker James Jerome conceded that the bash "may have grown to a dimension" he hadn't anticipated when he approved it and said he will hold private talks with party spokesmen to see if a compromise can be worked out.

His comments came at the end of an hour of heated debate over the plan to install 26 bars and three bands in the historic buildings for convention party-goers.

Walter Baker (PC—Grenville-Carleton) called it another example of Liberals wanting to "wallow in the public trough." Leonard Jones (Ind—Moncton) said government MPs should be "bloody well ashamed of themselves." Bob Brisco (PC—Kootenay West) said the plan made him "highly indignant."

Liberal MP Peter Stollery (Spadina), defending the plan, said all parties should be able to invite Canadians to the Hill.

No social event of such a size and nature has ever been held in the buildings, and organizers told The Canadian Press last week that the Liberals may end up "straining the facilities a bit."

Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) told the Commons they shouldn't even be allowed to try.

FOOD INCREASE TAPERING SEEN

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the federal department of agriculture says the rate of food price increases will diminish toward the end of 1978.

However, price increases will probably be 12 to 15 per cent higher in the first three months of 1978, R. G. Marshall of the economics branch of the department told an economics outlook conference.

He said beef and pork prices are high and only slight increases can be expected later in 1978.

If the weather is better this year, the price of fresh fruit and vegetables also will decrease, he said.

Marshall said current food costs are high because the price of fresh fruit and vegetables increased 40 per cent between December, 1976, and December, 1977, and the price of meat rose almost 23 per cent in that period.

Commons Furore On Vote Timing

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and opposition MPs baited one another in the Commons Wednesday over the timing of the next federal election.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) asked Trudeau during questioning over economic policies to indicate "if he cannot screw up his courage to call a general election, if we can expect a new budget?"

Trudeau shot back that it is going to become fashionable for opposition MPs to "stand up and beat their chests and say: 'We want an election.'"

The prime minister said there was no such cry several months ago, referring to a commanding lead held by the Liberals over the Conservatives in popularity polls.

He challenged the Conservatives to say if they wanted an election before the proposed pipeline legislation is passed by the Commons.

"If they want to have an election before, let them say so."

The government wants the pipeline bill passed as soon as possible to speed planning of the massive $10 billion project to carry natural gas from the North to southern markets.

Amid shouts of "right now" from his colleagues, McGraw asked on behalf of the more than one million unemployed Canadians "if he does not have the guts to bring in a budget, does he have the guts to call an election?"

Recent polls have shown the Conservatives have made up much of the ground lost to the Liberals.

Conservatives hooted back "Let's get on with it now Pierre," and "why wait for spring, do it now."

The election is expected by many in the spring although the government has until July of next year before it must go to the people.

A PRIME VINTAGE

FARNBOROUGH, England (Reuter) — A 48-year old Rolls-Royce, which has never been serviced or left out in the rain, was bought by a London dealer for about $72,000 at an auction here Wednesday.

The white vintage car, which has been driven less than 32,000 kilometres, has been used almost exclusively to carry royalty and celebrities around the Mediterranean island of Malta.

Bought in 1930 by Malta's Torregiani shipping and banking family, the immaculate car had its first contact with wet weather when it was backed out of the auction hall into flurries of snow Wednesday.

The dealer, Adrian Hamilton, said he has no buyer for the car at the moment.

Payment Bid On Satellite

OTTAWA (CP) — The government took a cautious first step toward possible demands for compensation from the Soviet Union Wednesday by officially informing it that Canada believes it has found parts of the satellite Cosmos 954 that crashed in the Northwest Territories last month.

External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson tabled letters to the Soviet Union and United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim but refused to say whether Canada will seek the more than $1 million the search for Cosmos fragments has cost so far.

The letter to the Soviet Union said: "The Canadian government reserves all its rights in international law on the matter of liability and compensation in relation to this incident.

"The Canadian government will be raising this matter separately with the government of the Soviet Union in due course."

Jamieson said he is complying with terms of international conventions in officially informing the Soviet Union and the UN that six fragments, some radioactive, have been found in the Fort Reliance and Warden's Grove areas of the territories.

The letter to the Soviet Union, handed the ambassador here, said debris found so far is believed to be component parts of Cosmos, which plunged to earth Jan. 24.

"Some of these component parts were found to be radioactive.

"In the light of risk hazards to persons and property in Canada, the Canadian authorities have carried out a comprehensive air and ground search for these parts and the search for additional parts is continuing. . . ."

The note to the UN said much the same thing without references to compensation.

The notes were delivered in compliance with UN outer space conventions which say that if certain procedures are followed the owner of a satellite that falls on a country must pay costs of recovery and return of it.

Defecting Troupe A Poser

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Bud Cullen said Wednesday eight black members of a South African theatre company are seeking political asylum in Canada, posing a tough problem for immigration officials.

Cullen was commenting a few hours after the eight members of the 19-member Jabula Players went to a federal immigration office in Toronto, saying they want to stay in Canada because they fear reprisals from the South African government for political overtones in a show they performed in Toronto.

A Toronto immigration official said the South Africans will make a formal appeal, probably for refugee status, to immigration authorities in the next couple of weeks.

Cullen said the immigration officials have a tough decision to make as they always do in cases where individuals not regarded as refugees when they come for a visit to Canada seek asylum after "taking advantage of our freedom of speech and unloading on the government back home."

An immigration department spokesman who asked not to be identified said the government "probably will take a pretty sympathetic view of this thing."

They're Helping Take the Mystery Out of Sex

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

In these so-called liberated days, society still likes to pretend sexuality doesn't exist.

When the subject is sex, the generation gap becomes an abyss. Parents generally cross their fingers and let children figure the mystery out themselves.

Even medical schools and universities ignore human sexuality and its communication to the public.

Experts say sexual confusion contributes to behavior disorders such as depression, rebellion, delinquency and rape.

The increase in recent years of venereal disease, unplanned pregnancies and abortion proves this haphazard approach to the facts of life is taking its toll.

In 1963, the Greater Victoria school board decided to supplement whatever was being taught in the home with a broad course in human relations called family life education.

The program acknowledges human sexuality and brings it out into the open for discussion and instruction.

When it started it was controversial and the district had enough well-publicized brushes with anxious parents over the years to become cautious of media coverage.

But the attendance rate of almost 100 per cent has proven the program, which is optional, is providing needed information.

In the beginning, doctors did the instructing and hundreds of anxious parents turned up at pre-course meetings.

Now the course is taught by two specially-trained teachers who reassure an average of 30 parents who attend monthly meetings.

Roy Christie has been teaching the course five years and Kathy Adams joined him three years ago.

They spend a month each year at the 11 junior secondary schools in the district and work as a team, Christie instructing the boys and Adams the girls in Grades 8, 9 and 10.

Helped in Growing

In a recent school district survey, 85 per cent of the students who took the course said it helped them deal with the problems of growing up.

Through student feedback, the course has been revised over the years to keep up with the issues.

Grade 8 students get four one-hour sessions, one of them with a doctor or other resource person.

The Grade 8 course deals with the family unit, biological and cultural traits, the life cycle from infancy to old age, reproduction, relationships with others and available health services.

Although some elementary schools supply basic sex instruction, the family life course doesn't begin until Grade 8.

"Grade 8 is the key," Adams explains. "Before then students are too young to deal with the material and later on in high school they're too old to benefit from it.

"Kids are bombarded by an explosion of sex information through the media and the schools would be archaic if they didn't keep up," says Adams, a relaxed young woman with a friendly smile.

She studied psychology at university and later taught health education and guidance in Ontario.

Adams and Christie, a former biology teacher, are open and informal. They were selected for their teaching ability and most important, their rapport with students.

Students must feel comfortable if they're going to talk about things like masturbation, homosexuality and their relationships with the opposite sex.

Embarrassment and guilt are probably the main reasons children don't talk these things over with their parents.

According to Adams and Christie, only one-third of the students say they communicate with their parents about sex.

And even fewer get satisfactory answers.

"You should hear some of the strange and totally wrong things they come out with in class," Christie said.

The family life education handbook quotes sources as saying 25 per cent of all students are beyond help by Grade 8.

A wide assortment of slides, models and films collected through the years aids in the instruction. All new material goes through a screening committee comprised of teachers, parents, doctors and clergy.

Teaching methods are a combination of fact and common sense derived from experience.

Because the instructors have a vast supply of resource material at hand, they can discuss most topics in clinical detail that could not be obtained at home.

Common Sense

The emphasis is placed on scientific evidence rather than religious or cultural beliefs and the pros and cons of every topic are discussed fully.

Moral judgments are avoided and Adams and Christie tend to stay away from personal opinion unless they are specifically requested.

Classroom attitudes vary from redneck ignorance to worldly sophistication depending on the area, the pair has noticed.

Children of affluent, well-educated families tend to have liberal attitudes and a larger body of knowledge that seems to come from television and books rather than personal experience.

Generally, students from poor, less educated and broken homes have a wider range of personal experience — but paradoxically, less knowledge.

Statistics indicate a higher rate of pregnancy and abortion in these areas, according to Christie and Adams.

At the Grade 9 level, the instruction drops to two hours and the topics include venereal disease, emotional development, problem solving and relationships with the opposite sex.

In Grade 10, the program deals with sexual attitudes, a review of anatomy and conception and methods of birth control.

The section on birth control is undertaken with the full blessing of parents, who seem relieved to have the burden lifted from their shoulders.

"Parents indicate they want their children to know about birth control but they don't want to be the ones to tell them," Christie said.

Parents are afraid their children will think they are condoning sex and the use of contraceptives.

Before starting the program at each school, a meeting is held with parents. The structured course ends at Grade 10, but Christie and Adams make it a practice to travel to senior secondaries and talk to students.

At the senior level, the boys have caught up to the girls in terms of maturity and the classes are co-ed.

McClelland Draws 'Intractable' Label

Victoria Medical Society president Dr. Doug Critchley said today an "intractable" Health Minister Bob McClelland will ram the controversial Helmcken Road hospital through even if it's dead against public opinion.

He said the society's executive is meeting today to discuss what action can be taken following attacks Wednesday by McClelland and other cabinet ministers on a VMS newspaper advertisement which warned Victoria General Hospital will be closed once the Helmcken Road hospital is completed.

"He (McClelland) told me three weeks ago he would not be swayed by public opinion. I don't believe that. It's a public matter, I wouldn't go on unless I believed we are right," Critchley said.

At Wednesday's meeting of the Capital Regional District's hospital board, Critchley presented a society brief urging the expansion of Victoria General on adjacent St. Ann's Academy land in order to avoid a split hospital.

At a press conference today, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, MLA for Victoria, said he has asked McClelland to build the Helmcken Road hospital in one phase instead of two, and had been told there were insufficient funds.

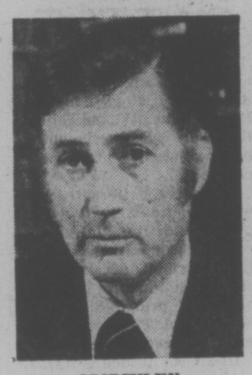
McClelland has accused the doctors of running an advertisement that is "immoral and dishonest."

Critchley admitted today the words "acute care" had not been included "but how long can you make an ad, and how do you deal with an intractable minister?

"He's playing with words. He told me three weeks ago Victoria General will be closed for acute care once Helmcken Road is completed.

"He told me he wouldn't consider acute care beds down there and said I could quote him."

Critchley said he asked McClelland to consider having extended care beds, instead of acute care ones, at Helmcken Road but the minister was adamant that this would not be done.



CRITCHLEY
. . . "we are right"

Critchley said such a move would have relieved the strain on the two downtown hospitals caused by extensive care patients being forced to use acute care facilities because there is nowhere else they can go at this time.

Critchley answered accusations that the society's stand does not represent the majority of its members. He said a referendum had been held, and a total of 170 doctors were against a split hospital compared to 66 in favor of the Helmcken Road site. He said 75 per cent of Greater Victoria doctors are society members.

Critchley said the minister is not being open when he says Victoria General will continue to be a health care centre.

"As we know Victoria General, it will no longer exist as an acute care hospital. I appealed to him on that point. If you change a downtown hotel into an office building you no longer have a hotel," Critchley said.

At Wednesday's meeting of the regional district's hospital board, city alderman Bob Wright made a motion that the region's hospital and health planning commission immediately start a study on the future role of Victoria General. The final allocation of acute care beds in the regional district would not be decided until the study is completed.

"I'm confident that a study by the commission will find that a community hospital will continue at the Humboldt site," Wright said.

Opposing the move, Saanich alderman John Mika said it was "a noble intelligent attempt for a band-aid solution".

Wright's motion, which includes an immediate start on the first phase of the new hospital and continuation of planning for the second phase, passed.

Earlier in the meeting another group of doctors appealed to the board not to have pediatrics and obstetrics moved from Royal Jubilee to the new site. They said the result would be depreciation of care for sick infants and children.

"I'm willing to jump through any number of hoops so long as we can come up with the correct solution," pediatrician Dr. Bash Boulton told the board.

Victims Thought It Was A Bridge

The occupants of a car that carried two Victorians to their death Tuesday night off Port Renfrew government dock apparently thought they were driving across a bridge.

Alexander Topper, 38, of Victoria, was identified by RCMP as the driver and one of the victims. Also drowned was Kim Annette Joyce, 17, of 4061 Larchwood.

Survivors were William Alfred Friers, 35, of 812 Old Esquimalt, and Richard James Kurahara, 19, of 791 Pandora, who made their way out of the four-door sedan and to shore.

The survivors told police they were in Port Renfrew for the first time that afternoon. When their car came to the wharf after dark they thought they were on a narrow bridge heading back toward Jordan River.

Police said tire swerve marks on the wharf deck seem to support this. The car was going about 25 mph when the driver realized his mistake and tried to stop.

An RCMP diving team recovered the bodies early Wednesday morning before the car was raised from about 30 feet of water.

A police spokesman said an inquest will be held but a date has not been set.

Over the past three decades seven other vehicles have gone off the dock, according to long-time residents of Port Renfrew.

Although the dock area has lighting, there are no warning signs indicating that the main road ends at the approach to the wharf, almost adjacent to the waterfront Port Renfrew Hotel.

An unsuspecting driver could easily mistake the wharf for a bridge or continuation of the main road, particularly in a rainstorm like Tuesday's.

Other Subdivisions Near Kingsview?

North Cowichan will encourage new subdivisions along Maple Bay Road near the troubled Kingsview Properties development, Mayor George Whittaker said today.

He said the municipality has invested more than $500,000 in services in the area near Duncan and taxpayers can be assured the money will be recovered one way or the other.

"I am confident the Kingsview development will go ahead; they have got too big an investment there to let it collapse, but in any case the services will be paid for," he said.

"We will permit other subdivisions along the route and the developers will share the costs of the services already installed."

He said this process might take several years.

"One way or the other we will recover the money," he said. "If Kingsview goes ahead soon we will recover the money quickly. If it doesn't, then it will take a couple of years."

Whittaker said he has not received word from Kingsview on when the project might resume.

He said the development company will soon have to pay a large tax bill on the property.

"In three years their taxes will come to $250,000. Somebody will have to pay that or the whole development will revert to the municipality. We are protected but we hope the development will go ahead soon, as a vote of confidence in the local economy."

He said concern about a slow real estate market was a factor in Kingsview's decision to delay the project.

"There has been very little communication from the Kingsview people, since the project was shelved. We are still waiting to hear when it will proceed."

He said 59 lots are ready for sale in the development now, and Kingsview may want to put them on the market so it can pay its bills.

In all, the development will have 1,200 lots for single family homes plus land for apartments and townhouses.

Father, Daughter Hurt in Crash

A girl and her father were treated at hospital and discharged after their car and two others collided at Gorge and Tillicum Wednesday night.

Saanich police are seeking witnesses to the crash in which Brad Thomas, 667 Treebank, received head and shoulder bruises and his daughter Trisha, 7, was cut on the head when thrown from the car by impact.

The accident occurred at 6:30 and damage to the vehicles was heavy.

Early today, at 2:57, driver Glen Alan Forsen, 21, of 530 West Bay, escaped without injury when the small car he was driving hit a power pole, snapping it off, in the 900-block of Old Esquimalt Road.

Damage was estimated at $700 to the car and $1,000 to the pole.

Bootleg Cabbie Nailed

A cab driver whose car yielded a least a dozen cases of beer and numerous bottles of liquor was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty in provincial court today to bootlegging.

Samuel John Patterson, 54, of 941 Kings, was charged under the B.C. Liquor Control and Licensing Act with selling after the permitted time, at 1:30 last Friday morning in a Gorge Road motel where city police constable Dan Parker had booked a room.

The officer, acting undercover, said he phoned Red Top Cabs at 12:55 a.m. and asked for Sam but was told he was not in. Parker then asked for a bottle of rye whiskey and was told it would be $13.

At 1:30 a station wagon cab appeared at the motel and Patterson delivered the bottle to Parker's room, where he was arrested. The cab was searched and its contents siezed.

"You sold it to the wrong man," Judge Harold Alder commented in fining Patterson and confiscating the liquor.

APPLICANTS PLUG CITIZENSHIP COURTS

Swearing-in ceremonies for new Canadian citizens in Victoria have tripled because of recent changes to the federal Citizenship Act, a court official said today.

Instead of having only one hearing a month the citizenship court is now holding ceremonies three times a month and is filled to capacity at each session, swearing in 69 new citizens at a time.

Other courts in B.C. have experienced similar surges and in a recent peak period more than 1,200 new citizens were sworn in around the province, compared with the weekly routine of 85 to 170 before the act was changed Feb. 15, 1977.

Additional judges and staff have been assigned to ease the load, which includes two or more swearing-in ceremonies a day in Vancouver with 120 new citizens presented with certificates at each, in addition to personal interviewing of candidates by the judges.

Before the changes, the routine was one or two swearing-in ceremonies a week.

"The reason we have had such an influx," said Norman L. Oreck, chief citizenship judge in B.C., "is that the residency qualification was reduced from five to three years.

"In addition, the qualifying age was reduced from 21 to 18. And persons who formerly were categorized as British subjects now are required to have the same kind of swearing-in and court ceremony as other applicants, instead of more or less automatically getting citizenship."

Oreck said that from January, 1976, to Feb. 15, 1977, there were 4,868 judges' interviews with individual citizenship applicants held by him and the three other full-time citizenship court judges in B.C. But since Feb. 15, 1977, there have been 18,826 such interviews.

Appendicitis Halts Ferry

The 10 a.m. Tsawwassen sailing of the Queen of Alberni was turned back 30 minutes out today when a member of the ship's crew was stricken with appendicitis. The truck ferry was ordered to the nearest dock when it appeared the man's appendix had ruptured.

'Bus-Snatcher' Otto Raked

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative John Crosbie says the transport policies of Otto (Bus-snatcher) Lang are enough to make any province want to separate from Canada.

The MP for St. John's West said in the Commons Wednesday he can understand why some Quebecers want to separate after seeing the lamentable policies imposed by Transport Minister Lang in his native Newfoundland.

Crosbie's criticism of Lang came during second-reading debate on a bill which would put the government-owned Canadian National Railways on a new financial footing and wipe out $808 million of its debts.

Crosbie accused Lang of snatching control of the island's bus system from the provincial government. Once the buses were under control of the Canadian transport commission, a federal regulatory body, rates increased by 15 per cent.

Crosbie also accused the federal government of allowing the trans-Canada highway on the island to deteriorate to the point that it "was sinking in the more."

The CNR had cancelled its rail freight services, causing a larger number of heavy trucks to carry products on the highway.

Crosbie also lamented the state of the CN marine service, claiming its unpredictability was hurting local residents and damaging the tourist industry.

"That's great for Newfoundland's hoteliers, moteliers and purveyors of hot turkey sandwiches," Crosbie said bitterly.

The CN dockyards in St. John's badly needed $6 million for repairs but the federal government refused aid. If the yards were in better shape, more ships could use the facility and jobs would be created in a province which has the hoghest unemployment rate in the nation.

"This is an awful government that doesn't care."

Crosbie said he knows the CNR would like to cease all operations in Newfoundland. The services lose about $22 million annually, he said.

Region Split Urged for Mail

TORONTO (CP) — Ron Ritchie, appointed by the federal Progressive Conservative party to study the mail system, said Wednesday the post office could be decentralized into regional units to improve efficiency.

Ritchie, the 60-year-old Conservative candidate for the federal riding of York East, said it is bad management to have 70 per cent of the country's mail move through Toronto.

He plans to study the postal system in the next six weeks and report to Joe Clark, federal Conservative leader, on how the post office might be made more efficient.

Clark said Tuesday the report will be discussed in Parliament or during an election.

Ritchie said the public is not being well served by the postal service.

Ritchie is a former vice-president and director of Imperial Oil.

Major BNA Changes Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's political leaders prescribed on Wednesday sweeping constitutional changes and an all-out attack on economic problems to cure Canada's ills as the Task Force on Canadian Unity opened a two-day hearing here.

Premier Bill Bennett told the task force that Canada's constitutional framework needs a complete overhaul to end concentration of power and wealth in Ontario and Quebec.

But Alex Macdonald, former attorney-general and spokesman for the New Democratic Party, said Bennett's proposals threatened to create unnecessary bureaucracy. He said that with common sense, the constitution can work — the economy is the real problem.

Gordon Gibson, provincial Liberal leader, submitted a 100-page brief explaining why he believes Canada's existing political system is "primitive, authoritarian and unsuited to a modern democracy where people know how to read and write."

The Senate must be reformed, Gibson said, to ensure a regional voice in national affairs and to curb the tendency of national governments to draft policy without considering regional impacts.

Bennett's three-part program included:

—Implementation of a national economic strategy "involving all governments in Canada to resolve the current economic situation."

—Restructuring federal-provincial bodies to guarantee full participation by the country's five regions.

—Revision of the Canadian political structure, particularly the Senate and Supreme Court, to correct an insensitivity to regional diversity that is "the basic flaw in our current federal system."

Macdonald countered Gibson and Bennett with a plea for the use of more humor and common sense in the Confederation debate.

"Our constitution can work with the necessary horse sense and compromise," he said, adding that it makes little sense to "pump up the Senate" when many backbench members of Parliament "don't know what to do with themselves."

"The best reform of the Senate is to let it pass away."

Vic Stephens, leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, was less optimistic. He issued a challenge to the Canada's service clubs to take up the unity battle by arranging a massive exchange between residents of Quebec and other regions.

The task force heard briefs from three constitutional experts on technical aspects of reform during the morning.

The rest of the two-day session is to deal with briefs from a wide range of political, religious and cultural groups and includes two evening public forums.

In a brief prepared for the task force, Douglas Christie of the Committee for Western Independence, said Western Canada is nothing more than a subservient part of the eastern Canadian establishment.

Although some of the 40 speakers welcomed the task force hearings, others questioned the value of the unity debate.

As an example, Randy Noonan, 27, a recently laid-off Burnaby truck driver, said he was one of "one million unemployed Canadians who is wondering if Canadian unity can give me a job."

"Don't insult me by telling me my problem is Canadian unity. It isn't. I need a job."

B.C. Jail System 'Lacks Direction'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A problem with the British Columbia jail system is that "we really don't know what we are doing," Commissioner of Corrections John Ekstedt said Wednesday.

Ekstedt made the comment to the opening of an inquiry into all aspects of incarceration of women in provincial jails.

Justice Patricia Proudfoot of the B.C. Supreme Court is commissioner of the inquiry, set up in December by Attorney-General Garde Gardom following allegations of sexual extortion by male guards and other irregularities at the Lower Mainland regional correctional centre (Oakalla) in Burnaby.

"The vicious cycle is that we can't plan so we don't change and we don't change because we can't plan," Ekstedt said. "Some of us know on a day-to-day basis what we are doing, but as a collective enterprise, we suffer from lack of direction."

Ekstedt, who holds deputy minister rank in the attorney-general's department, attributed the problem to the lack of clear definition by politicians of the goals of the corrections service.

The service has no answer to such policy questions as whether the system should be providing punishment or treatment, removing offenders from the community or returning them to it, reforming them or protecting the public, he said.

Another difficulty, he said, is the high cost of replacing such old jail structures.

Ekstedt said the lack of coordination in the justice administration system comprising police enforcement, the courts and the jail service, compounds the problem. However, a department computer was acquired in 1974 to pull together information in the justice system.

An alternative to new jail facilities, he said, would be greater use of probation, community correction centres and other ways to reduce the prison population at Oakalla.

Equality of the sexes should stop at the entrance to living quarters of the Oakalla women's unit, the Elizabeth Fry Society said Wednesday.

The society urged that "no males be hired to work in or inspect" cells in the unit where about 75 women are confined.

The recommendation was one of 40 made to Justice Proudfoot.

Gardom had ordered that the director and deputy director of the unit, both men, be replaced by deputy director Marie Peacock, but nine male guards remain at the women's unit with duties that include inspection of cells.

Roden said it is "less of an invasion of privacy if women, not men, are allowed to enter the place where women inmates live."

The inquiry continues.

AirWest Names General Manager

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dick Laidman, former president of Pacific Western Airlines, has been appointed general manager of AirWest Airlines, president Norm Gold announced Wednesday.

Laidman was with PWA for 19 years, eight as president prior to his retirement in 1970.

Meanwhile, negotiations aimed at ending the lengthy strike by AirWest's Teamster Union employees are continuing, Gold said.

Newspaper Strikers Evicted

MONTREAL (CP) — Police evicted 50 striking employees of two Montreal French-language daily newspapers who had occupied a branch of the Montreal Trust Co. on the ground floor of busy Place Ville Marie today.

The demonstrators, employees of strikebound La Presse and Montreal-Matin, marched into the building shortly after 9:30 a.m. EST and had planned to stay for the day to publicize their dispute, now in its fifth month.

The demonstrators milled about for 90 minutes, barring the main doors to customers while they chanted slogans and singing popular songs whose lyrics had been altered to make fun of Paul Desmarais, owner of both newspapers.

The demonstrators said they chose Montreal Trust because the company is affiliated with Desmarais's Power Corp. financial empire. The trust company is controlled by The Investors Group of Winnipeg, in which Power Corp has a 56.5 per cent voting interest.

Officials of the trust company and Trizec Corp., owners of Place Ville Marie, the city's largest downtown office and shopping development, called police to evict the demonstrators. About 20 members of the riot squad moved in shortly after 11 a.m. EST and evicted the demonstrators without any resistance.

"We came here to express our dissatisfaction with the slowness of negotiations," said Michel Hotte, a spokesman for the demonstrators.

It was the second time strikers from the newspapers had occupied the premises. In December, a group spent more than three hours in the branch, but left just before police arrived.

Negotiations between management of the two newspapers — which are published in the same building — and the strikers broke down last week when the employer wouldn't accede to a union demand for a clause specifying that delivery workers won't be forced to cross picket lines in making deliveries.

Hotte said salaries also have to be discussed, although he said the unions concerned — affiliates of the Confederation of National Trade Unions — don't expect great problems there.
